DEAR HOCKEY FANS:

Welcome to the NHL Yearbook, the only pre-season magazine officially licensed by the National Hockey League.

For the seventh straight season, you can count on the NHL Yearbook to bring you statistics, analyses, and team information unavailable anywhere else — and, with so much off-season activity, you'll need the NHL Yearbook to keep you up-to-date.

Once again, the 1995-96 season brings change to the NHL: a new 82-game schedule, new conference and divisional alignment, new arenas in cities such as Vancouver, Boston and Montreal, and changes in team personnel. Teams will play at least 25 games within their own divisions, and more than half of their games within their own conferences.

Hockey fans in Colorado will welcome the Avalanche, led by Rookie-of-the-Year Peter Forsberg and Coach-of-the-Year Marc Crawford. All of hockey will welcome the return of Pittsburgh Penguins superstar Mario Lemieux, who rejoins NHL action after a year-long absence.

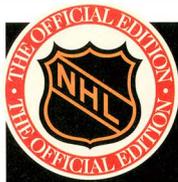

The upcoming season also asks some questions: Will Eric Lindros, the Hart Trophy winner last season as the NHL's MVP, continue his ascendancy into the NHL's elite? Will the teaming of Vancouver's Pavel Bure and Alexander Mogilny (longtime junior teammates for the former Soviet Union) mean double trouble for the Canucks opponents? Can Paul Kariya and the Mighty Ducks of Anaheim gain a playoff berth in their third NHL season?

This Yearbook gives you a head start toward answering those questions: the 1995-96 NHL season will reveal the rest of the answers.

FLYERS CAPTAIN CAPTURES HART

HART
TROPHY

Eric Lindros is solid choice over Jagr and Hasek as League's most valuable player

The future is upon us. The Next One has arrived. Eric Lindros, who has been destined to assume the mantle of greatness carried by Wayne Gretzky and Mario Lemieux for so many years, last season won the Hart Memorial Trophy as "the player adjudged to be the most valuable to his team" in voting by the Professional Hockey Writers' Association.

In the past 16 years since Gretzky arrived in the National Hockey League, only six players have won the prestigious Hart Trophy. Gretzky won nine times, including eight consecutive times between 1980 and 1987.

Lemieux, who missed last season to further recuperate from his bout with cancer and from lingering back problems, won twice (1988, 1993), as did Gretzky's former Oilers teammate Mark Messier (1990, 1992). Brett Hull (1991) and Sergei Fedorov (1994) were the other winners.

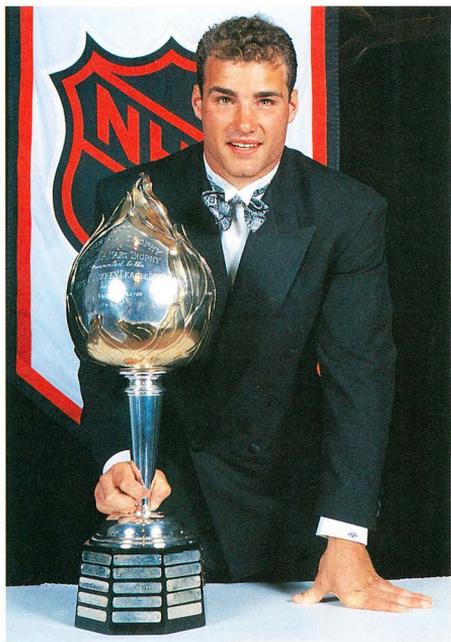

From the day he was drafted in 1991, it was always believed that Lindros would one day become the most valuable player in hockey. The Next One.

That day has arrived.

"It feels great," said Lindros, the Philadelphia Flyers superstar centre, choking back the tears after he was presented with the award. "It's a great thrill. It's almost a relief."

The mixed emotions were in large part due to the controversy and the great expectations that have followed Lindros in his brief NHL career.

Drafted by the Quebec Nordiques, Lindros decided to remain in junior hockey and then joined Canada's National and Olympic teams, anticipating his rights would be traded. They were. In a blockbuster deal, the Flyers obtained the rights to Lindros and their franchise has been on an upswing ever since, with the most dynamic improvement seen last season.

While Lindros was finishing second in League scoring with 29 goals and 70 points, the Flyers finished first in the Atlantic Division and qualified for the Stanley Cup playoffs for the first time since 1989. They even advanced to the Eastern Conference Final.

It was a heady odyssey for the team, and also for Lindros, who had to prove he was worth everything (and more) the Flyers gave up to get him and to justify his decision to delay the start of his professional career.

"It wasn't the smoothest ride, but it was a ride I felt I had to take and now I'm thankful that I did," said the 22-year-old.

"For me this is a bit of a plateau. It's a relief. But the peak is still winning the Stanley Cup.

"I certainly don't want to be satisfied with what I've done. I've still got a lot of improving to do. And I've got that desire to get better."

Lindros was a top-three selection on all 15 ballots, receiving 10 first-place votes, four seconds and one third. He earned 63 voting points, finishing ahead of Pittsburgh Penguins winger Jaromir Jagr, who edged Lindros for the Art Ross Trophy as the League's leading scorer.

A first-time NHL trophy finalist, Jagr finished with 27 voting points and became the second Czech-trained player to be named as a Hart nominee. The other was Buffalo Sabres goaltender Dominik Hasek, who finished third with 23 voting points, including three first-place votes.

Hasek was the runner-up for the Hart Trophy in 1994. A goaltender hasn't won the award since Jacques Plante with the Montreal Canadiens in 1962.

"I still believe a goaltender can win it again," said Hasek. "It will be a special motivator for me."

There's a good chance, however, that Hasek will have to get by Lindros again to win it. At the age of 22, Lindros could be dominant for years to come. Last season, while playing with linemates John LeClair and Mikael Renberg, together known as the Legion of Doom, Lindros led the Flyers in points, goals, assists (41), plus/minus (plus 27) and shots (144). He was also a unanimous selection at centre as a First Team All-Star, receiving all 15 first-place votes.

At 22 years and four months Lindros became the youngest winner of the Hart Trophy since Gretzky, who won his first in 1980 at the age of 19 years and five months.

"Like I said, there's a bit of relief to winning," added Lindros. "The expectations never end, but to be looked upon by the writers as being deserving of winning this trophy is both a thrill and a relief."

Actually, Lindros was not only the choice of the writers, but of his peers, too. Earlier on the same day that he won the Hart Trophy, Lindros was given the Lester B. Pearson Award, which is the players' selection of "the outstanding player in the League."

"It's all exciting," said Lindros, "but I'm not going to be satisfied. There's still a lot to be done. There's still a lot of hockey left."

But the future is already upon us.

With his talent, size and strength, Lindros draws close attention from the opposition, including NY Rangers Mark Messier and Adam Graves

Buffalo's Dominik Hasek repeats as League's premier goaltender; Belfour and Carey are runners-up Dominik Hasek was definitely a man on a mission last season.

Hasek, the Buffalo Sabres splendid goaltender, entered last season intent on proving that his winning the Vezina Trophy in 1994 as "the goalkeeper adjudged to be the best at his position" was no fluke.

"I felt all along I could be good again," said Hasek, "but I wanted to prove it to other people."

And he proved it by tying for the NHL lead in goals-against average at 2.11 and in shutouts with five. He also led all goaltenders in save percentage at .930 for the second consecutive season, while posting a 19-14-7 record in 41 appearances for the Sabres.

Hasek was also a nominee for the Hart Trophy for the second straight year, finishing second in 1994 and third in voting last year.

"I could never have won this award without my teammates and a very good defensive system," said Hasek, who is the second European to win the Vezina Trophy, but the first to win it twice.

"I don't think I was any better than a year ago, but I wanted to play my best."

And Hasek's best was good enough to earn him a berth as a First Team All-Star. With his unorthodox style of playing back in his goal and often dropping to his knees, Hasek continued to frustrate shooters.

In the voting for the Vezina Trophy, Hasek was a clear cut winner, earning 104 points, including 17 first-place votes from the 26 NHL general managers who select the winner. In the process, Hasek became the second goaltender since 1982 to win the trophy in consecutive years. Montreal Canadiens Patrick Roy did it in 1989 and 1990.

Finishing second in the voting was Chicago Blackhawks Ed Belfour, who actually tied in voting with Washington Capitals rookie Jim Carey at 25 points. But Belfour got the nod for second place with his two first-place votes, one more than Carey.

Belfour, a Vezina Trophy finalist for the third time, had won the award the two previous times he was nominated, in 1991 and 1993. He did, however, win the William Jennings Trophy as the goaltender on the club allowing the fewest goals against (115). Belfour had a 2.28 goals-against average, five shutouts and a 22-15-3 record.

Carey, also a finalist for the Calder Memorial Trophy, was the first goaltender to be nominated for both awards since Belfour in 1991. After starting the season in the minors with the Portland Pirates, Carey appeared in 28 games for the Capitals. He posted an 18-6-3 record, with a 2.13 goals-against average and a .913 save percentage.

"This is an incredible feeling winning again," said Hasek. "My goaltending coach promised me I wouldn't have to stay after practice any more if I won this award."

Indeed, he can be excused. Mission accomplished.

TROPHY

Red Wings veteran Paul Coffey named League's best defenceman over Chelios and Bourque in voting

Paul Coffey had won the James Norris Memorial Trophy twice before in his illustrious NHL career. But the third one was definitely the best.

"It has been nine years since I won the last one," said Coffey, the star of the Detroit Red Wings defence. "I think I'll appreciate this one a little more."

Coffey was previously voted the defenceman who demonstrated "the greatest all-round ability in the position" in 1986 and 1985, when he was playing with the great Edmonton Oilers teams.

He was a runner-up to Chris Chelios in 1989 when he was playing for the Pittsburgh Penguins and to Rod Langway in 1984 when he was with the Oilers.

Last year, his second full season with the Red Wings, Coffey led all defencemen in scoring with 58 points, including 14 goals, in 45 games. He was the only defenceman in the League to lead his team in scoring and he posted a club-high plus-18 rating.

Coffey was also named a First Team All-Star for the fourth time in his career, becoming the first player to do so with three different teams.

In winning the Norris Trophy again, Coffey became the sixth defenceman in NHL history to become a three-time winner, joining Bobby Orr (eight), Doug Harvey (seven), Ray Bourque (five), Pierre Pilote (three) and Denis Potvin (three).

Coffey was a clear winner, receiving 12 of a possible 15 first-place votes and three second-place votes.

"Everybody says it's just great to be nominated," said Coffey, "but believe me, you want to win it."

Coffey insisted he was a determined player last season, committed to the Red Wings' system and intent on proving he wasn't close to being finished.

"This is great for our whole team. The system we played as a team helped my game. Scotty Bowman gave me a chance to play a lot and bear down. This one was a long time coming for me."

Finishing second in the voting was Chelios, who had another tremendous season with the Blackhawks, averaging more than 30 minutes of ice-time per game. The Norris nomination was the fourth for Chelios, who is a two-time (1989 and 1993) winner.

Chelios finished third on the Blackhawks in scoring last season with 38 points in 48 games. He led the Blackhawks in assists (33), plus/minus (plus 17) and shots (166).

Chelios earned 39 points in the voting, while Bourque finished third with 20 voting points. Bourque, the 1994 Norris winner, has been a top-three finisher in the Norris voting in 11 of his 16 NHL seasons. He finished second among NHL defencemen in scoring last season with 43 points.

"Being up against guys like Chelios and Bourque it's nice to get in there and win," admitted Coffey. "But I'm not a guy to rest on my laurels. I'll be back again next season working even harder."

Nine years was apparently too long between Norris Trophy victories.

Penguins centre Ron Francis is double winner; takes both Lady Byng and Selke honours Recognition was a long time coming for Ron Francis. But he certainly made the most of it when it arrived. Never before nominated for an NHL trophy, Francis was a double winner in 1995.

"This was my 14th season and the first time I've been at the awards ceremony," said Francis. "It's certainly better late than never."

The Pittsburgh Penguins centre won the Frank J. Selke Trophy, which is awarded to "the forward who best excels in the defensive aspects of the game", as well as the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy, which is given to "the player adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of playing ability."

"I've never gauged myself on winning personal awards," said Francis. "I just try to work hard and at the end of the day when I look at myself in the mirror I want to be able to walk away knowing I tried my hardest."

In the closest race among all the trophies, Francis narrowly edged St. Louis Blues winger Esa Tikkanen in the Selke voting. Francis was named on 14 of the 15 ballots, earning 50 points, including seven first-place votes.

Appearing in 44 games with the Penguins, Francis led the League with a plus/minus rating of plus 30 to win the NHL Alka-Seltzer Plus Award.

And playing on a line with Art Ross Trophy winner Jaromir Jagr and left winger Luc Robitaille, Francis was again an offensive threat, not just the best defensive forward.

He finished fifth in League scoring with 59 points.

Tikkanen, who finished four voting points behind Francis with 46, earned his fourth career nomination for the Selke Trophy. While with the Edmonton Oilers he had twice finished second and once third.

Tikkanen finished the season with a plus-13 rating, while ranking fourth on the Blues in scoring with 35 points.

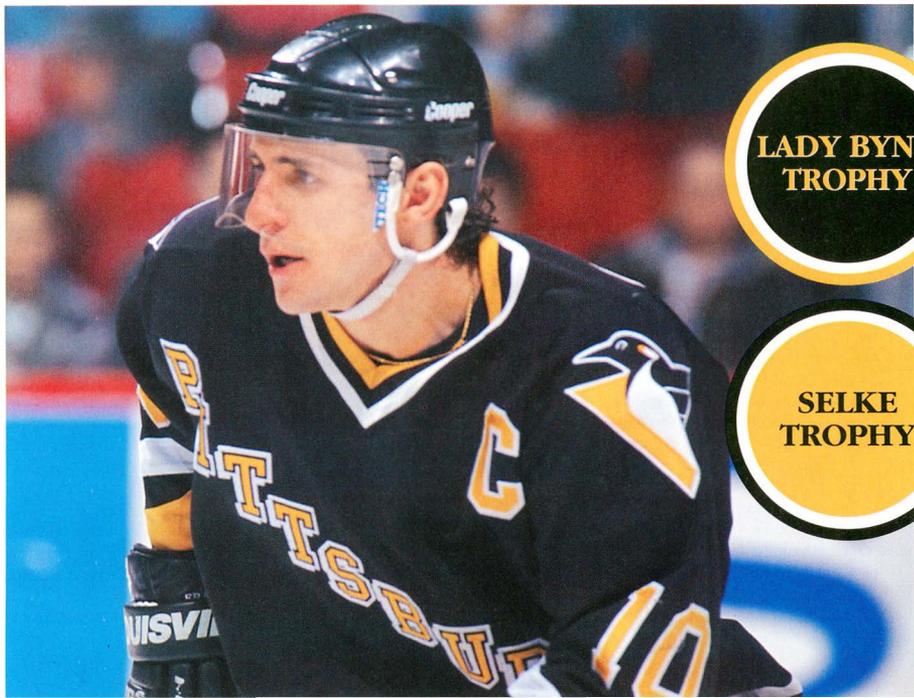

Finishing third with 23 voting points was Calgary Flames centre Joel Otto, a Selke finalist for the second time. Otto, a well-respected face-off man, had a plus-eight rating while contributing 21 points in 47 games.

In winning the Lady Byng Trophy, Francis again finished with 50 voting points, 10 more than Boston Bruins centre Adam Oates, who was runner-up for the third consecutive year. During the season, Francis was assessed just 18 penalty minutes.

Oates, who led the Bruins in scoring with 53 points in 48 games, compiled just eight penalty minutes.

Third in the voting with 22 points was Winnipeg Jets centre Alexei Zhamnov, who became the first Russian-born player to be voted as a Lady Byng finalist. Zhamnov finished third overall in League scoring with 65 points in 48 games. He earned just 20 penalty minutes.

"It was a long time getting here," said Francis after accepting his two awards. "I wanted to make sure I got something to make the trip worthwhile."

Quebec's Marc Crawford named NHL Coach of Year; LaFontaine, Nieuwendyk given recognition

After one season as a head coach in the NHL, Marc Crawford already has a tough act to follow. His own.

After leading the Quebec Nordiques to the best record in the Eastern Conference last season, Crawford was selected as the winner of the Jack Adams Award, which is given to "the NHL coach adjudged to have contributed the most to his team's success."

Crawford was a major reason why the Nordiques vaulted to the top of the conference standings, finishing with a 30-13-5 record. The club's winning percentage under Crawford climbed from .452 the previous season to a heady .677 last season. The Nordiques also reduced their goals-against average from 3.45 to 2.76.

"It's a credit to the organization and to the team," said Crawford, who had previously worked as a head coach with the Toronto Maple Leafs affiliate in St. John's. "The guys did a great job. We had an exciting year."

Crawford became the first rookie to win the Jack Adams Award since Pat Burns won it with the Montreal Canadiens in 1989. Overall, Crawford is the sixth rookie to win the award since it was introduced in 1974.

Other first-year coaches to win include Bobby Kromm (Detroit, 1978), Tom Watt (Winnipeg, 1982), Orval Tessier (Chicago, 1983) and Mike Keenan (Philadelphia, 1985).

In the voting, Crawford earned 239 points, including 34 of a possible 70 first-place votes. Finishing second was Detroit Red Wings Scott Bowman with 160 points and 17 first-place votes.

Bowman, who won the award with the Canadiens in 1977, led the Red Wings to the Presidents' Trophy last season with a 33-11-4 record.

Finishing third was Terry Murray, who completed his first season as coach of the Philadelphia Flyers. Murray, who received his first Adams nomination, earned 112 voting points, including nine first-place votes.

Under Murray, who previously coached in Washington, the Flyers won the Atlantic Division title with a 28-16-4 record and advanced to the playoffs for the first time since 1989.

"I was just thrilled to death to be nominated with people like Scott Bowman and Terry Murray," said Crawford. "I just hope I can attain their longevity and success one day. And I really hope I can follow last year's winner."

That would be Jacques Lemaire, who was the Jack Adams Award winner in 1994 and the Stanley Cup winner with the New Jersey Devils in 1995.

Buffalo Sabres centre Pat LaFontaine knows all about adversity.

LaFontaine, who was sidelined for 16 months after undergoing surgery on his right knee in December, 1993, was named the winner of the Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy, which is presented annually by the members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association to "the player who best exemplifies the qualities of perseverance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey."

After undergoing surgery to repair his torn anterior cruciate ligament, LaFontaine endured a rigorous exercise and therapy program and eventually worked his way back into the Sabres lineup on March 16, 1995.

LaFontaine showed signs of his old form. He finished the season with 27 points in 22 games and reached an NHL milestone by scoring his 400th career regular-season goal on April 14 against Quebec.

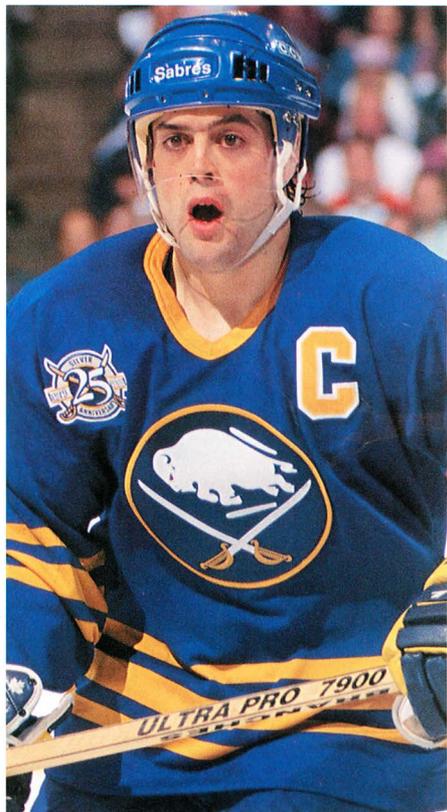

Not all of LaFontaine's time off was spent in rehab, however. He spent considerable time visiting the Children's Hospital in Buffalo.

"The injury gave me the opportunity to get involved with a lot of special kids," said LaFontaine. "The knee injury is trivial against what these kids are going through. It really opens your eyes."

Another star off the ice last season was Calgary Flames centre Joe Nieuwendyk, who was named the 1995 recipient of the King Clancy Memorial Trophy, which is awarded to "the player who best exemplifies leadership qualities on and off the ice and has made a noteworthy humanitarian contribution to his community."

Calgary's Joe Nieuwendyk: King Clancy Trophy winner

Buffalo's Pat LaFontaine: Bill Masterton Trophy winner

On the ice, Nieuwendyk finished second on the Flames in scoring with 50 points and in the process became the first Flame to reach the 300-goal plateau.

Nieuwendyk's community work included working as a spokesperson and participating in awareness programs and promotional campaigns with the Calgary unit of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Nieuwendyk has also been the honorary chairman of the Foothills Hospital Foundation since 1991, assisting with projects such as the hospital's NeoNatal Unit and Burn Unit.

He became the second member of the Calgary Flames to win in the eight-year history of the award. The first-ever winner was former Flames star Lanny McDonald.

"It's an honour to win this award, especially after someone like Lanny has won it," said Nieuwendyk. "Lanny was one of my childhood idols when I was growing up in Toronto. When I got to Calgary he took me under his wing. I owe him a lot of thanks.

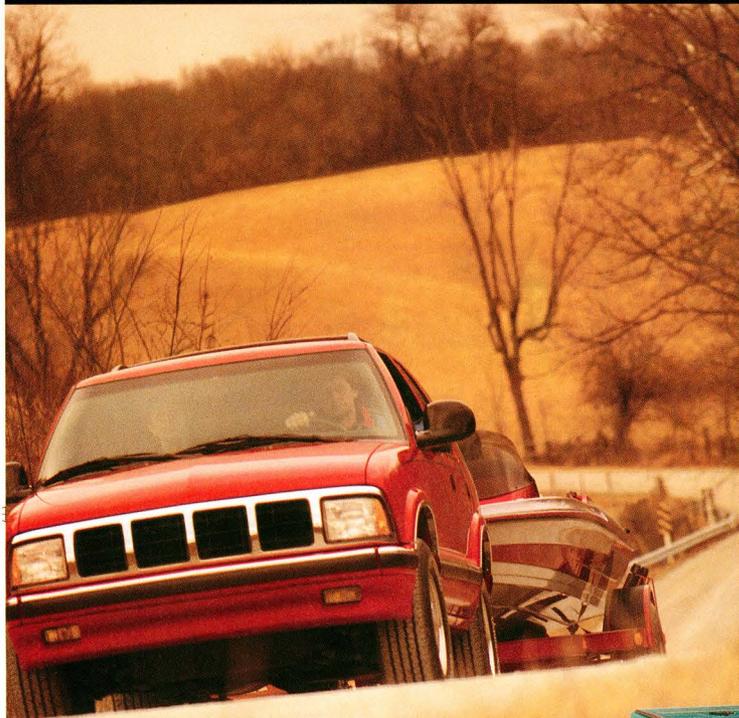

"I've tried to do a lot of work in the community. I've tried to make a difference. An award like this will have meaning long after my career is over."

No shortage of drama in 78th NHL season; Jagr and Lindros replace veterans on leader board

Penguins winger Jaromir Jagr: 70 points to lead NHL in scoring

It may have been the shortest regular season in the National Hockey League in 53 years, but it was also one of the most intense in recent memory.

After 54 years, a 105-day labour stoppage and a seven-day mini training camp, the defending champion New York Rangers finally got to hoist their Stanley Cup banner to the rafters of Madison Square Garden.

The date was January 20. It was the start of the abbreviated 48-game season which may have lacked in volume, but certainly not in substance.

The Rangers, who had defeated the Vancouver Canucks in a thrilling seven-game Final the previous spring, lost on that opening night, the Buffalo Sabres beating them 2-1. It was an omen of the frustrations that would follow for the Rangers and it foreshadowed the competitive balance that would exist in the NHL.

When the season began, the Quebec Nordiques and the Pittsburgh Penguins were ready. The Penguins opened the season with a 12-0-1 record, while the Nordiques were 12-1. And the race for first place in the Eastern Conference didn't end until the final night of the regular season.

Indeed, there was no shortage of highlights throughout the League. Included was the Detroit Red Wings winning the Presidents' Trophy, which is awarded to the team with the best overall record. The Red Wings had a 33-11-4 record, finishing first overall for the first time since 1964-65.

The season also marked a changing of the guard atop the scoring leader board, the young bucks joining a few familiar faces. The overall scoring leader was Penguins right winger Jaromir Jagr, who became the first European-trained player to win the Art Ross Trophy.

Jagr, who appeared in all 48 games, finished with 32 goals and 38 assists for 70 points. Philadelphia Flyers sensation Eric Lindros finished with 70 points as well, with 29 goals and 41 assists in 46 games, but Jagr was awarded the scoring title because he scored more goals. He registered an assist in his final regular-season game against the Florida Panthers to pull even with Lindros who was sidelined by injury for his final game.

Last season marked the first time since 1979-80 that the tie-breaking formula was required to award the Art Ross. That year Los Angeles Kings centre Marcel Dionne and Wayne Gretzky, in his first NHL season with the Edmonton Oilers, finished tied atop the scoring leader board with 137 points. But Dionne emerged the winner, his 53 goals two more than Gretzky's.

Interestingly, Jagr also became the first player other than Gretzky or Penguins teammate Mario Lemieux to capture the Art Ross since Dionne 15 years earlier.

"It's a big honour for me, but it's not just one player," said Jagr. "To win the scoring title you have to be on a good team and have good teammates."

While the likes of Jagr, Lindros, Winnipeg Jets Alexei Zhamnov and Nordiques Joe Sakic fought for the scoring title, the trend towards tight-checking, low-scoring games continued around the League. The competition for the William Jennings Trophy, which is awarded to the goaltenders on the club allowing the fewest goals against, was the closest since the Trophy was first awarded in 1981-82.

On the final night of the season four teams were in contention for the award, which was ultimately won by the Chicago Blackhawks and goaltender Ed Belfour. The Blackhawks allowed just 115 goals, two fewer than the Red Wings tandem of veteran Mike Vernon and sophomore Chris Osgood.

Also in the hunt were the Sabres who allowed 119 goals and the Washington Capitals who allowed 120, followed by the New Jersey Devils with 121.

While Belfour captured the Jennings hardware for the third time, Sabres goaltender Dominik Hasek had the best goals-against average in the League for the second straight year. Hasek appeared in 41 games, allowing just 85 goals for a 2.11 average. He actually tied with Rick Tabaracci, who split the season between Washington and Calgary, but Tabaracci appeared in just 13 games.

The Capitals were able to trade Tabaracci because of the emergence of rookie goaltender Jim Carey, who appeared in 28 games and finished third with a sparkling 2.13 goals-against average. Fourth on the list was Osgood, who had a 2.26 average in 19 games, with Belfour fifth at 2.28.

The winningest goaltender in the League was Penguins Ken Wregget, who filled in admirably for the injured Tom Barrasso. Wregget had 25 wins and two ties in 38 starts. Belfour and Calgary Flames sophomore Trevor Kidd followed with 22 wins.

Hasek also had the best save percentage at .930, with Osgood and Nordiques sophomore Jocelyn Thibault tied for second at .917, just ahead of Dallas Stars veteran Andy Moog and Toronto Maple Leafs rookie Damian Rhodes at .915.

Hasek and Belfour were the shutout leaders with five, one more than Carey, Boston Bruins rookie Blaine Lacher, San Jose Sharks Arturs Irbe and Panthers John Vanbiesbrouck.

Jennings Trophy winner Ed Belfour

The goaltenders didn't steal all the headlines, however. There were plenty of great individual performances, including Zhamnov scoring five goals in the Jets' 7-7 tie with the Kings on April 1.

Nordiques Uwe Krupp had the most goals by a defenceman in one game, with three against the Tampa Bay Lightning on March 1. Three other defencemen, Canucks Jeff Brown, Blackhawks Chris Chelios and Rangers Brian Leetch, had five assists in one game last season.

The most points registered in a single game were six, with Stars centre Mike Modano earning two goals and four assists in a 9-2 victory over Anaheim on February 1, while Blackhawks centre Bernie Nicholls had four goals and two assists in a 9-4 victory over Vancouver on February 5.

A number of milestones were reached last season. Penguins winger Luc Robitaille and Sabres centre Pat LaFontaine both reached the 400-goal plateau, while Washington's Dale Hunter, Calgary's Phil Housley, New Jersey's Neal Broten and Boston's Adam Oates each registered his 600th career assist.

Penguins veteran winger Joe Mullen became the first U.S.-born player to reach 1,000 points, while Rangers winger Steve Larmer also recorded his 1,000th point.

There were other notable achievements as well. Rangers captain Mark Messier registered 53 points and moved into a tie for seventh place on the NHL's all-time scoring list with 1,369 career points. Red Wings superstar Paul Coffey led all defencemen in scoring with 58 points. The all-time leader among defencemen in goals, assists and points, Coffey now ranks 10th overall among the League's all-time scoring leaders with his 1,336 career points.

And not to be outdone by his former Oilers teammates, the incomparable Gretzky registered his 2,500th career point with an assist on April 17th in Calgary. In 1,173 games over 16 NHL seasons, the Great One has now amassed an amazing record of 814 goals, 1,692 assists and 2,506 points.

With a shortened season, some teams felt obliged to make big trades in attempts to secure playoff positions. The Montreal Canadiens made two major deals, the first to acquire high-scoring winger Mark Recchi from the Flyers, who received winger John LeClair, defenceman Eric Desjardins and winger Gilbert Dionne in return.

The trade benefited both clubs, but the Flyers were particularly happy with how it affected their team. After the deal was made, the Flyers began to climb in the standings, with LeClair working wonders on a line with Lindros and Mikael Renberg. The line was nicknamed the Legion of Doom.

Just prior to the trade deadline the Canadiens made another blockbuster deal, this time sending captain Kirk Muller and defenceman Mathieu Schneider to the New York Islanders, acquiring centre Pierre Turgeon and defenceman Vladimir Malakhov.

While the addition of Turgeon and Recchi helped make the Canadiens a more dynamic team offensively, they still missed the playoffs for the first time in 25 years.

With one week remaining in the regular season, the playoff races in both conferences were tight. In the East, a total of eight teams were separated by just 10 points in positions five through 12. In the West, four teams were tied for the eighth and final playoff position, and all that separated fourth spot and home-ice advantage and the log jam in eighth were 10 points.

It wasn't until the final night, in fact, that the final playoff positions were resolved, another indication of how intense the shortened season was.

EASTERN CONFERENCE

After missing the playoffs the previous year, the Quebec Nordiques rebounded with an outstanding season under their rookie head coach Marc

Crawford and made their second post-season appearance in eight years, finishing atop the division and conference with 65 points, including 30 wins. Only once during the regular season did the Nordiques lose at home. With several new faces in their lineup, including Wendel Clark, the Nordiques opened the season with a dozen wins in their first 13 games. Sakkie led the attack with 62 points.

Despite not having Lemieux for the entire season and Barrasso for most of it, the Penguins remained a power, finishing second in the conference with 61 points. It took 14 games before the Penguins lost their first game of the season. Jagr assumed a leadership role offensively, while veteran centre Ron Francis was a force at both ends of the rink. Francis finished fifth in the League in scoring with 59 points, while leading the League in plus/minus rating at plus 30.

Employing their usual strong work ethic, the Bruins finished third in the division with 57 points, earning a playoff position for a League-record 28th consecutive season. Oates was the offensive leader, finishing tied for 10th in League scoring with 53 points, while Ray Bourque had another strong year on defence and right winger Cam Neely continued his comeback from knee injuries to produce 27 goals.

The injury bug continued to bite the Sabres last season. They had to play much of the year without their captain LaFontaine, who missed more than a full calendar year with knee problems. But a strong team defence, third best in the League, and outstanding work by Hasek kept the Sabres tough and competitive. With a strong finish, the Sabres were able to finish fourth in the division with 51 points.

Under strong, new management, the Hartford Whalers not only had a different outlook, but had different results on the ice last season. Although they missed the playoffs for the third consecutive year, the Whalers were a vastly improved team under coach Paul Holmgren. They finished fifth in the division with 43 points, just four shy of a playoff spot. The Whalers were competitive from start to finish and got better with each passing game, led by goaltender Sean Burke.

Last season was one of frustration and ultimately change for the Canadiens, who had their streak of 24 consecutive post-season appearances ended. Although strong at home (15-5-4), the Canadiens' downfall was an inability to win on the road, which they did just three times. General manager Serge Savard made a couple of big trades hoping the addition of Turgeon and Recchi would bring firewagon hockey back to Montreal.

The Ottawa Senators finished last in the division for the third consecutive year, but a strong final few weeks raised hopes for the upcoming season. The Senators were .500 over their final 10 games, producing five of their nine wins on the season. Talented youngsters Alexandre Daigle, Alexei Yashin and Radek Bonk gained much-needed experience, while veteran goaltender Don Beaupre provided leadership. He also produced the first shutout in Senators history, a 3-0 victory over Philadelphia on February 6.

That loss to the Senators was one of the very few low moments of the season for the Flyers who, with popular Bob Clarke back as general manager and Terry Murray behind the bench, finished first in the division and third overall in the conference with 60 points. That allowed the Flyers to return to the playoffs for the first time since the 1988-89 season. Lindros was a huge factor in the Flyers resurgence, leading the attack, while LeClair was a nice surprise, contributing 25 goals and 49 points after arriving from Montreal.

After a slow start, the Devils rose steadily through the standings to finish second in the division with 52 points. Under coach Jacques Lemaire, the Devils were again solid defensively ranking fifth in the League. Sophomore goaltender Martin Brodeur had another strong year. The Devils offence was limited, but they received good production from right winger Stephane Richer, who led the team with 23 goals and 39 points.

The arrival of Carey from the minors served as the turning point in Washington. With the youngster rock-solid in goal, the Capitals under coach Jim Schoenfeld managed to finish third in the division with 52 points. With Schoenfeld emphasizing improved defence and Carey inspiring confidence, the Capitals finished with the fourth-best defensive numbers in the League, allowing just 120 goals. Right winger Peter Bondra led the attack with a League-high 34 goals.

The Rangers under new head coach Colin Campbell had difficulty developing any consistency last season and required a strong effort to finish fourth in the division with 47 points and to earn the final playoff position in the conference. The Rangers fell from third best to ninth in the League defensively, allowing 134 goals against, while their 139 goals ranked them only 12th offensively. Messier, who led the team with 53 points, was brilliant down the stretch in getting the Rangers to the playoffs.

The Panthers have the distinction of being the most successful expansion franchise in the first two years of its existence. But that success led to additional frustration. In the final days of the season, the Panthers fell just short of making the playoffs, finishing one point away from the promised land for the second consecutive year. Vanbiesbrouck was outstanding again in goal, as the Panthers tied for sixth best defensively.

Tampa Bay showed signs last season, their third in the NHL, that they might be on the verge of making a move up in the standings. The Lightning under coach Terry Crisp were in the playoff hunt until the final days of the season, although they wound up finishing sixth in the division with 37 points. But the Lightning were very impressed with defenceman Roman Hamrlik, who returned from an off-season knee injury to have a strong year, displaying excellent offensive skills.

The Islanders, with former centre Lorne Henning behind the bench, had hoped they would make big strides last season, as general manager Don Maloney began his overhaul of the roster. Along the way he traded Turgeon for the leadership of Muller and winger Benoit Hogue for goaltending prospect Eric Fichaud. But the Islanders never got on track and wound up finishing last in the division with 35 points. Veteran centre Ray Ferraro led the Islander attack with 22 goals and 43 points.

WESTERN CONFERENCE

The Red Wings entered last season determined to make amends for their early playoff exit the previous spring. That meant making a commitment to playing improved team defence, which they did. The Red Wings were second best in the League, while their 180 goals for ranked them third offensively. They finished first overall in the League with 70 points, including 33 wins. Coffey was a force at both ends of the rink, leading the team with 58 points, while centre Sergei Fedorov, the 1993-94 Hart and Selke Trophy winner, chipped in with 50 points.

With Mike Keenan as coach and general manager and with several new faces in the lineup, the St. Louis Blues got off to the second best start in franchise history and proceeded to finish with the second-best record in the division and conference with 61 points. Still strong defensively with Curtis Joseph in goal, the Blues were strong on the attack, too, scoring 178 goals, fourth best in the League. Not surprisingly, right winger Brett Hull led the way with 29 goals and 50 points.

A model of consistency, the Blackhawks qualified for the playoffs for the 26th consecutive year, finishing third in the division with 53 points. It was an unusual season for the Blackhawks, however. They started fast, endured a 13-game winless streak which coincided with centre Jeremy Roenick being sidelined with a knee injury, then finished the season unbeaten in their final five games. The one consistent area was team defence, with Belfour and Chelios having outstanding seasons.

Maple Leafs coach Pat Burns admitted that his team never really got comfortable with the shortened season. At various points in the season, after making several off-season roster moves, the Joe Sakic: 62 points, fourth best in League

Maple Leafs had as many as 11 new faces in their lineup, including centre Mats Sundin, who led the team in scoring with 23 goals and 47 points. But the Leafs never won more than two consecutive games and wound up finishing fourth in the division with 50 points.

Injury played a key factor in the Stars falling from third to fifth in the division, finishing with 42 points. The Stars lost superstar centre Mike Modano for the final 14 games with ankle problems. Prior to the season opener general manager-coach Bob Gainey tried to change the chemistry of his team, trading captain Mark Tinordi for Kevin Hatcher. At the trade deadline he traded Russ Courtnall for Greg Adams. But the Stars, who were still strong defensively, allowing just 135 goals, never could overcome the loss of their best player.

With his best player healthy again, Winnipeg general manager and coach John Paddock expected his team to bounce back from an off season. But Paddock, admittedly, was disappointed. Despite the presence of Teemu Selanne, who had missed much of the previous season, the Jets struggled, eventually finishing sixth in the division with 39 points. In the final month, Paddock replaced himself as coach with assistant Terry Simpson. The Jets improved, but not enough to earn a playoff position. One bright spot was Zhamnov, who led the team in scoring with 65 points, third in the League.

Despite several major roster moves, with Kidd replacing the veteran Vernon in goal and defence-man Housley replacing Al MacInnis on the blueline, the Flames were able to finish in first place again in the division, this time with 55 points. Kidd posted 22 wins and Housley was a club-high plus 17. The Flames received an outstanding season from diminutive right winger Theoren Fleury, who led the team with 29 goals and 58 points.

As they did the previous year, Vancouver, under new head coach Rick Ley, struggled for much of last season before coming on late to finish second in the division. The Canucks finished with 48 points, the 500 pace essentially the same as the previous year. Left winger Pavel Bure led the team in scoring with 20 goals and 43 points, while captain Trevor Linden added 40 points. Russ Courtnall chipped in 18 points in his 13 games with the Canucks.

On the heels of an amazing season, in which they improved by 58 points, San Jose overhauled a large part of their roster last season but still managed to finish third in the division with 42 points. The Sharks moved several veteran players, allowing their talented youngsters to play more. They also acquired an offensive leader in Craig Janney, who was second in scoring with 27 points in 35 games. The Sharks weren't as good defensively as the previous year, finishing 21st, although goaltender Ibré had flashes of brilliance.

The Kings promised to be bigger, tougher and better last season. Two out of three wasn't good enough. Hampered by injuries on the blueline, they finished fourth in the division with 41 points and missed the playoffs for the second consecutive season. The Kings allowed a whopping 174 goals, tied for third most in the League. Gretzky led a limited attack with 48 points. The Kings made a push for a playoff spot, replacing coach Barry Melrose with former general manager Rogie Vachon, but fell short on the final night of the season.

Several times last season the Oilers thought their rebuilding program was on fast forward. But with youth comes growing pains and the Oilers again missed the playoffs, finishing fifth in the division with 38 points. After replacing rookie coach George Burnett at the trade deadline, the Oilers made a push to the playoffs under Ron Low, but were eliminated in the final week. But hopes are high, mainly because of goaltender Bill Ranford and centre Jason Arnott. Both impressed again.

The Mighty Ducks of Anaheim were again competitive in their second NHL season, but they lacked the overall depth to earn a playoff position. They finished sixth in the division, one point behind the Oilers. But the Mighty Ducks were mightily impressed with rookie winger Paul Kariya, who led the club in scoring with 18 goals and 39 points. As a team the Mighty Ducks scored just 125 goals, tied for fourth fewest in the League.

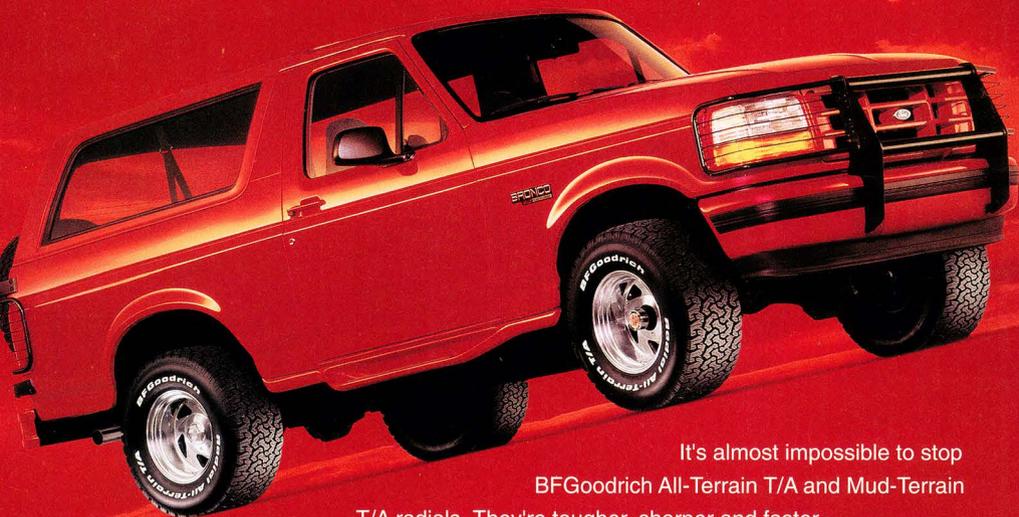

As for this season, the 79th in the NHL, there will be some adjustments. The regular season will consist of 82 games per team, with the two neutral-site games deleted. An influx of local funds managed to keep the Jets in Winnipeg, but the Nordiques will have a new home and a new name in Denver and a new division in which to play.

It's expected, too, that the likes of Lindros and Jagr will only get better and will continue to dominate, especially with the League's Board of Governors poised to push the officials to enforce rules to reduce holding and interference. If that happens, the goal scorers, not the goaltenders, may re-emerge as the big stars.

Easton's advanced stick design for maximum puck velocity.
The beauty of it escapes most goalies.

 EASTON[®]

Easton's UltraLite

Easton's exclusive method of compression molding delivers ultimate shaft performance, shot after shot, game after game.

Hand wrapped layers of graphite provide optimal strength, stability and power.

Woven Kevlar® layers eliminate stress fracturing.

Easton's unique vibration-smothering design.

Clear coat finish for smooth, softer handling.

One of Easton's lightest shafts at 300 grams, delivers unprecedented blade quickness and puck speed.

Pro proven and preferred!

All The Edge You Need.

The more things change, the more things look like the New Dodge.
So look for the next new Dodge, coming soon to your Dodge dealer.

The New Dodge Caravan. We thought of everything.
No wonder it's just as original as the original.

Gen engine

Dodge Stratus. We questioned everything.
Which will explain why this car is so full of answers.

Dodge Avenger. It's the kind of car that could get by on looks alone.
We engineered it so it would never have to.

Dodge Viper RT/10. We used a ten cylinder, 400 hp engine to bring the American roadster back up to speed.

Dodge Intrepid. Its cab-forward design changed everything. Including the very architecture of the American sedan.

eering.

Dodge Ram Pickup. The rules have changed. From its safety features, to its comfortable ride, to its powerful line of Magnum engines.

Dodge Neon. We took cab-forward and gave it a whole new personality. And the longer you look at it, the brighter it gets.

The New Dodge

WHAT'S your BUSINESS ADVANTAGE?

BRENT RADOSKI, GENERAL MANAGER, SWEEPRITE INC.

"This is a Canadian-based company and we're very proud of that fact. This is not, however, a company whose sole focus is Canada. We sell sweepers all over the world.

"As a result, long distance is a tremendously important part of our business.

"And in that sense, it's not just a cost of doing business. It's an investment in doing business. It is absolutely integral to our growth as a vital, flourishing company in the next ten years.

"Having said all that, I'm still an accountant, and I'm not giving anybody a blank cheque. The Advantage Savings Plan allows us to keep a rein on costs. In the past we were paying on average more than $1500/month for long distance.

With Advantage, that figure is now closer to $800. The money we save goes into contacting more new customers and contacting our existing customers more often.

"I'm always watching costs. And this is one of those cases where I like what I see."

If you'd like to keep a closer eye on costs,

ROOKIE AWARD TO FORSBERG

Forsberg becomes first Swedish player to capture Calder Trophy as League's outstanding freshman

There was a time last season when Peter Forsberg thought the only thing he might wind up getting would be a ticket to the minors.

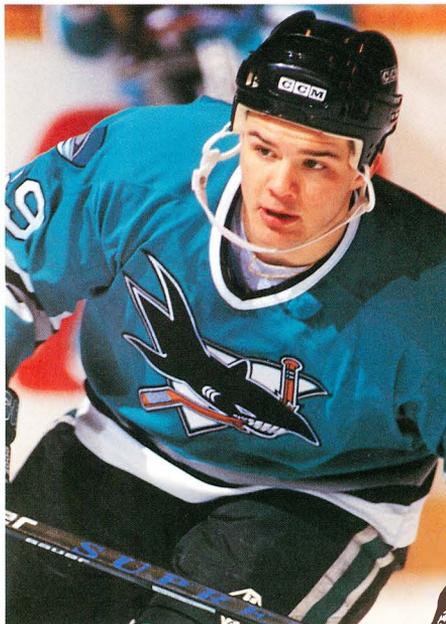

The Calder Memorial Trophy was the furthest thing from his mind.

"At the beginning of the season I didn't play very well at all," admitted Forsberg. "For a while I felt at any minute I might be sent to the farm team.

"But the big reason I was able to win this award is because the team did well and I could work on my play. But I was really surprised to win."

Anaheim winger Paul Kariya: second in rookie scoring with 39 points

San Jose winger Jeff Friesen: 15 goals and 25 points in 48 games

Forsberg, who led all rookies in the League in scoring with 50 points, including 15 goals, and in plus/minus rating with plus 17, was named the Calder Trophy winner as "the player selected as the most proficient in his first year of competition."

He was the fourth Swedish player to be named a Calder finalist, joining Mikael Renberg (3rd, 1994), Nicklas Lidstrom (2nd, 1992) and Kjell Dahlin (3rd, 1986), but the first to win the award.

"That's a big thing back home," said Forsberg. "To be the first Swedish winner means a lot to me and to the Swedish people."

Forsberg debuted with the Quebec Nordiques after spending four years with MoDo in the Swedish League and with Swedish National teams at the international level. He was selected by the Philadelphia Flyers sixth overall in the 1991 Entry Draft, but was traded to the Nordiques as part of the deal that landed the Flyers centre Eric Lindros. Ironically, Lindros won the Hart Trophy as the League's most valuable player just minutes after Forsberg won the Calder.

In the voting, Forsberg earned 71 points, including 13 of a possible 15 first-place votes.

Runner-up was Washington Capitals goaltender Jim Carey, who was also a finalist for the Vezina Trophy. Carey appeared in 28 games for the Capitals, posting an 18-6-3 record with a 2.13 goals-against average and a .913 save percentage after being called up from the minors.

Interestingly, Carey was named the winner of the Bastien and Garrett awards as the AHL's top goaltender and top rookie respectively for his work in 55 games with the Portland Pirates.

Carey earned 41 voting points, including two first-place votes, while in third place was left winger Paul Kariya of the Mighty Ducks of Anaheim with 21 voting points.

Kariya, who was the Mighty Ducks' first choice, fourth overall, in 1993, finished second in rookie scoring with 39 points, including 18 goals, in 47 games. He was the only rookie in the League to lead his team in scoring. He also led the Mighty Ducks in games played, goals, power-play goals and shots.

Forsberg, Carey and Kariya were all named to the 1994-95 Upper Deck/NHL All-Rookie Team.

Also named at forward was San Jose Sharks speedster Jeff Friesen. He tied for third in team scoring with 25 points, including a club-high 15 goals, in 48 games.

Rounding out the roster on defence were Chris Therien of the Flyers and Kenny Jonsson of the Toronto Maple Leafs. Jonsson had nine points in 39 games while Therien topped all rookie defencemen with 13 points and a solid plus-eight rating in his 48 games with Philadelphia.

The Folks At Apple Wanted Doors.

So Why In The World Would They Come To A Furniture Company?

Apple Computer didn't so much need furniture as they needed solutions.

For years, Apple's corporate culture has been built around open plan. But in their new R&D complex, their 2,000 engineers wanted the privacy and flexibility of private offices with doors. Something had to give.

For answers, they came to Steelcase. We shared our research in office trends. Showed them how other companies the world over are addressing privacy issues. And worked with them to develop just the right scheme to help both the people and the organization work more effectively.

As Apple VP Glenn Barber says, "We liked their furniture. But the real value in working with Steelcase was their willingness to collaborate on solutions for our problems."

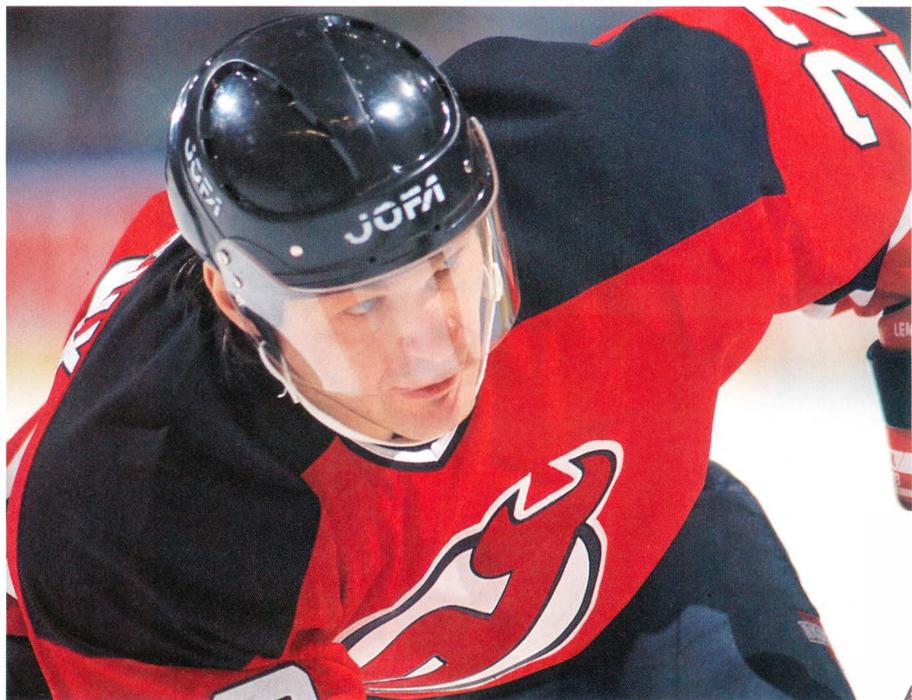

Guess you could say that at Steelcase, Apple found an open door.

PLAYOFF
REVIEW

Lemieux is Conn Smythe winner as New Jersey captures first Championship in club history

Jacques Lemaire had won eight Stanley Cup rings as a player. And each of those eight championship rings, Lemaire admitted, carried with it a special memory. But there has only been one that he has worn.

It was his fifth, the one he got 19 years ago when the Montreal Canadiens silenced the two-time defending champion Philadelphia Flyers in the 1976 Final. Before the series, the Flyers had boldly predicted they would win in four games. Instead, it was the Canadiens who won in four.

"That one," said Lemaire, "was special."

But Lemaire might now have a Stanley Cup ring, his ninth, that is just as special in its own way.

It is the one he earned last season as head coach of the New Jersey Devils, who silenced their doubters in defeating the powerful Detroit Red Wings in four straight games. It was the first Stanley Cup Championship in the 21-year history of the franchise, which began in Kansas City and then moved to Denver before finally settling in New Jersey 13 years ago.

"This team never had respect from anyone," said Lemaire. "I thought the guys deserved a little more from the opponents. That's why the guys were so aggressive on the ice. They showed every game they were mad."

Indeed, the Devils displayed they were not only a determined team but a talented one, too, playing the tight defensive system Lemaire had installed.

Throughout the playoffs, the Devils were dominant. Their mighty run began with a five-game victory over the Boston Bruins, then another five-game win over the Pittsburgh Penguins and a six-game triumph over the Flyers before they swept the Red Wings.

Along the way, the Devils were outshot in only three of their 20 games. They won a record 10 times on the road, including a record seven consecutive. They also set a league record with 16 road victories in consecutive playoff years.

The Devils won all four rounds without home-ice advantage. No other team has ever managed that. They limited their opponents to two or fewer goals 16 times, including the final six games. They allowed three goals or fewer in all but one game.

Perhaps the most impressive series victory, though, was the last one against the Red Wings, who scored just seven goals in the series and had no more than two on any night.

"Now they're good," said Lemaire of his team, refusing to give that credit until they had won.

"We swept Detroit," said Devils winger Claude Lemieux, who led all playoff scorers with 13 goals. Lemieux was awarded the Conn Smythe Trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the playoffs in voting by a panel of members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association. "We deserve this. I won the Stanley Cup in 1986 with Montreal, but this one is different. It was the Canadiens' 23rd Cup. It was part of the tradition. In New Jersey, we're building a tradition."

Indeed, the Devils became just the 12th team among the League's 26 to win the Stanley Cup.

Lemieux was a key element in the victory. He was clearly an offensive threat with 16 points in 20 games, but was also a standout defensively. Along the way he was assigned to check the likes of Cam Neely, Jaromir Jagr and Eric Lindros, and wound up outscoring them all.

The win was especially satisfying for three veterans who had been with the team since 1983. John MacLean, Ken Daneyko and Bruce Driver had seen a lot of losing and had heard a lot of snickers over the years. They had also endured agonizing seven-game losses in the Conference Final in 1988 and again in 1994 when they were beaten by the New York Rangers in double overtime in the seventh game.

"It was a long time coming," said Daneyko. "I'm just so proud to be a part of it."

It was truly a team victory for the Devils, who received points from 22 of the 24 players who dressed during the playoffs.

"Congratulations," began NHL Commissioner Gary Bettman as he called upon team captain Scott Stevens to accept the Stanley Cup. "You have brought the term 'team work' to a new level. Scott Stevens, this is for you."

And all the Devils.

There was little doubt that defence was the key to the Devils' success. Playing at his best and with the team dedicated to its system, goaltender Martin Brodeur finished the post-season with an outstanding 1.67 goals-against average in 20 games, in which he was 16-4 with three shutouts and a .927 save percentage.

With the victory, Lemaire became just the 13th man to win as both a player and a coach. And he did it against the man he says had the greatest influence on his hockey career, Scott Bowman.

And after it was over, ironically enough, Bowman compared what the Canadiens did to the Flyers 19 years earlier with what the Devils did to his team in this series.

"The feeling I had tonight, I look at these guys like they are my kids," said Lemaire. "I'm proud and happy for them."

"I've been talking to them all year about winning the Stanley Cup and what it takes. This year we just took over. We kept talking about what it's like to win in the playoffs. When the team started to believe they became very hard to stop. When everyone is focused, when everyone is going in the same direction, it's not easy to keep them down.

"Now they're on top of the world. This is great."

But as with anything good, it took a lot of hard work and dedication along the road to the Stanley Cup before the Devils finally got to the top...

EASTERN CONFERENCE QUARTER-FINALS

It may have been a struggle getting to the playoffs, but when they arrived the Rangers were ready for the talented and hungry Quebec Nordiques. Despite losing the series opener on a Joe Sakic goal with 38 seconds remaining, the Rangers bounced back strong. They won Game 2 by an 8-3 count, this time scoring four times in the third period to protect their lead. Back on home ice, the Rangers won Game 3 by a 4-3 score, then overcame a 2-0 deficit in Game 4 to win in overtime on a goal by Steve Lamer. The Nordiques refused to quit and forced a sixth game, but the Rangers took an early 3-0 lead in that one and coasted to victory.

The Flyers knew they could win with Lindros. They found out they could do it without him, too. With Lindros sidelined for the first three games of the series with an eye injury, the Flyers still managed to take control of the series, winning the opener in overtime 4-3 on Karl Dykhuis' goal. With goaltender Ron Hextall sharp, the Flyers won Game 2 by a 3-1 score, before the Buffalo Sabres rallied at home to win 3-1 in Game 3. But just when the Sabres' hopes were buoyed, so too were the Flyers'. Lindros returned and led his team to 4-2 and 6-4 victories, prompting Sabres coach John Muckler to call him "the best player in the world right now."

After being upset by the Washington Capitals the previous spring, the Penguins were bent on revenge. It didn't come easily, however. In the series opener, the Capitals overcame a 3-1 deficit to win 5-4.

It appeared they might leave Pittsburgh with a 2-0 series lead, but they allowed a 3-1 lead to vanish in Game 2 and wound up losing 5-3. But the Capitals bounced back with a pair of 6-2 wins and were within a goal of winning the series in Game 5, when Luc Robitaille scored in overtime to give the Penguins a 6-5 win. The Penguins won handily, 7-1, to force a seventh game, which they also won, 3-0, marking the second time in four years they trailed the Capitals 3-1 in a series but recovered to win.

After taking the final four games of the Eastern Conference semi-finals from the Bruins the previous spring, the Devils picked up where they left off, winning the first two games of the series in Boston, outscoring the Bruins 8-0 in the process. The Devils checkers, notably winger Lemieux, clearly got the better of the Bruins big scorers. The Bruins finally solved Brodeur in Game 3, winning 3-2. But the Devils, on a goal by Randy McKay, bounced back with a 1-0 overtime win and ended the series with a 3-2 victory in Game 5 — the last playoff game to be played at the historic Boston Garden.

WESTERN CONFERENCE QUARTER-FINALS

After two consecutive springs of being upset in seven games in the opening round, the Red Wings were determined to get things right this time. And so they did. Although they only won the series opener 4-3, the Red Wings dominated the Dallas Stars. In the second game, the power play took charge and helped to create a 4-1 victory. After easily winning Game 3, the Red Wings were poised for a sweep but were instead surprised by the Stars, who defeated Detroit for the first time in nine tries, 4-1. But that only prolonged the inevitable, with the Red Wings winning the fifth game 3-1. "It's a big relief," sighed winger Dino Ciccarelli afterward.

Just as they had the previous spring, the San Jose Sharks opened the playoffs with a Game 1 upset win. There were more to follow. In the series opener, given little chance of prevailing as they had the previous year against Detroit, the Sharks produced a stunning 5-4 win over the Calgary Flames. The Sharks surprised again in Game 2, with Ulf Dahlen scoring the winner in overtime. The Flames bounced back, though, with three consecutive, convincing wins led by Theoren Fleury, and in the process tied an NHL team record with five shorthand goals. But there was more magic left in the Sharks, who won the sixth game 5-3 with replacement Wade Flaherty in goal. They stunned the Flames in Game 7 when Ray Whitney scored the winner at 1:54 of the second overtime.

This series promised to be hard-nosed and hard fought. The St. Louis Blues and Vancouver Canucks didn't disappoint. In the opener, the Blues used a couple of power-play goals to eke out a 2-1 victory, but the Canucks, led by Russ Courtnall's four-point effort, won the second game 5-3. Back at home, the Canucks won 6-1, but the Blues earned a split when Brendan Shanahan's three-goal effort helped produce a 5-2 win. The Canucks took Game 5, with Cliff Ronning scoring his second of the game at 1:48 of overtime. But just when it appeared the Blues might be done, they orchestrated an 8-2 win in Vancouver to force a seventh game. With Kirk McLean making 41 saves and with a League-record sixth shorthand goal of the series, the Canucks defeated the Blues 5-3.

So much for home-ice advantage. The Chicago Blackhawks had it in this series, but the Toronto Maple Leafs stole it with 5-3 and 3-0 victories in the first two games in Chicago. No problem, however. The series moved to Toronto, where the Blackhawks won 3-2 and 3-1. That's when home ice began to count. The Blackhawks eased ahead with a 4-2 win in Game 5, but the Leafs forced a seventh game when, after allowing a 4-1 lead to disappear in the third period, Randy Wood scored 10 minutes into overtime to give the Leafs a 5-4 win. In Game 7, the Blackhawks built a 2-1 lead after two periods and went on to win 5-2, marking the first time they had won a series in three years.

EASTERN CONFERENCE SEMI-FINALS

In the opening round, the Rangers allowed leads to vanish but still lived to talk about it. Not so against the Flyers. This time they lived to regret it.

In the series opener, the Rangers led 2-0 after one period and were up 3-1 in the second, but the Flyers drew even. The Rangers had to do some scrambling themselves to erase a 4-3 deficit in the third period, but they were beaten in overtime when Eric Desjardins' point shot at 7:03 gave the Flyers a 5-4 win.

The story-line was much the same in Game 2. The Rangers led 2-0 after the first period, but this time fell behind 3-2 in the third, forced overtime when Brian Leetch scored his third goal of the game, but lost when defenceman Kevin Haller scored.

Rangers coach Colin Campbell expected better back home in Game 3, but instead received what he called "a stinker." The Rangers were mediocre at the start and never got better. The Flyers opened a 4-0 lead and wound up winning 5-2.

"After two good games," began Campbell, "we absolutely had a stinker. These things shouldn't happen in the playoffs."

The Flyers, led by the imposing Lindros, made short work of the defending Stanley Cup Champions, winning the fourth game 4-1. In the series sweep, the Flyers defencemen scored seven of the 18 goals.

"We've got something to celebrate, that's for sure," said Desjardins. "We beat the Stanley Cup Champions. But really, it's nothing. Our season is far from over."

After rallying to win their opening round, the Penguins continued their heroics in this series opener. Robitaille scored with 1:16 remaining in regulation time to give the Penguins a 3-2 victory, but this was a game the Devils deserved to win.

They quickly made amends. In Game 2, winless in four tries against the Penguins, the Devils twice allowed leads to slip away, but Scott Stevens scored the winning goal with 29 seconds left in regulation.

Back home, the Devils scored three goals in the second period to open a 3-1 lead and cruised to a 5-1 victory. Victory was much harder to come by in Game 4, but Neal Broten scored his second of the game on a rebound 18:36 into overtime, giving the Devils a 2-1 win.

They wrapped up the series in Pittsburgh, winning 4-1, with Lemieux scoring the winning goal in the second period. But the big difference in the series was Brodeur, whose goals-against average dropped to a stunning 1.25, then the lowest in NHL history for 10 or more appearances.

"He was the difference," said Devils defenceman Shawn Chambers. "That's the bottom line."

WESTERN CONFERENCE SEMI-FINALS

It didn't take long for two things to become fairly obvious in this series: The Red Wings hadn't forgotten what had happened the previous spring against the Sharks. They hadn't forgiven, either.

The Red Wings were merciless against the Sharks, who were outplayed from start to finish. In Game 1, the Red Wings outshot the Sharks 33-15, and put six shots behind Flaherty.

In Game 2, it was much the same. Only this time the Red Wings, after opening up a 6-0 lead, surrendered a couple of late goals.

The series switched to San Jose for the next two games, but nothing else changed. In Game 3, the Red Wings outshot the Sharks 36-12, allowed them just one shot on six power-play opportunities, and easily won 6-2.

The Red Wings got their final revenge in Game 4 with another 6-2 victory. In the series, the Red Wings outshot the Sharks 147-61 and outscored them 24-6.

"You can see why they're the favourite to win the Stanley Cup," said Sharks winger Chris Tancill. "They've got everything."

That included defenceman Paul Coffey who, with a goal in Game 4, moved past Denis Potvin to become the highest scoring defenceman in playoff history with 166 points and counting.

Having followed the same course as the previous season, with a mediocre regular season followed by a seven-game upset in the opening round, the Canucks were poised for another long playoff run.

But the Blackhawks were not obliging.

It appeared early in the opening game of the series that the Canucks would dominate, but after taking a 1-0 lead their scoring dried up. The Blackhawks eventually won the game 2-1, when Joe Murphy scored a power-play goal at 9:04 of overtime with Russ Courtnall in the penalty box.

In the second game, the Canucks' scoring drought continued. They managed just 17 shots and none got past goaltender Ed Belfour as the Blackhawks, with centre Jeremy Roenick playing his first game of the playoffs, won 2-0.

Back home in Vancouver, the Canucks found a way to beat Belfour, but they couldn't find a way to stop Blackhawks defenceman Chris Chelios, at least not in overtime.

In Game 3, the Blackhawks forced overtime when former Canucks winger Murray Craven scored with 45 seconds left in the third period, then won it on Chelios' goal at 6:22.

EASTERN CONFERENCE FINAL

The drive from the Meadowlands in New Jersey down to the Spectrum in Philadelphia takes just about two hours. But on the ice the Devils and Flyers were even more miles apart.

In the series opener, the Devils played their suffocating defensive style to perfection, allowing the Flyers just 21 shots and one goal. The result was a convincing 4-1 victory.

"It was our worst-case scenario," said Flyers coach Terry Murray afterward. "Everything fell apart."

It was no better in Game 2 in the Spectrum. In fact, it got worse for the Flyers, who stormed out to 1-0 and 2-1 leads but could not hold them. By the end of the first period, the Devils had evened the score at 2-2 and never looked back as they coasted to a 5-2 victory.

The Devils scored three of their goals on the power play and scored all five goals on just 16 shots on Hextall.

"I didn't play great," admitted Hextall.

Much of the reason the Devils had been so successful was their ability to shut down Lindros, who had scored just once in the opening two games. The Devils were doing a pretty good job of it in Game 3 as well when suddenly everything began to unravel.

Flyers centre Rod Brind'Amour tied the game at 2-2 in the third period, his bouncing shot sneaking by Brodeur. Then Lindros had a dream come true when he scored the winning goal at 4:19 of overtime.

"It's every kid's dream," said Lindros. "In my mind I've scored that goal a million times before."

The Flyers made it a sweep at the Meadowlands with a 4-2 win in Game 4. It was a victory that was impressive in both style and substance. The Flyers worked hard, built a lead and received excellent goaltending from Hextall, who made 32 saves. They also managed to get to Brodeur, who allowed the four goals on 17 shots and was lifted in the third period.

The four goals were also the most the Devils, who played the game without Stephane Richer and Driver, had allowed all spring. They hadn't lost twice in a row, either.

That losing streak came to an abrupt halt, though, when the Devils, on a goal by Lemieux with 45 seconds remaining in regulation time, continued the trend of winning on the road, this time beating the Flyers 3-2. It was the third road win of the series for the Devils and their eighth of the playoffs, tying a League record.

The Devils finally reversed the home-ice disadvantage trend in Game 6 and with an inspired effort overcame a one-goal deficit in the first period to defeat the Flyers, 4-2, to capture the series.

"I can't imagine a better feeling than this," said Daneyko.

"It has been my goal to win a Cup with this team," said MacLean. "Now I have that opportunity."

With the victory, the Devils advanced to the Stanley Cup Final for the first time. Twice, including the previous spring, they had advanced to the Conference Final only to lose in seven games.

"This is our time," said Daneyko.

WESTERN CONFERENCE FINAL

After winning three of their previous four games in overtime, it figured the odds would eventually catch up with the Blackhawks. They finally did.

In fact, it happened in the series opener between these Original Six rivals. The Red Wings, who trailed by a goal after one period, required overtime to defeat the Blackhawks, with defenceman Nicklas Lidstrom giving them a 2-1 victory with a goal 61 seconds into the extra period. It was the first time in 35 years that the Red Wings had won an overtime game on home ice.

"It was pure hockey, just like the good old days," said coach Bowman.

It was much the same in the second game, the Blackhawks again taking a first-period lead only to see it disappear. But this time the scenario was worse. The Blackhawks led 2-1 after two periods, but a goal by Doug Brown tied it in the third and Kris Draper won it for the Red Wings with just 1:45 left in regulation time.

Matters didn't improve for the Blackhawks in Game 3 in Chicago. They again opened the scoring, but lost the lead. They were ahead 2-1 in the second period, but that lead disappeared when Stu Grimson scored his first-ever playoff goal on his first shift of the series.

After the Red Wings went ahead, the Blackhawks forced overtime but were beaten when a wrist shot by defenceman Vladimir Konstantinov glanced in off the arm of Belfour at 9:25 of the second overtime period.

"He didn't even know he had scored," said Ciccarelli. "I had to tell him, but he didn't believe me at first."

The win, of course, gave the Red Wings a 3-0 series lead, but the series was really much closer than that. Consider that no team had more than a one-goal lead and all three games were settled by one goal, including two in overtime and one with 1:45 to play.

That offered some encouragement to the Blackhawks, who played their best game in Game 4. With Denis Savard and Murphy scoring twice each, the Blackhawks won 5-2, ending the Red Wings' eight-game winning streak and chasing goaltender Mike Vernon in the process.

This game also marked the return of Detroit captain Steve Yzerman, who had been out with knee problems, although Sergei Fedorov was lost with a shoulder injury. Game 4 was played before 22,738 fans, the largest gathering in Chicago's club history.

Twice beaten in overtime, the Blackhawks lost for a third time that way in Game 5 back in Detroit. Red Wings winger Viacheslav Kozlov scored at 2:25 of the second overtime period to give them a 2-1 victory and to send Detroit to the Stanley Cup Final for the first time in 29 years.

"That's what we dreamed about," said Vernon, "and now it's here."

STANLEY CUP CHAMPIONSHIP

If there were any doubts that the Devils were a legitimate contender for the title, they were quickly erased. If seeing is believing, then the Red Wings quickly became believers.

Playing their tight defensive style, the Devils thoroughly shut-down the Red Wings in the series opener, allowing Detroit a season-low 17 shots en route to a 2-1 victory at Joe Louis Arena.

After feeling each other out in the first period, the two teams settled in for the second period, with penalties a key factor. The Devils opened the scoring with a powerplay goal from Richer, but the Red Wings tied it a few minutes later on Ciccarelli's power-play goal.

At 3:17 of the third period, Lemieux gave the Devils a lead they would not relinquish. In fact, the Red Wings barely managed any shots on Brodeur, going one stretch of almost nine minutes without a single shot.

Coffey had harsh words for himself and his teammates in the two off days that preceded Game 2. He urged everyone, including the Red Wings' best players, to take their game to another level.

The Red Wings did, but so too did the Devils.

Despite the heroics of Fedorov, who scored what could have been the winning goal, assisted on another and almost scored still another, the Red Wings lost 4-2.

New Jersey Devils hoist the Stanley Cup for the first time in club history.

As for the Devils, they allowed the Red Wings just 18 shots, one more than in Game 1. Twice in this game the Red Wings led, including a 2-1 lead early in the third period. But eight minutes later Devils defenceman Scott Niedermayer, looking a lot like a young Coffey, danced by an older Coffey to tie it up again.

The winning goal arrived with 1:24 remaining. Coffey had gone down to block a shot, injured his leg and was unable to regain his feet. While Coffey was down Jim Dowd, who hadn't dressed in Game 1, put the Red Wings out, scoring the winning goal.

The Red Wings admitted that Niedermayer's goal was almost as deflating as the winner because during the regular season they were 26-0-2 leading after two periods. In the playoffs it was 9-0. The Fedorov goal came 1:36 into the third period, which was just like leading after two.

"It wasn't a very good feeling," admitted Coffey. "We're wounded a bit, no doubt, but it's not over. I think we'll keep playing hard. But who knows what the results will be?"

"I thought we were really starting to play in the third period," said Bowman. "But when you get in that position you have to be able to protect leads. That was one of the strong points of our team."

But the Devils proved they were as good at overcoming leads as they were at protecting them.

The Devils also proved in Game 3 that they didn't have to just play great defence to win. They didn't like opening it up, but they could do it and still survive. Playing a lot more like the Red Wings, the Devils easily won Game 3 by a 5-2 score.

"We can't beat them at their own game, not over the long run," said Lemaire. "But I think we played close to a perfect game."

After a brief Red Wings flurry in the early minutes, the Devils slowed down the game a bit and owned it in every way.

The Devils allowed the Red Wings just seven shots in the first period, in which they took a 2-0 lead. In the second, before the period was nine minutes old, the Devils had doubled their lead and Bowman was crediting his team with serving up the most embarrassing Finals game in his career.

That period the Red Wings managed just five shots, meaning that for 11 consecutive periods and for 16 of the previous 17, the Devils had not allowed more than seven shots.

"It was a total shut-down," said Bowman. "The Devils won every aspect of the game. Maybe they found out they could have success playing this way, too. They came at us all night. And they wanted it a lot more than we did."

Incredibly, the Devils were an even hungrier team in Game 4, although the Red Wings showed they possessed a great deal of pride.

Responding to the criticisms of their coach, the Red Wings bounced back with arguably their best period of the playoffs to open the fourth game. They overcame an early deficit and with goals from Fedorov and Coffey took a lead midway through the period. But before it was over Chambers had tied it for the Devils, who took complete charge of the game from that point on.

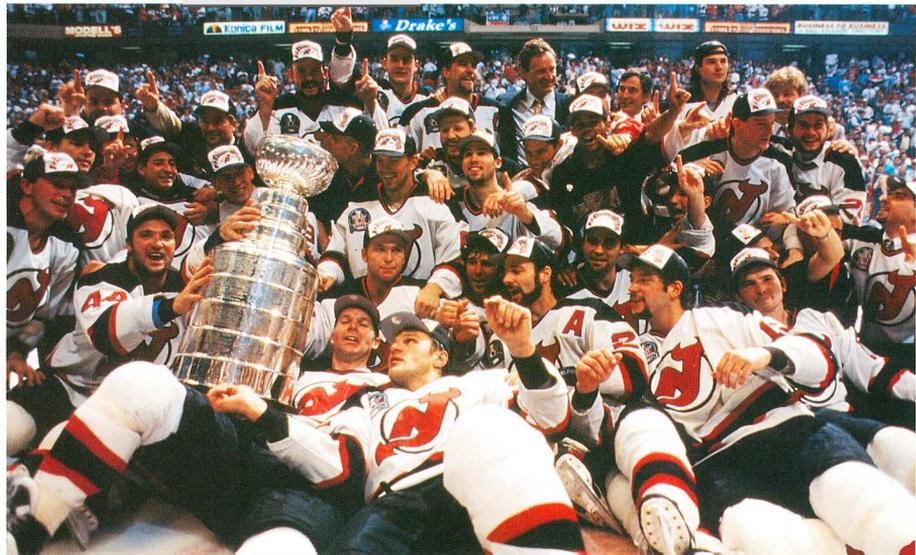

The Devils, led by Broten, scored once in the second and twice more in the third, allowing the Red Wings just one shot over the final 20 minutes, to win the game 5-2 and to sweep to their first championship in the 21-year history of the franchise.

"We ran into a team playing very well," said Bowman. "They play good tough defence and when you do that you're going to win a lot of games and a championship."

Not in his worst nightmares could Bowman have envisioned his Red Wings being swept, but in these playoffs with the Devils, seeing really was believing.

"To be part of a team that won the first Stanley Cup in New Jersey," enthused Lemieux, "well, it's unbelievable. Who would have thought? It's a dream come true."

And Lemaire has the ring to prove it.

Berard selected first overall by Senators; top three choices in Entry Draft are defencemen

Bryan Berard was the most popular player at the 1995 Entry Draft in Edmonton.

The top-rated prospect in the Draft, the 6-foot-1, 190-pound defenceman from the Detroit Junior Red Wings, was the first player selected overall by the Ottawa Senators.

"You can't pass on the upside of a Bryan Berard," said Senators general manager Randy Sexton. "We always complain about players not being complete. They're either skilled but too small, or big but not fast enough. Bryan has components in his game you just can't teach."

Several other teams realized that, too. In the days and hours leading up to the Draft, Sexton admitted he had received several interesting trade offers for his number one selection. Berard was that popular.

"I just want a chance to play in the NHL," said Berard, a native of Woonsocket, Rhode Island, and the third American to be selected first overall in the 33-year history of the Draft.

Mike Modano of the Dallas Stars was selected first overall in 1988 and Brian Lawton was taken first by the Minnesota North Stars in 1983.

Interestingly, Berard and Lawton, who played high-school hockey at the same school, are friends.

"I know this is the first step," said Berard, "but hopefully one day I'll get to step on the ice and play in the NHL. It's up to me to work hard and realize my potential."

For the first time, the National Hockey League used a Draft Drawing to determine the draft order for the 10 teams that missed the playoffs. In determining the order, the system is weighted to favour teams with the fewest points, but there are no guarantees.

Ottawa had the fewest number of points, followed by the New York Islanders, who did draft second. The Los Angeles Kings, who under the old system would have picked seventh, were vaulted into third spot by winning the Drawing.

With the second pick overall, the Islanders selected Brandon Wheat Kings defenceman Wade Redden, while the Kings followed by making defenceman Aki-Petteri Berg the highest selected Finnish player ever.

It was also the first time ever that the first three picks were all defencemen.

Selected fourth by the Mighty Ducks of Anaheim was Kingston centre Chad Kilger, while the Tampa Bay Lightning took Tri-City centre Daymond Langkow with the fifth pick and the Edmonton Oilers took Prince Albert centre Steve Kelly with the sixth.

In total, nine defencemen, four goaltenders and 13 forwards were selected in the first round. This year the Draft was reduced from 11 to nine rounds, with the age of eligibility raised to 19, although 18 year olds were allowed to opt in.

There were some interesting moments leading up to the Draft. Several players from the 1993 Draft were eligible for re-entry into the 1995 Draft if they weren't signed by midnight the night before. Two of the more prominent names in that group were defenceman Brendan Witt and centre Todd Bertuzzi. But just prior to the deadline, Witt came to terms with the Washington Capitals, while Bertuzzi signed with the Islanders.

No one can accuse the Mighty Ducks of flying south in rough going, as they came close to the playoffs for the second time in as many seasons of operation.

They could even be headed north when the next post-season begins, considering they missed a spot by just five points in Year 2.

The encouraging signs were once again evident, beginning with an 11-9-4 record at home (8-4 in the last 12 games), 11-10-3 against the Pacific Division and 13-5-2 when scoring first.

But scoring remains the club's biggest obstacle to winning more of their tight encounters.

Anaheim had just 125 goals, the fewest in their conference.

The Ducks would have been worse off without left winger Paul Kariya's outstanding achievements in his first NHL tour. A member of the All-Rookie Team and a Calder Trophy finalist, he was everything the Ducks had hoped for when they made him first pick, fourth overall, in 1993.

Kariya was the only first-year player to lead his team in scoring, with 39 points, including League freshman highs in goals (18) and shots (134), eventually finishing second in rookie totals.

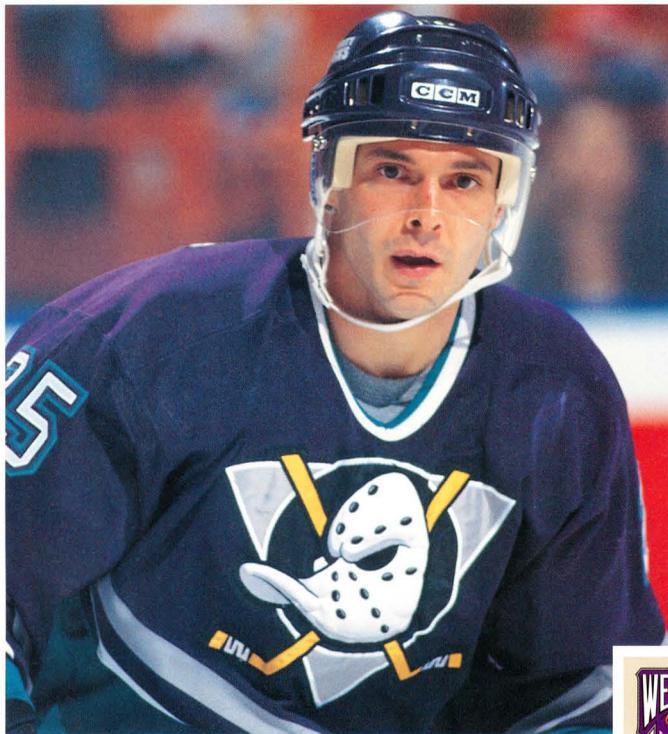

But there were not a lot of big guns after him, making the development or acquisition of more offensive players the priority of general manager Jack Ferreira. He landed the first forward in the 1995 Draft, Kingston centre Chad Kilger, at fourth overall. Kilger, who jumped from seventh to third overall on Central Scouting's final list, had 42 goals and 95 points in 65 games and at 6-foot-3, 204 pounds can dominate at both ends of the ice.

Ferreira had already taken a step in the right direction at the trade deadline by landing centre Mike Sillinger, the AHL's 1992 playoff scoring champion, who had been trying to crack a tough Detroit lineup.

A thinner sick list will help, too. The Ducks are hoping that right winger Steven King can rebound from reconstructive shoulder surgery that cost him the entire season to retain the touch that brought him 62 goals his last two years in the minors.

The wounded also included defenceman Don McSweeney, lost with a severely lacerated forearm in the first week of the rescheduled season. In all, the Ducks lost more than 200 man-games to injury, forcing coach Ron Wilson to use 11 rookies – seven in at least 25% of the season.

Winger Todd Krygier had 11 goals and 22 points in 35 games to rank fourth in team scoring.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Kariya's eight-game points streak in March led all rookies and he had a five-game run going at the end of the regular schedule. But he needs more support from his own line and from others. Bob Corkum and Gary Valk dropped back after surprising debuts with the first-year Ducks and Anatoli Semenov was dealt for help on defence. Four Ducks besides Kariya reached double figures in goals, but none had more than 11. Valeri Karpov arrived with great expectations, but was held to only 11 points in 30 games. Unheralded centre Shaun Van Allen came within four points of matching his 80-game total of 33 from the previous year. Stephan Lebeau had 24 points but has left to play in Europe. Rugged left winger Todd Krygier was right on his 20-plus points pace, followed closely by Peter Douris, whose 10 goals included a team-high four game winners. The top rookie sniper after Kariya was Steve Rucchin, a rare Canadian college-trained NHLer, who had 17 points and the best plus/minus, a seven.

DEFENCE

The pressure was on 1994's top draft pick, Oleg Tverdovsky, and he didn't disappoint. Despite a season-long battle with a rare disease that caused swelling in some joints. The well-travelled Bobby Dollas equalled last season's 20-point output to lead Anaheim's blueliners. But the injury factor meant that only Dollas, captain Randy Ladouceur and Robert Dirk dressed regularly during the year. Dave Karpas' arrival from Quebec helped out a bit, as did trades for rookies Milos Holan and Jason York. Only four teams allowed more goals than Anaheim, but the Ducks should be able to correct that to a degree with six healthy defencemen.

GOALTENDING

Guy Hebert continues to reach milestones that would have been denied him as a back-up in St. Louis. Included are four shutouts under the Ducks banner, two last season, while he owns 32 of the team's 49 all-time wins. In 14 games last season, he had to make 30 or more saves. Hebert finished with a solid 3.13 average and a .904 save percentage. The understudy role appears to be in good hands with Mikhail Shtalenkov, who brings high-calibre experience from the Russian national team. He has seven wins in his 28 games in two years in Anaheim.

SPECIAL TEAMS

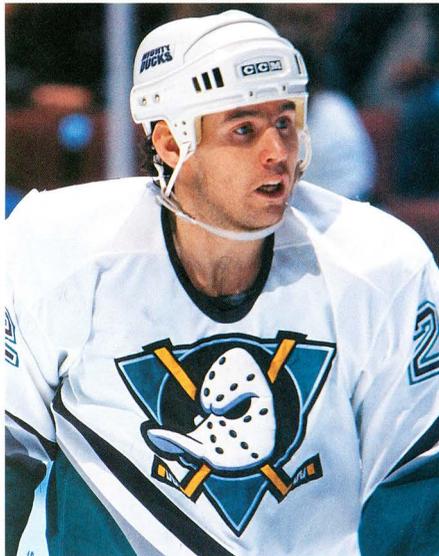

A late-season power-play rally lifted the Ducks over 10%. But they still finished last in the League and last overall on the special teams index (-28), which rates the difference between power-play and penalty-killing goals for and against. Kariya had seven goals, second among rookies to Edmonton's David Oliver. Dollas had three and the rest combined for just 11. Two of Sillinger's four goals were on the power play. Anaheim was also last in penalty killing, despite four shorthand goals.

NEW FACES

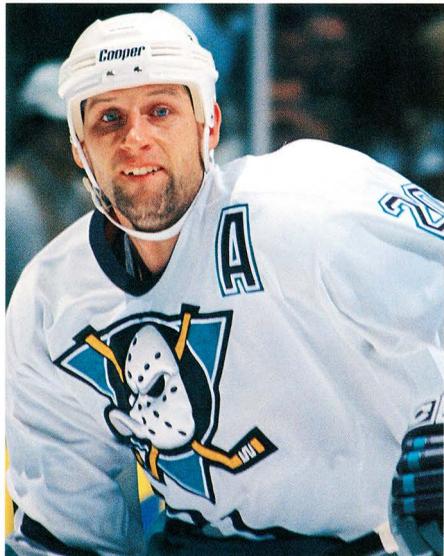

Kilger will get the attention in camp, but look for left winger David Sacco, brother of right winger Joe. He was held scoreless in eight games, but could flourish in a full season. Right winger John Lilley is also trying to stick after getting four points in nine games early in the year. The back line will one day showcase big Nikolai Tsulygin, who chose to play last year in Russia over the IHL. Left winger Maxim Bets and defenceman Darren Van Impe could also be close.

OUTLOOK

The Ducks are getting a lot of momentum from their home games, where they've sold out 49 consecutive dates. Such energetic fan support makes the waiting more tolerable, while allowing them the chance to gauge Kariya, Karpov, Kilger and Tverdovsky. The Ducks would love to channel some of that energy into the playoffs.

Shaun Van Allen: 29 points to rank second in team scoring

Bob Corkum: 19 points, including 10 goals on 100 shots

As Boston's checking specialist in the 1980s, Steve Kasper was one of the few NHLers to knock Wayne Gretzky off his game.

The Bruins hope his tireless bloodhound approach rubs off in his first year as head coach. The club has 28 straight winning seasons and playoff appearances to its credit, a pro-sports record, yet has not been able to get beyond a round or two in the last few springs.

Kasper hopes he's the man to change that playoff picture.

He inherits Boston's three crown jewels in centre Adam Oates, right winger Cam Neely and defenceman Ray Bourque, to go with a new home, the sparkling FleetCentre, located next door to the old Garden.

Kasper knows team captain Bourque well from their playing days and has a handle on most of the other players after spending the 1993-94 season as an assistant under former coach Brian Sutter and then handling the Bruins' farm team in Providence last year.

The Bruins should benefit from Neely being near 100% for the first time in a full season in five years, but the rigours of an 82-game schedule will likely see the intimidating winger resting when the games crowd up during the week.

Neely topped the Bruins with 27 goals in 42 games (97 in 113 when he hasn't been sidelined by the knee problems) and led the League with 16 power-play goals.

Oates, the only Bruin to play in all 48 games, continued his puck wizardry, leading the club with 53 points and gaining his third consecutive Lady Byng Trophy nomination.

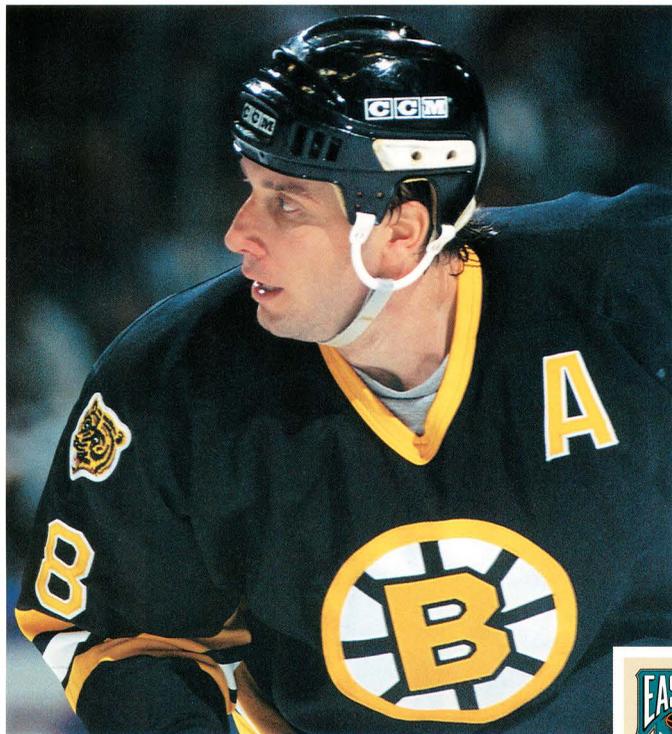

Bourque was second among all League defencemen with 43 points, tied with Phil Housley, and gained yet another Norris Trophy nomination, but lost his bid for No. 6.

But as has been the problem with the Bruins, there's a gap separating these three from the supporting cast.

Rookie Blaine Lacher was the biggest surprise last season, staking a claim to a wide open fight for the No. 1 goaltending job.

And there was some other encouraging movement among the youngsters on the team, with Bryan Smolinski's 18 goals coming second only to Neely's and Mariusz Czerkawski marking his first full NHL season with 12 goals and 26 points, good for fifth place on the team.

BRUINS

Cam Neely led the Bruins attack with 27 goals, including a League-leading 16 on the power play.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

As was the case when Chicago moved to a bigger ice surface last season, the Bruins will be scrutinized to see if their checking loses any zip. The extra room may render big men such as Neely less effective, but Oates will definitely benefit. He tied Eric Lindros for fourth place in League assists with 41. Ted Donato was the only other double-digit scorer. The Bruins need Glen Murray and Steve Leach to return to their promising totals of a couple of years ago, likewise Jozef Stumpel, who had 30 goals on the farm. Right winger Steve Heinze chipped in with 16 points in 36 games last year, while plugger Dave Reid led the club with a plus eight. Neely and Smolinski had Boston's only hat tricks and shared top spot in game-winning goals with five each. Mats Naslund and his 22 points might not be back this season.

DEFENCE

Age hasn't hampered Bourque's vision, as his 210 shots on goal led the League. Twelve of them found the net, giving him 16 consecutive seasons with at least 10. Don Sweeney, who just signed a five-year contract, collected 19 assists and was a plus six. Veterans David Shaw and Jamie Huscroft took care of their own end and, at 36, Alexei Kasatonov could still help in a number of roles. The Bruins put rookies Jon Rohloff and John Gruden in a combined 72 games last year.

GOALTENDING

The Lach-Nets Monster was a hit early in the season and completed his first year with impressive numbers second only to Calder Trophy and Vezina candidate Jim Carey. Lacher's 19 wins were tied for fifth in the League and he just missed appearing in the 2,000-minute club. His goals-against average of 2.41 put the Bruins seventh in the League. Challenging him this year will be Boston's 1994 first-round draft pick Evgeny Ryabchikov and John Blue. Craig Billington, a late addition from Ottawa last year, was looking at free agency before returning here.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Neely, Oates and Bourque all figure prominently in the power play, but Boston's penalty killing got the pat on the back for leading the League. Only 24 of 185 enemy power plays were converted, an 86.9% kill rate. Interestingly, that yielded just three shorthand goals, by Oates, Kasatonov and Heinze. On the power play, Neely was his old leviathan self in front of the net. Bourque had nine goals to complement Neely's 16 and ranked second to Paul Coffey with 29 power-play points. Czerkawski placed third among rookies with seven powerplay assists.

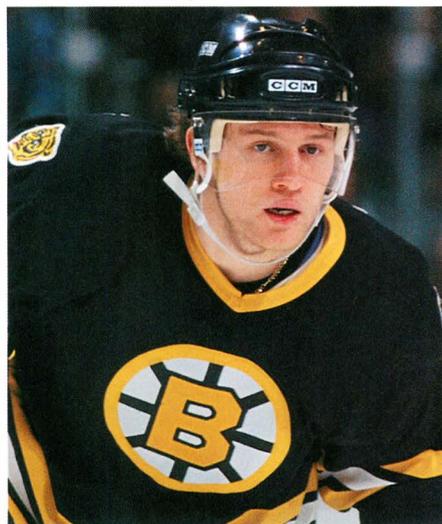

NEW FACES

Kasper is joined by Cap Raeder, former Los Angeles assistant who can serve as goaltender coach and Tim Watters, who will work with the defence. Watters will have two new pupils at camp, rearguards Boston took with their two first-round picks in the 1995 Draft. Tacoma's Kyle McLaren went ninth overall with a pick from Hartford and the Bruins used their own on Sean Brown of Belleville. Winger Tim Sweeney returns after a brief spell in Anaheim. Sergei Zholtok, a centre with Providence last season, has potential.

OUTLOOK

Boston continues the search for more offensive depth and some big names for the new building. Don't expect that winning streak to end under Kasper. He's just the one to keep Bourque, Neely and Oates as productive as before. And the Bruins did finish last season at 8-2, the best mark in the League.

Mariusz Czerkawski: 12 goals and 26 points in rookie season

Bryan Smolinski: 18 goals and 31 points in sophomore season

It was the summer of change for the Buffalo Sabres – the arrival of new head coach Ted Nolan after the departure of two of the club's most prolific scorers over the past few years, winger Alexander Mogilny and centre Dale Hawerchuk.

Realizing that one big contract would have to be sacrificed, and with Pat LaFontaine back and healthy, the Sabres decided it would have to be Mogilny's. The Sabres' leading scorer was sent to Vancouver for feisty centre Mike Peca, defence prospect Mike Wilson, and Vancouver's first-round pick, 14th overall, in the 1995 Entry Draft.

The Sabres had little choice in the Hawerchuk situation. As an unrestricted free agent, he signed with St. Louis. It's also unlikely that left winger Craig Simpson will be back, injuries having cut short his career.

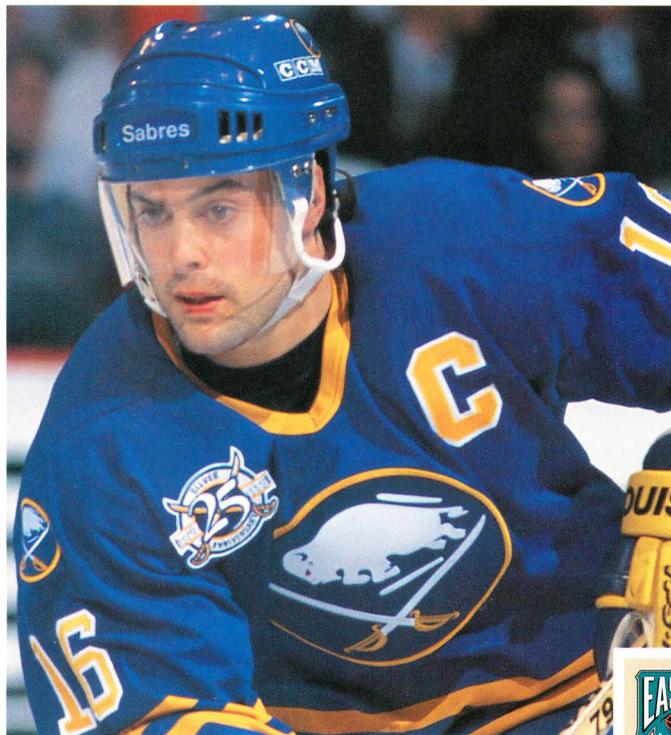

After 3½ years spent juggling the coaching duties with his office work, John Muckler can now concentrate on his duties as general manager. His big trades prior to moving Mogilny brought in the talents of Alexei Zhitnik, one of the best young defence prospects in the League, and the steady Garry Galley.

LaFontaine, awarded the Bill Masterton Trophy for perseverance after his year and a half battle with a knee injury, makes Nolan's life easier. Buffalo was just two games above 500 in the 22 games LaFontaine played and was dealt another early playoff blow. But it remains to be seen what a full year will bring.

The Sabres' game plan had to change from explosive to conservative when LaFontaine went out of the lineup for 92 straight games. But no matter what the team does in front of him, Dominik Hasek is not letting very much get behind him.

Hasek collected his second straight Vezina Trophy and First Team All-Star selection. After winning the Vezina and the Jennings the previous season, the 'Dominator' produced the League's top save percentage mark of .930 and tied Calgary back-up Rick Tabaracci with a 2.11 goals-against average.

Hasek felt personally that he had a better year in 1993-94, but didn't turn down his second consecutive Hart Trophy nomination. Buffalo's 119 goals against were least in the East. The Sabres thrust Hasek into some tough and tight situations, 11 games that ended in 2-1 scores. But Hasek won six of them.

Pat LaFontaine returned to the Sabres lineup to register 12 goals and 27 points in 22 games.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

The Sabres aren't exactly broken now that Mogilny and the others have left town. Donald Audette has reached 100 goals with the club, netting 24 last year on top of the 29 he'd managed in the previous full season and he has also developed into one of the Sabres' biggest money players, with seven game winners and 13 on the power play, both club highs. The Yuri Khmylev project continues to pay dividends as the 31-year-old Russian didn't miss a game and had a team-high plus eight. Centre Derek Plante ranked third on the club with 19 assists and right winger Wayne Presley was third with 14 goals. The Sabres are looking at Keith Primeau's younger brother Wayne, but the big centre may not be ready, though he scored in his only Sabres game. Brad May is capable of better numbers in a full season. Peca, yet to play a full NHL season, had 12 points in 35 games.

DEFENCE

Watch for Zhitnik to excel in his first full year here. He'll have the company of one of the League's great character players in Galley, whose 32 points overall nudged him into the League's top 10 scoring rearguards last year. The supporting cast of Doug Bodger and Richard Smehlik has scoring prowess as well as being handy in their zone and Charlie Huddy is approaching his 1,000th game. Though they don't score, Craig Muni and Doug Houda remain two of the more solid at their position. First-round draft pick Jay McKee of Niagara Falls likely won't stick at training camp although Wilson, the Canucks' first rounder from 1993, just might. Farmhand Mark Astley appeared in 14 games.

GOALTENDING

Hasek has won 60 games for Buffalo the past three years, as well as owning or sharing the League's best goals-against average, save percentage and shutout mark for two years running. He had 12 shutouts over the last two seasons, but took a beating in the playoffs from the Flyers. The Zhitnik trade resulted in the Grant Fuhr insurance policy being switched for Robb Stauber, who is rough around the edges but still effective. Another back-up possibility is Andrei Trefilov from Calgary. With their second first-round pick, the Sabres selected the second goaltender in the Draft, Martin Biron of Beauport.

SPECIAL TEAMS

No one in the League had the one-two punch of Audette and Mogilny, whose combined 25 power-play goals made Buffalo the only club with two players in double figures. LaFontaine had six in 22 games, adding yet another element. But the Sabres only rate in the middle of the pack in that department. Their penalty-killing unit fared much better. Behind the efforts of such players as Presley (five short-hand goals), the Sabres ranked third with an 85.5% rating. Their 13 shorthand goals tied with Washington for the League lead.

NEW FACES

Nolan comes to Buffalo after one year as an assistant in Hartford and six years as head coach of the OHL's Sault-Ste-Marie Greyhounds. Peca will step right into the lineup as will the Hobey Baker winner Brian Holzinger who had two goals and six points in eight regular-season and playoff games. Trefilov will battle Stauber for the back-up position behind Hasek. Moose Jaw centre Curtis Brown will make a strong bid for a spot this season.

OUTLOOK

The Sabres will have to fill a new rink in a couple of years, so success is imperative now. If the key veterans – Hasek, Galley and LaFontaine – can keep the club close in the early going, giving Nolan time to groom a promising group of youngsters, the Sabres could make things very interesting in the spring.

Yuri Khmylev: 25 points and team-best plus eight in 48 games

Alexei Zhitnik: 14 points in 32 games overall on blueline

The untimely disappearance of the Calgary Flames in the spring is getting to be a mystery worthy of Sherlock Holmes.

It will be up to new head coach Pierre Page to get to the bottom of the case.

Page, who will replace Dave King behind the bench, has worked in the past as an assistant with the Flames and now returns to the Calgary organization after stints as head coach in Minnesota and Quebec.

Talent is not in question, as another Pacific Division regular-season title proved. Nor is heart, when you have a team with the likes of Theoren Fleury, Joe Nieuwendyk, a healthy Gary Roberts and a confident young netminder in Trevor Kidd. But something has happened to the Flames at the end of every year since they won the Stanley Cup.

It was to be a season of adjustment for the Flames, after the departure of Mike Vernon to Detroit and the loss of Roberts to a neck and spinal injury. The Flames knew that Kidd was ready for prime time, and he didn't disappoint as Calgary compiled the division's best defensive record. And they got the better of the Phil Housley for Al MacInnis trade, at least for the first year.

But the Roberts injury and a season-long wrist and arm problem suffered by the promising Michael Nylander were part of 253 man-games lost to injury. A total of 41 players had to dress for at least one game, nine of them rookies, as well as 34-year-old Jim Peplinski, who ended a five-year retirement.

Those developments certainly bit into their scoring depth, despite a sensational season by Fleury, who led the club with 58 points, good for sixth place among League scorers.

The scoring returned in the playoffs, but not in a timely fashion as the San Jose Sharks won in seven games in the opening round.

The Flames will certainly feel the loss of free agent Joel Otto who signed with the Flyers in the off-season. Rated one of the League's best defensive centres, Otto was a finalist for Selke Trophy honours last season. And the Flames were also concerned about centre Robert Reichel's return to Europe after back-to-back 40-goal seasons prior to last year.

The Flames' remaining assets will be well-protected, however. One of the League's bigger teams, they had seven players in excess of 100 penalty minutes.

Theoren Fleury paced the Flames with 29 goals and 58 points to rank sixth in League scoring.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

If the Western Conference had had a Hart Trophy nominee, it might have been Fleury, with matching totals of 29 goals and assists, five of the goals being game winners. It marked the third time in five years the diminutive forward has led the club in scoring. He also had seven goals and 14 points in the playoffs. Nieuwendyk also had 29 assists, four playoff goals and was a solid plus 11. Roberts should reach the 70- to 90-point range if completely healthy. German Titov eventually caught fire last year with five playoff goals. Left winger Paul Kruse chipped in with 11 goals and 16 points, and was tops among the forwards with a plus 13. The Flames took a chance on right winger Nikolai Borschevsky, badly injured after a 74-point rookie season with Toronto. Veteran centre Kelly Kisio had seven goals in only 12 games. The Flames have high hopes for Nylander, who has 18 points in 30 regular-season and playoff games with the team.

DEFENCE

Housley made noises about not coming here after the trade with St. Louis, but put together a solid season and tied Ray Bourque with 43 points for second place among defencemen. His plus 17 was best on the club. Housley, Eric Lindros and Mark Messier had League-leading eight-game assist streaks. Steve Chiasson was consistent in his first Calgary season with 23 assists and a plus-10 rating. Zarek Zalapski was second to Housley among the team's blueliners, excelling in his home province with his 28 points. Although it was veteran James Patrick's worst season, he still has a lot to offer. The Flames have a number of other veterans guarding the fort, such as Frank Musil, Trent Yawney and Kevin Dahl.

GOALTENDING

Kidd didn't live up to his surname, showing the poise of a seasoned stopper in his first full year as Vernon's heir. Only Patrick Roy played more than Kidd's 2,463 minutes and Kidd had 22 wins, tied with Ed Belfour, second only to Ken Wregget. His .909 save percentage was also worthy of high praise. Ironically, his understudy, Rick Tabaracci, was tied for the League's best goals-against average of 2.11, having played the bare minimum 13 games, the last five for Calgary. The Flames have been hoarding goaltending prospects for the last few years. Jason Aluzzi remains on the farm, although Andrei Trefilov has departed for Buffalo.

SPECIAL TEAMS

The injury factor saw the once mighty power play take a bit of a tumble. Fleury led the unit with nine goals. Five of Kisio's goals came on the power play. Housley doesn't have MacInnis's cannon shot and was held to three goals, but helped on 17 others. The penalty killers made a come-back, achieving 85.1% success, fourth in the League. Fleury, Titov and Otto had two shorthand goals each.

NEW FACES

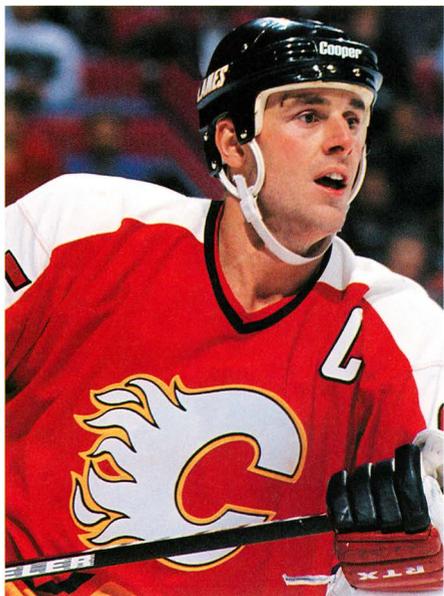

Page is, of course, the most important new face. Some others arrived ahead of schedule last year, owing to the lineup turmoil. The club has high hopes for left winger Vesa Viitakoski, who played in 10 games last year. Former No. 1 pick Cory Stillman also played 10 games, but will get more of a chance this time. Joel Bouchard is an offensive defenceman waiting for a shot while on the farm in Saint John.

OUTLOOK

Despite the departure of Otto, the Flames still remain deep in talent and experience. They are solid in goal, strong on the blue line and if Nieuwendyk, Fleury, Housley and a healthy Roberts are on target, the Flames could catch fire next spring.

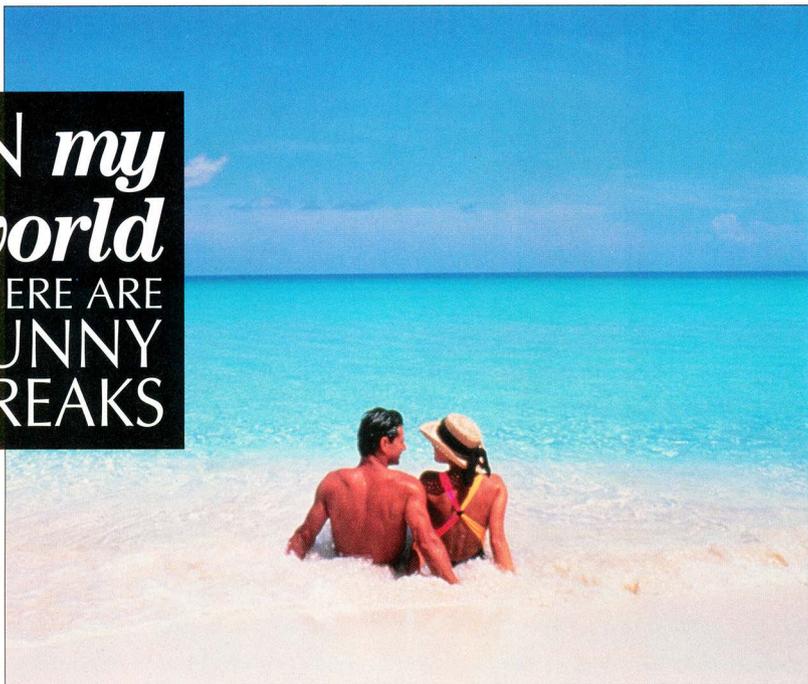

Phil Housley: blueline leader with 43 points and plus-17 rating

Joe Nieuwendyk: 21 goals, 50 points and solid plus-11 rating

At one stage late last season, the Chicago Blackhawks were on a 13-game winless streak, seemingly lost without their injured star Jeremy Roenick and in danger of missing the playoffs. Not only did they qualify, they bucked tremendous odds by coming back from losing the first two home games of the opening round against Toronto and then sweeping Vancouver before succumbing to the Red Wings in the Conference Final.

But they'll have to take the next step without head coach Darryl Sutter, who resigned for family reasons. His replacement is former Minnesota North Stars defenceman Craig Hartsburg.

Hartsburg, 36, was Coach-of-the-Year with Guelph of the Ontario Hockey League last season after serving five years as an assistant with Philadelphia and Minnesota.

"We feel he is the brightest young prospect out there," said Chicago general manager Bob Pulford.

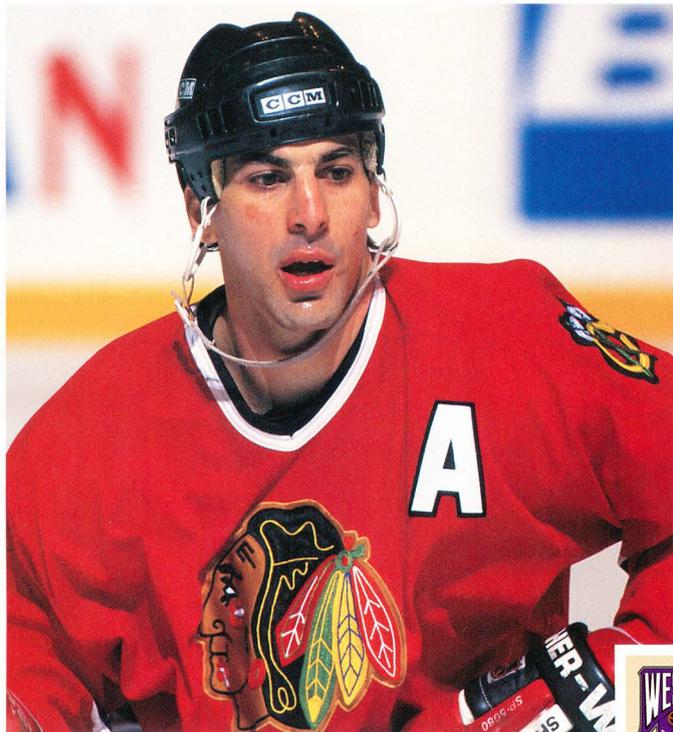

Though all eyes were on the evolution of the Hawks' offence as they moved to the new and larger United Center, Sutter hammered home a no-nonsense defensive policy that resulted in a league-low 115 goals against.

Two major assets in this area were, of course, respective First and Second Team All-Stars Chris Chelios on the blueline and Ed Belfour in goal. The former made a startling change in his hockey philosophy as the season went on, ridding himself of a wild streak to hone his ability as a field general.

Roenick fought all season to regain his form before his knee injury knocked him out until the second round of the playoffs. The burden on offence fell to free agent Bernie Nicholls, who responded in tremendous fashion, a team-high 51 points to show. He's not through at age 34.

The greatest rejuvenation was by Denis Savard, a Hawks star of the 1980s, who came back to town quietly in the shadow of the Michael Jordan story and became the team's biggest play-off inspiration. He had 18 points in the three series, the most since he was traded to Montreal, ironically for Chelios.

Another rewarding aspect for Pulford was the strong play of Chicago's second tier of stars. Joe Murphy broke out for a team-high 23 goals and left winger Patrick Poulin was a plus 13. Murray Craven, a late-season acquisition, enhanced the club's size and scoring.

Veteran Chris Chelios enjoyed another fine season, recording 38 points and a plus-17 rating.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Nicholls' 22 goals were three more than he had with New Jersey in 61 games. He also had a 19.3 shooting percentage, a conference-best three hat tricks and a six-point game. But he was held to a goal in the playoffs. It was a difficult season on and off the ice for Roenick, but he was a point a game in the regular season before the injury. If Murphy can keep the same pace, the Hawks hope Tony Amonte (15 goals and 35 points) can do likewise. A group of young Hawks forwards seems on the edge of making a big impact, led by Jeff Shantz, Sergei Krivokrasov and Eric Daze, the latter a late-season call-up with lots of promise. Savard may not be quite as effective in an 82-game schedule, but Craven will be a plus in a full season.

DEFENCE

As most predicted, Chelios and Suter flourished in their first full season together since they both played their college hockey at Wisconsin. But it was Chelios grabbing the headlines and his fourth Norris Trophy nomination. He led the Hawks in assists (33), plus-minus (17) and shots (166). Suter's 37 points were only one behind Chelios. The Hawks blueline staff was bolstered by the return of a healthy Steve Smith. Eric Weinrich had six playoff points and was a plus 8, second best on the club in playoffs. The acquisition of Gerald DiDuck further supported the new-look Hawks. Dependable Cam Russell played well in every playoff game.

GOALTENDING

Belfour and the Jennings Trophy are getting to be synonymous. He recorded his lowest ever goals-against average of 2.28 to earn his third award in five years. He whittled that further to 2.19 in the playoffs. He banked another five regular-season shutouts to tie Dominik Hasek for the League lead last year and to give him 28 overall to match Patrick Roy as the active League leader. Belfour has appeared in 332 regular-season games for the Hawks and the team has won or tied 208 of them. Jeff Hackett and Jimmy Waite, who was re-acquired from San Jose in early February, will battle for the back-up position. They are both talented, but with Belfour playing the bulk of the games they didn't see much action, appearing in just nine games between them.

SPECIAL TEAMS

In spite of the winless streak, Chicago came under the wire with the League's best power play, a 24.5% success rate. Fourteen players had at least one power-play goal, including 11 by Nicholls and 9 by the defencemen. Chicago's 84.2% penalty killing kept it in the League's top 10 and, combined with the power play, placed Chicago fourth on the special teams index with a plus 20. Seven times the Hawks scored shorthanded, with Nicholls and Shantz getting two each.

NEW FACES

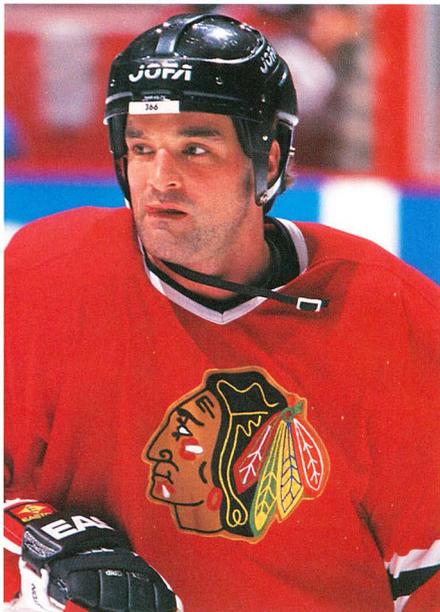

Hartsburg of course. Daze should stick this season. The Hawks expect to grade their 1994 No. 1 draft pick, winger Ethan Moreau, for possible full-time duty. The next group on the farm includes right winger Mike Prokopec. Chicago used their first 1995 pick, 19th overall, on Russian centre Dimitri Nabokov.

OUTLOOK

A great start was needed for the new building and the Hawks obliged with a strong finish that included five wins to finish the regular season. Chicago's average attendance topped the League at 20,833 per game. The superstars in the cast still have good years left in them and Hartsburg's thoughtful, calm approach helps him get the most out of any underachievers.

Tony Amonte: 15 goals, 35 points and plus seven in 48 games

NEW FULL-SIZE TOYOTA T100 XTRACAB 4X4

SEND THE COMPETITION TO THE SHOWERS.

Presenting Toyota Tacoma and Full-Size Toyota

T100 Xtracab, built to outperform the competition on any field, in any game.

Their totally new class-leading engines develop more power than ever before.

The T100's new 190 hp 3.4 litre, 24-valve

V6 engine actually outruns the larger standard V8s of Ford, Dodge and Chevy full-size trucks* (see chart). Tacoma's 4-cylinder 2.4 litre powerplant beats the leading competition's standard V6s and its 3.4 litre V6 (available on 4x4 model only) outmuscles their biggest V6s. So you don't just lead the class, you blow them away.

All this power plus Toyota's legendary reputation for quality, ride comfort, handling and safety. The all-new Toyota Tacoma and Full-Size Toyota T100 Xtracab - two reasons why the competition is throwing in the towel. For more information or a test drive, visit your neighbourhood

The Colorado Rockies stayed six years, lost 281 games and few mourned when they left town for New Jersey in 1982.

But the Colorado Avalanche should do much better at the gate and on the ice. In fact the folks in the Centennial State may not have to wait long for a Stanley Cup Championship.

About 90% of the sweat has already been put into making this team a winner by the transplanted Nordiques management. A bounty of high draft picks, the arrival of general manager Pierre Lacroix and a couple of key trades turned the club into a contender.

With Jack Adams Award winner Marc Crawford behind the bench and Calder Trophy recipient Peter Forsberg on a roll, the team rocketed to first place overall in the tough Eastern Conference, fronted by 30 wins. The overall record of 30-13-5 represented the team's best showing in nine years.

The Quebec chapter of the story ended with a six-game, opening-round loss to the defending Cup champion New York Rangers. But the team now has a new name, a new home (McNichols Arena) and is now situated in the Pacific Division of the Western Conference.

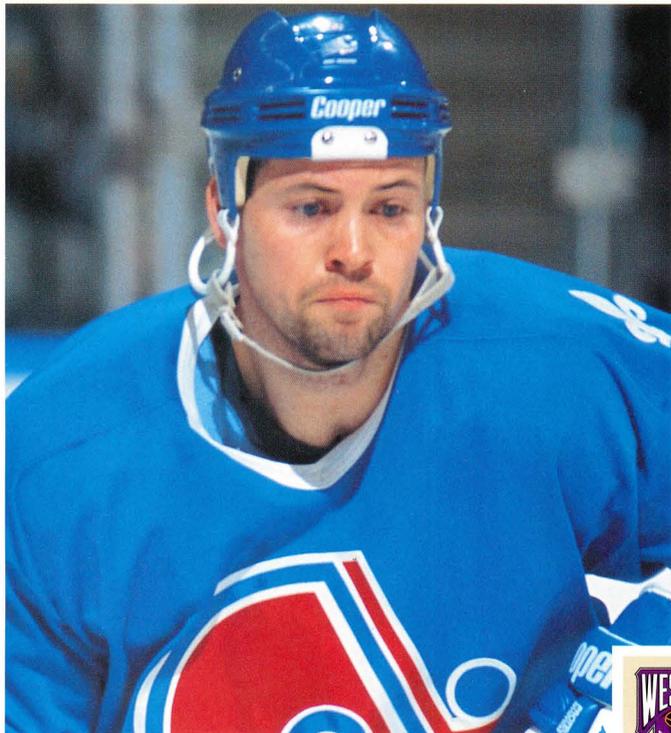

Lacroix's attempts to put more heart into the franchise couldn't have worked out better. It began behind the bench where the energetic Crawford was working in the bigs for the first time.

Just 34 when the season opened, he clicked with the burgeoning young guns on the team, such as Joe Sakic, Mike Ricci, Forsberg, Owen Nolan and Stephane Fiset. On the ice, further inspiration came from ex-Maple Leafs Wendel Clark and Sylvain Lefebvre, and ex-Islander Uwe Krupp.

The character change in the team that had missed the playoffs the year before was amazing. Only three players ended up on the negative side of the plus/minus ledger. The club had nine players hit double figures in goals, a number equalled only by Pittsburgh. Nolan overcame a problem-plagued 1993-94 season to reach the 30-goal plateau and to lead the League with eight game winners.

The Avalanche would like to continue their strong play at home, where they ran up a League-best 19-14 record. And that might not be too difficult, considering that the lineup remains virtually intact.

A healthy Owen Nolan returned to record 30 goals, including a League-high eight game winners.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

For the fifth time in six years, Sakic led the team in scoring, his 62 points just nine shy of the league lead. He was also third in league assists with 43. Nolan was a plus 21 as well as tying for third spot in league goals. Forsberg was the League's best rookie scorer, his 50 points 11 ahead of his nearest rival, leading in assists and power-play assists as well. And based on his first year, he might blow past everyone in an 82-game schedule. Forsberg's 36 points in the second half of the shortened season tied for the second best in the League. Scott Young has quietly put together three solid seasons with this franchise and topped a 39-point season with six in the playoffs to tie for the team lead. Clark and Valeri Kamensky both rang in with 30 points in injury-shortened seasons. Rookie right winger Adam Deadmarsh chipped in with 17 points. Free-agent centre Bob Bassen signed with Dallas and he will be missed.

DEFENCE

The team's defence isn't stocked with Norris Trophy candidates, but manages to get the job done. Lefebvre toughened the team in front of the net, while Krupp, coming off an injury in 1993-94 that limited him to 41 games, put his muscle to good use and led the defence with 23 points as well. He had the only hat trick by a defenceman in the League last season. The play of the veterans had a confidence-building effect on the young Nordiques blueliners who'd been struggling through the tough years. Curtis Leschyshyn tied for second in League plus/minus with plus 29. He, Craig Wolanin, Adam Foote and Steven Finn had suffered through the worst and were happy to be around when the team turned the corner.

GOALTENDING

Inexperience was supposed to be the weak link in this team, but someone forgot to tell Fiset and Jocelyn Thibault. For the second straight year, this tandem in its early 20s handled the load, this time finishing ninth overall in the league with a 2.76 goals-against average. Fiset played in 32 games, lowering his personal mark from 3.39 the previous year to 2.78, while Thibault (12-2-2) dropped from 3.31 to 2.34 and had a team-high .917 save percentage. The playoffs were a different story, but both youngsters will benefit from the experience. Garth Snow appeared in two games, but he was traded to Philadelphia in the off-season.

SPECIAL TEAMS

The club's dynamic offence helped in this department where they ranked sixth on the index at 13 with the promise of even better things this season. Nolan's 13 power-play goals tied for second in the League and helped the power-play unit to a tie for second overall with Detroit at 24.2%. Ricci had nine, and Clark and Kamensky combined for 10. The unit allowed just three short-hand goals. The penalty killers were in the middle of the pack.

Young had three of the club's nine shorthand goals, Sakic and Nolan two each.

NEW FACES

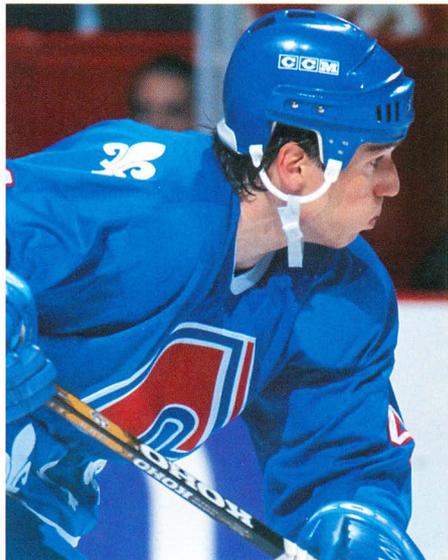

The Avalanche expect big things from big winger Landon Wilson when he arrives from the University of North Dakota. John Slaney was acquired from the Capitals in the off-season and he will be looking for a spot on the blue line along with Janne Laukkanen and Jon Klemm. Both had brief auditions last year. Promising forwards Rene Corbet and Dwayne Norris could stick this season.

OUTLOOK

Games against Detroit in this conference should be classics, but the Avalanche may find the physical play in the West is a little more intense and they'll have to make a major adjustment in travel habits. Still they're in a new home that will welcome them with open arms. Their improvement of last year should continue unabated.

Scott Young: 18 goals, including three on penalty-killing unit

Uwe Krupp: 23 points and plus 14 over 44 games on blueline

DALLAS STARS

Bob Gainey played the waiting game most of the 1994-95 season, trying to get his team healthy and playing cohesive hockey at the same time.

The general manager/coach of the Dallas Stars got his wish inasmuch as the club was able to get 42 points and to make the playoffs by a single point. But the struggles cost them, and as the lowest playoff seed in the Western Conference they drew the powerful Detroit Red Wings in a first-round series that lasted just five games.

The biggest hole in the lineup was created by Mike Modano's ankle injury, holding him to 30 regular-season games and causing him to miss the Detroit series. One of the game's new school of stars, Modano had back-to-back 93-point seasons, but was held to 29 in last year's shortened campaign.

Dave Gagner picked up some of the slack for Modano. Now 31, Gagner celebrated his eighth season with the franchise by leading the club with 42 points and by being the only Star to make it through all 48 games and the playoffs.

The circumstances did give rise to hard-nosed rookie forward Todd Harvey, who fearlessly took on all comers as well as placing eighth in team scoring.

Also feeling the pain were top defensive players Peter Zezel and Brent Gilchrist, held to 30 and 32 games respectively. Goaltender Darcy Wakaluk, one of the most underrated in the game, couldn't help the slide when he was injured for a spell.

At one point, the Stars had to recall both minor league goaltenders, Manny Fernandez and Mike Torchia, from Kalamazoo when both Wakaluk and Andy Moog were ailing. A bunch of other farmhands popped into the lineup, but mostly for just a game or two.

The uncertainty made for some streaky play on the part of the Stars. They were 14-3-5 when playing on back-to-back nights, including 8-1-1 on the second evening, but won just three of their remaining 28 games.

Some faces disappeared via the trade route, including the longest-serving Star, Neal Broten, in exchange for the quick Corey Millen. Gainey united Kevin Hatcher with his brother Derian, bringing in the former from the Washington Capitals, sending former captain Mark Tinordi the other way. At the trade deadline, veteran winger Greg Adams came over from the Canucks in exchange for speedy winger Russ Courtnall.

DALLAS

STARS

Veteran two-way centre Dave Gagner led the Dallas offence with his 14 goals and 42 points.

Shane Churla

Andy Moog: 10 wins with 2.44 average and solid .915 save percentage

OFFENCE

Six of Modano's 29 points came in one night against Anaheim. He was team tops in plus/minus among team forwards at plus seven, despite the time away. He and Gagner had help from Harvey (tied for eighth in rookie scoring with 20 points) and Mike Donnelly, a steady two-way left winger who added 27 points. Donnelly and Trent Klatt collected three game-winning goals each. Broten won the Cup with New Jersey, but Millen's game picked up and he should be better acclimated in his first full season here. Mike Kennedy had 18 points in his first NHL season and Gainey hopes to uncover more goals at training camp when he gets a closer look at the kids he promoted at mid-season. Veterans Paul Broten and Dean Evason chipped in with a combined 15 goals.

DEFENCE

The Stars gave up just one less goal (135) than they scored in the up and down season to finish in a three-way tie with Calgary and St. Louis for the West's third-best defensive record. The twin tower Hatcher were a force, with Kevin matching Modano's points and then having a good playoff. Reliable Grant Ledyard was a plus six with 18 points. Paul Cavallini's scoring numbers suffered in the shortened season after getting 44 points the year before. Craig Ludwig and Doug Zmolek watched their end of the rink, spelling the injured Richard Matvichuk, who was limited to just 19 regular-season and playoff games overall.

GOALTENDING

Moog, the League's active leader in winning percentage coming into the season with .650, saw it drop just a bit with a 10-12-7 record, only his second losing season in 15 years. He suffered from the Stars' inability to generate timely goals, losing nine games by one. But his save percentage was sharp, .915 for a share of fourth place. Wakaluk was coming off his best season and did enjoy back-to-back shutouts, but won just four games in 15 appearances. Of the two youngsters vying for his job, Torchia was 3-2-1 with a 3.30 average, but was traded in the off-season.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Lack of a power play has cost the team the past two years and the experimenting will go on at training camp. It kept Dallas treading water at plus two on the special teams index. But 14 players had at least one power-play goal, Gagner and Klatt combining for 12. Harvey had six power-play assists. Gilchrist had three of the club's four shorthand goals, although the Stars gave up seven themselves.

NEW FACES

Jamie Langenbrunner got a two-game audition, while Finnish winger Jarkko Varvio now has six points in 13 games over two years. Fernandez has to have a strong camp to unseat Wakaluk. The Stars' first pick in 1995 was Kamloops forward Jarome Iginla. Jason Botterill, a tough first rounder the previous year, is coming up fast. Veteran two-way centre Bob Bassen was an important addition in the off-season.

OUTLOOK

It's not clear if Gainey will be behind the bench to see his master plan take shape in a full season without as many injuries. There are a number of solid character veterans in the lineup to complement the youth that is here and developing in the system. The Stars are still riding a wave that followed the shift of the franchise from Minnesota, and they'll work hard to maintain fan interest. And all it may take is another full season with Modano and a continued commitment to defence and to the youngsters. The Stars aren't flashy, but Gainey makes sure they get their work done.

Corey Millen: three goals and 18 points in 28 games with Stars

Kevin Hatcher: 10 goals and 29 points in 47 games on blueline

With the cold slap of octopus in their eyes, the Detroit Red Wings discovered that the last step to the Stanley Cup is the hardest.

The well-oiled machine of coach Scott Bowman that plowed through the regular season, won the Presidents' Trophy with 70 points and took just 14 games to reach the Final, was submarined by the New Jersey Devils. It was a painful lesson for the Wings, on the verge of ending a League-high 40-year Cup drought, but one that will serve the talented team well in its quest to return to the finals this year.

The Wings still appear to be the team to beat in the Western Conference. They were almost invincible at home (25-4-3 in Detroit before the Final) and do not appear to be losing anyone off the roster.

As ex-Oiler Mark Messier had led the Rangers to the promised land the year before, Paul Coffey figured it was his turn with the Wings. The League's most explosive defenceman seemed to be everywhere in racking up 58 points, a team-high plus 18 and the Norris Trophy to boot. He took the four-game sweep at the hands of the Devils as hard as anyone, but saw the silver lining.

"When I was in Edmonton, we got swept four straight by the Islanders in the finals before we started winning our (five) Cups," recalled Coffey. "We still made a lot of strides this season."

Sergei Fedorov looked at times as though he'd make a second stab at the Hart Trophy, getting 50 points and excelling in all roles. He became the first Wing to lead the playoffs in scoring since Norm Ullman in 1966.

New elements on the team included veteran netminder Mike Vernon, who recorded 19 wins during the regular season and another 12 in the playoffs.

New defenceman Bob Rouse, a steady stay-at-home performer, was very effective in helping to keep Vernon's porch clear.

Keith Primeau put the trade rumours behind him and had a fine season with 42 points and a deserved reputation as one of the League's toughest competitors.

Steve Yzerman saw his role change to a winger at times, but the team captain flourished with 38 points.

The Wings are glad Dino Ciccarelli's pesky streak has not lessened with age. He was in the thick of scrums all season, while being battered in front of the opposition's net.

Keith Primeau posted impressive numbers last season - 15 goals, 42 points and a plus-17 rating.

Mike Vernon: 19-6-4 record with 2.52 average and one shutout in first season with Red Wings

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Wings were best in the West, with 180 goals, and had their players sprinkled throughout the NHL's leader board in several categories. Ray Sheppard, the bargain basement winger from four years ago, continued to fill the net, getting 30 goals, tied for third in the League. He was also the second-best shooter at 24.0%, but he was checking options with other teams. Fedorov had 30 assists to lead the forwards, and he, Primeau and Yzerman played in all key situations. Vyacheslav Kozlov backed a strong regular season with a point-a-game pace, including four game-winning goals in the playoffs. Ciccarelli accounted for nine playoff goals. Doug Brown, ex-Shark Bob Errey and Shawn Burr also produced key goals throughout the season.

DEFENCE

Coffey was the only rearguard to lead his club in scoring and ranked first among all League defencemen, becoming the first player to be a First Team All-Star with three separate clubs. His 44 assists were the catalyst for some of the great numbers posted by others up front, while he used his great wheels to compensate if caught up ice on his rushes. Nicklas Lidstrom and Vladimir Konstantinov are now seasoned blueliners who've adjusted to the NHL. Lidstrom came close to matching Coffey's club-high plus 18, and his 10 goals made Detroit the only team with two defencemen in double figures. The arrival of seasoned Vyacheslav Fetisov filled another gap in the Wings defence, though Rouse was the only one of the corps to play all 48 games. Coffey and Lidstrom were also hot in the playoffs.

GOALTENDING

Vernon did everything asked of him until the team struggled in the Final. But Vernon, acquired from Calgary the previous season, linked up with Chris Osgood (19 games) to register the League's second-lowest goals-against of 2.42. Ironically, it was Osgood who finished with the better goals-against average (2.26, fourth in the League) and save percentage (.917, tied with the Nordiques Jocelyn Thibault for second).

SPECIAL TEAMS

Coffey's fingerprints were everywhere as Detroit sailed to the top of the special teams index with plus 22, tied with the Capitals. Of Detroit's 52 power-play goals, Coffey scored or assisted on 31, leading the League in assists and points. Sheppard converted 11 goals. The Wings ranked second in both power play (24.2%, tied with Quebec, but No. 1 at home) and in penalty killing (86.4%). Fedorov notched three short-hand goals.

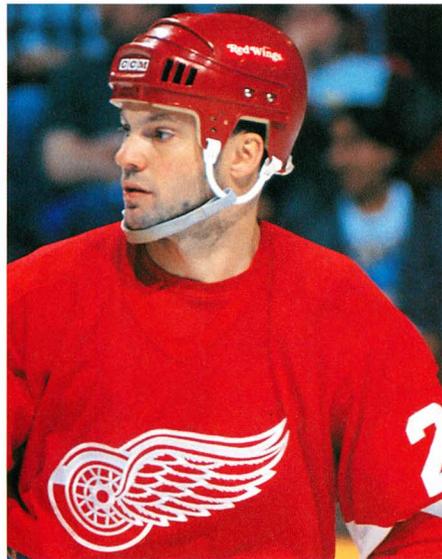

NEW FACES

The search to get another veteran or two to steady the team at playoff time continued through the summer. Certainly there's no shortage of youngsters, with both Tim Taylor and Martin Lapointe cracking the playoff roster. Anders Eriksson, the club's top draft pick from 1993, is expected in camp after signing a four-year contract, and could crack the lineup. There's little chance that Kevin Hodson could unseat Osgood, but he is available to join the team if Vernon's contract isn't sorted out.

OUTLOOK

The frustrating part for Bowman, who is seeking his seventh Cup ring, is that little needs to be overhauled on this team. The Wings may find their winning pace of last season slowed by the extra travel which returns with interconference play. And the big win must come soon, before age becomes a factor with Yzerman, Coffey, Ciccarelli and other key veterans.

Dino Ciccarelli: 16 goals, 43 points and plus 12 in 42 games

Sergei Fedorov: 20 goals, 50 points and plus six in 42 games

It seemed that whenever the Edmonton Oilers held their Kids' Night promotion at the Coliseum, most of their lineup looked eligible for the prizes.

Top scorer Doug Weight is 24, followed by 21-year-old Jason Arnott. The Oilers used 10 rookies last season. Two of them, winger David Oliver and centre Todd Marchant, were among their top five scorers, with 30 and 27 points respectively.

Not yet 30, veterans Shayne Corson, Bill Ranford and Kelly Buchberger felt like grandfathers when surrounded by so many players with 1970s birthdates.

The inexperience and multiple injuries were too much for the Oilers to turn into a playoff spot and the club watched from the sidelines for the third consecutive season.

The team turns to one of its longest serving employees to run the bench this season, former assistant coach Ron Low. Former NHL coach Bob McCammon joins incumbent Kevin Primeau as an assistant.

The task of making the playoffs in this conference won't be easy unless the Oilers tighten up defensively. They gave up 183 goals, highest in the League. But a few reversals in the six one-goal defeats they suffered might have put them into the Sweet 16 post-season. They were just below .500 in the stretch run to the playoffs.

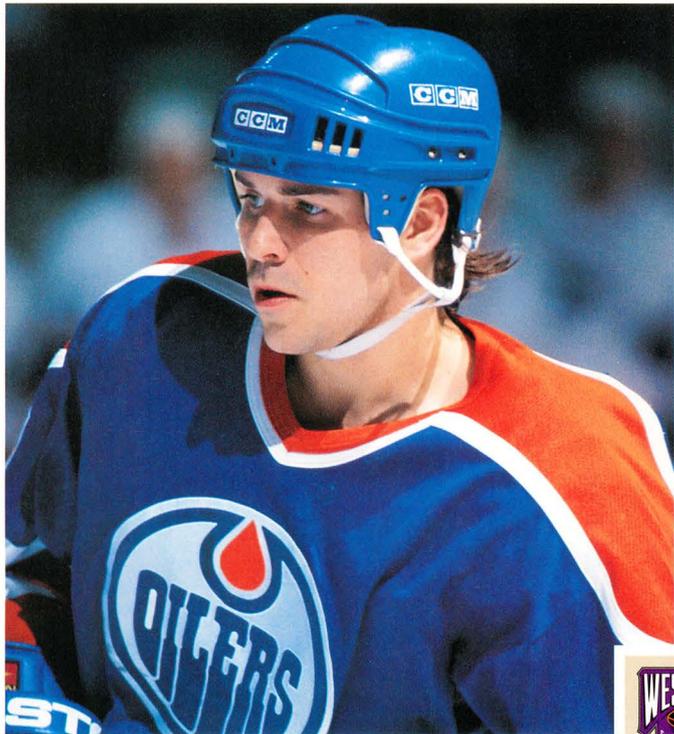

Weight's stats typified the team's dilemma. His 40 points led the team in scoring for the second straight year, but both he and Corson were minus 17. However, both could be cornerstones on a contender.

The salvation can also be seen in the likes of the gritty Arnott, and Oliver and Marchant, two unheralded forwards who had strong finishes. They were third and fourth respectively among League rookies, despite being late-round draft choices.

The Oilers already have a first tier of young talent, assembled in roundabout ways in the trades for the former members of their Cup dynasty. Those players and some high draft picks ready to bloom should improve the situation greatly.

The Oilers have also been levelled by injuries the last couple of years. Key defencemen Fredrik Olausson, Igor Kravchuk and Boris Mironov missed a total of 34 games last season, and promising sophomore centre Dean McAmmond missed 41 games with a severed Achilles tendon.

Centre Doug Weight recorded 40 points, including 33 assists, to lead the Oilers in scoring.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Oliver's 20.3% shooting eye earned him a team-high 16 goals. Weight had 50 assists in the last full season and is a threat to reach the 30-goal plateau. Arnott had 128 penalty minutes to go with his 15 goals and 37 points. The shortened year was Scott Thornton's best in the League - 10 goals - doubling his 118-game total the previous four years. The club packs plenty of muscle up front, with Corson, Buchberger and Louie DeBruick. Buchberger had 24 points, five of the club's 17 game winners and was one of the few even or plus Oilers. Having winger Zdeno Ciger full time will be a plus. He played in only five games last season after producing 22 goals and 57 points in 84 games the previous year.

DEFENCE

It's quite a mix, from the smooth Olausson, Kravchuk and Jiri

Slegr to Bryan Marchment and Luke Richardson, two of the most punishing hitters in the game. Richardson has learned to handle himself better and Ken Sutton is solid when healthy. Marchment has been the subject of numerous trade rumours from opposing clubs who get anxious when their forwards cross the neutral zone. Ryan McGill was having a good season until an eye injury sidelined him for the final 13 games. The injuries threw minor leaguer Gordon Mark into action for 18 games. Kravchuk led the pack of blue-liners with 18 points.

GOALTENDING

Ranford would like at least 31 more regular-season wins to make 200. But the Oilers have made it hard on him the last couple of years. He can still offer the team a lot, given proper support and perhaps a lighter workload of games. Rumours abounded through the summer that he'd be dealt. But nothing developed and Ranford will be back to start his eighth full season and could reach 500 games as an Oiler. Fred Brathwaite got in 14 games last year, but he was rocked most of the time. Joaquin Gage was in for two games when Ranford was hurt at the end of the year and wasn't out of place.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Edmonton's problems in this area go back a couple of years. Their ranking of 19th on the special teams index reveals a 77.7% penalty-killing unit, the second poorest in the League. Oliver sparked the power play, contributing 10 goals and 16 points to top all rookies. Arnott had seven power-play goals. Marchant and Kirk Maltby had two shorthand goals apiece.

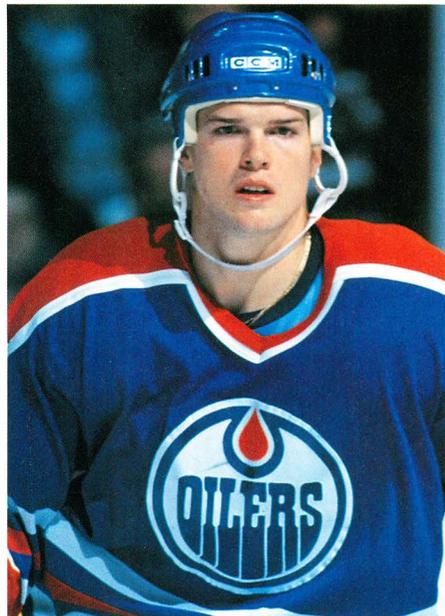

NEW FACES

Huge centre Jason Bonsignore, fourth overall in 1994, makes the Oilers drool, even though he didn't have a great first training camp and went back to junior. But Mats Lindgren could beat Bonsignore here. The Swedish right winger wanted another year of honing his skills. Left winger Ryan Smith, picked behind Bonsignore in the first round, is a thumper who was close to making the team last season. The Oilers chose sixth overall last July and came away with Prince Albert Raiders star Steve Kelly, considered the fastest skater available in the first round. He is also noted for his penalty-killing abilities.

OUTLOOK

The Oilers could be this year's Quebec Nordiques in terms of fast turnarounds. They'll have more time to get used to each other and, hopefully, they won't need 38 players again. But they will have to have a lot of things fall into place.

Jason Arnott: 15 goals and 37 points in sophomore season

Todd Marchant: 13 goals and 27 points in freshman season

In a state that's a favourite home of the senior set, the Florida Panthers want to promote a youth movement.

Having played their first two seasons with a veteran lineup, a necessity for most expansion teams, Florida would like to give priority to its first crop of home-grown talent.

Not that there was anything wrong with the Panthers' efforts in their first two years, considering they came within a point of a playoff berth on both occasions. Their combined record was 53-56-23 under Roger Neilson, who was released by general manager Bryan Murray in the off-season.

Neilson will be replaced behind the bench by Doug MacLean, an assistant under Murray in Detroit during the 1990-91 season. MacLean also worked with Murray while in Washington from 1988-90 and is expected to institute Murray's plan to promote the younger players in the organization.

Central to their plans will be Ed Jovanovski, the No. 1 overall pick at the 1994 Draft, a tough customer who spent the last year trying to work on his defensive zone play with the Windsor Spitfires of the OHL.

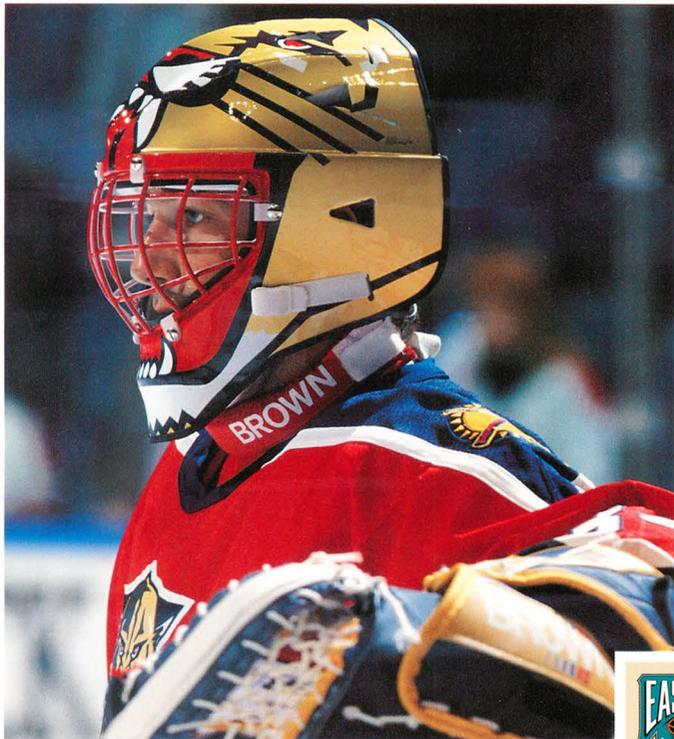

From there, the Panthers plan to supplement some younger players already on the roster, such as top scorers Stu Barnes and Jesse Belanger and defenceman Jason Woolley, with such prospects as defenceman Chris Armstrong and centre Steve Washburn.

The status of several high mileage players could be in doubt, but some will return.

To achieve that elusive playoff spot, the Panthers must get another solid year in goal from John Vanbiesbrouck, who has 35 of their wins. He teamed with Mark Fitzpatrick to record a team goals-against average of 2.61, sixth in the League and best among the non-playoff teams.

The Panthers have many unsung players. Veteran left winger Dave Lowry had 10 goals and 20 points. Jody Hull and Bill Lindsay were right behind and the inspirational Brian Skrudland completed his 10th NHL season with the team, despite lots of trade interest from contenders who were looking for character. Defenceman Gord Murphy was fourth in team scoring.

A trade deadline addition who will make more of a difference this year is left winger Gaetan Duchesne from San Jose.

John Vanbiesbrouck had a solid year with four shutouts, 2.47 average and .914 save percentage.

Scott Mellanby: 13 goals, including club-high five game winners

Stu Barnes: 10 goals, 29 points to tie for lead in club scoring

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Montreal cast-off Belanger, always a good minor-league sniper, had 15 goals to go with the 17 he scored in a full 1993-94 campaign. He also tied the speedy Barnes for the team lead with 29 points. Scott Mellanby recorded 25 points and led the club with 130 shots, the only Panther over 100. He had a team-high five game winners. Johan Garpenlov had 12 points in 27 games as a Panther, and has proven he can more than double that in a full season. Bob Kudelski, held to six goals in 26 games, has yet to hit his stride with the Panthers. He is capable of adding 30-plus goals. Centre Rob Niedermayer's numbers fell in his sophomore season and the Panthers could use a healthy Andrei Lomakin to boost their scoring.

DEFENCE

Florida could start an expansion team consisting entirely of defencemen - 12 played at least one game last season. Now comes Jovanovski to intensify the battle at training camp. The numbers swelled towards the end of last season when rookie Robert Svehla arrived after completing obligations in Europe. The core of the group includes Murphy, Woolley, Geoff Smith and Paul Laus, rescued from the minors in the expansion draft and now the Panthers' best plus-minus player (12) and penalty leader. On the fringe are Magnus Svensson, Dallas Eakins and Stephane (J.J.) Richer.

GOALTEENDING

At 32, Vanbiesbrouck is still in command. He recorded a .914 save percentage on exactly 1,000 shots and tied for second in the League with his four shutouts. That moved him into a tie for third place among active goalenders with 21. He has also been the subject of several trade enquiries since coming to Florida, but the Panthers could use his 38 games of playoff experience with the Rangers when they get to the post-season themselves. Fitzpatrick's goals-against average of 2.64 was his lowest in seven NHL seasons. He also had a fine .900 save percentage and two shutouts in 15 games.

SPECIAL TEAMS

It was an area of concern, leaving them 18th on the special teams index at minus eight. Only San Jose and Anaheim were worse than the Panthers' 13.1% power play. Penalty killing was 12th, but produced just one shorthand goal (by Lindsay). Belanger, Mellanby and Murphy combined for 15 of the team's 29 power-play goals.

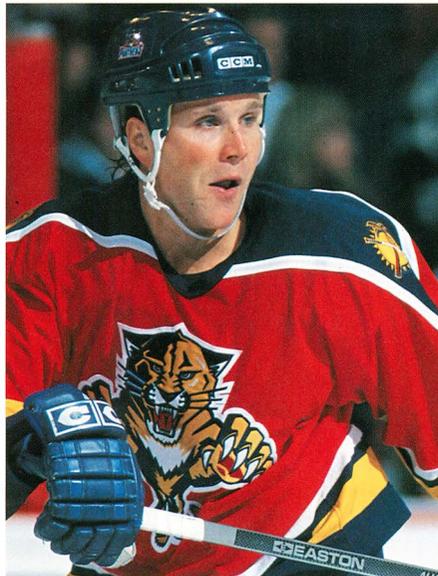

NEW FACES

Jovanovski will have plenty of pressure on him, including a hefty new contract, but should be a treat to watch. Florida's first selection in July, 10th overall, was right winger Radek Dvorak from the Czech Republic. Washburn is a strong possibility to gain a spot and Armstrong is expected later in the season. A dark horse at camp could be Ontario junior right winger David Nemirovsky.

OUTLOOK

The honeymoon with Florida fans continued as the Panthers improved to 97% capacity at home. In the close race to the playoffs, perhaps the Panthers will benefit from the Eastern Conference losing Quebec to Colorado in the West and theoretically opening up a spot. On paper, the Panthers are putting together the proper mix for a contender, but it's the little things which have been the difference in earning the few points needed to gain a playoff berth. MacLean must get the Panthers playing better in their own division where they won just seven of 24 games last season.

Dave Lowry: 10 goals, including two with power-play unit

Bill Lindsay: 10 goals, including one on penalty-killing unit

If the Hartford Whalers can start this year's games as strongly as they finished many of last year's, then their playoff drought will end at three years.

Hartford was the League's best overtime team last year, with four wins and five ties in nine extra periods for a .722 winning percentage. That's 8-1-14 over the last two years.

The Whalers started and finished slowly last season, going 2-7-2 in their first 11 games and 2-7-0 in their final nine. They fell victim to the injury bug when playing eight games in 12 nights near the end of the year.

In between, the club went 15-10-3 in 28 games and their 43 points were just four shy of the final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. The Whalers had previously missed the playoffs by 28 points in 1993 and 21 points in 1994.

That bodes very well for the new ownership/management team of Peter Karmanos and Jim Rutherford who have yet to have a full season in which to operate.

The Whalers are strong in goaltending where Sean Burke's 2,418 minutes were fourth in the League to Ed Belfour, Trevor Kidd and Patrick Roy.

Youth abounds with Andrew Cassels, Darren Turcotte, Geoff Sanderson and Steven Rice leading the team in scoring.

Glen Wesley, acquired from the rival Boston Bruins in the previous off-season, lent a steady hand to the defence and he and fellow defenceman Frantisek Kucera were the only Whalers to see action in all 48 games last season.

The year's big deals saw Pat Verbeek swapped to the New York Rangers in late March for defenceman Glen Featherstone and then an off-season swap of defensive prodigy Chris Pronger to St. Louis for power forward Brendan Shanahan.

Coach Paul Holmgren will begin his fourth year with the team, continuing to work with the youngsters that were added the last couple of seasons.

They include the players acquired in trades and their home-grown talent such as forwards Andrei Nikolishin, Robert Petrovicky and Igor Chibirev. All but Chibirev were top picks from the 1992 and 1993 Drafts.

Jeff O'Neill, their 1994 No. 1 pick, is signed after electing to stay in the junior ranks with Guclph last season. He registered 43 goals and 124 points, fourth best in the OHL.

WHAALERS

Sean Burke posted 17 wins with a solid .912 save percentage and a personal-best 2.68 average.

Jimmy Carson

Frantisek Kucera: 20 points to lead club defencemen in scoring

Andrew Cassels: 37 points in 46 games as club's leading scorer

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Cassels' solid performance was encouraging in light of a 27-point drop between 1992-93 and the last full season. Likewise Turcotte, who was hurt in 1993-94 after four solid seasons with the Rangers. Two of those over time game winners were his. Sanderson's 18 goals, four of them game winners, led the team, and he hopes to get back to his 89-point form of two years ago. The Whalers are loaded with present or former centres: Jimmy Carson, Robert Kron, Ted Drury, Mark Janssens, Chibirev and Petrovicky joining the top three. Nikolishin's plus-seven led all the forwards. A total of 13 players had points in double figures, but overall, the scoring wasn't far from being last in the League. Chibirev played just eight games, but had three goals. Shanahan is a major plus for the Whalers. He is a two-time 50-goal scorer and hit the 100-point mark two years ago. He excels on both special units.

DEFENCE

Only Florida allowed fewer goals than Hanford's 141 among clubs that didn't make the playoffs. It was a new ball game for Wesley, who had the benefit of Ray Bourque all his years in Boston. Wesley had 14 assists, a second-best 125 shots and helped the power play, and he wound up sharing the offensive role on the blue line with Kucera. Adam Burt equaled his previous year's point total of 18. Although Pronger's numbers were down slightly, he will likely be missed. Veteran Brad McCrimmon shared the club lead at plus seven in 33 games, but his status was up in the air. The dependable Brian Glynn was solid over his 43 games. The Whalers cut more than 80 goals off their 1992-93 total in 1993-94 and hope to continue that trend in this new full season.

GOALTENDING

The lanky Burke has been a workhorse since he played junior hockey in Toronto, so the rubber mill didn't wear him down. He fashioned a fine 2.68 goals-against average and .912 save percentage. The average was his lowest in three years here, in which he's averaged 17 wins. But he hasn't seen the playoffs in four years. Jeff Reese has been a capable understudy for three NHL teams, appearing in 11 games here last season.

SPECIAL TEAMS

The Whalers improved their ranking on the special teams index, rising from minus 28 a year ago, to minus 10. They were 14th on the power play at 17.2%. Sanderson, Rice and Carson all getting four goals on the unit. Penalty killing was not as sharp, 80.0%, with only three shorthand goals to show from that unit.

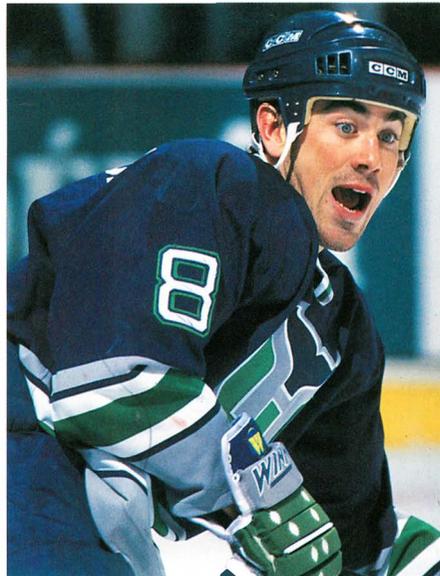

NEW FACES

O'Neill's arrival is much anticipated and could be the catalyst to push some other players. A shoulder injury has hindered defenceman Marek Malik from making a quicker debut in Hartford. Left winger Kevin Smyth saw action in 16 games. Petrovicky two, and both should stick around longer this year.

OUTLOOK

The Whalers were itching to trade throughout the summer to improve the club and perhaps make a splash with their fans, finally pulling the trigger on the Shanahan deal. Considered one of the League's premier power forwards, Shanahan adds plenty of experience and character. There is too much talent here to stay down for long, but they may need some help from other clubs at the trade deadline to make the playoffs. The Whalers are already adept at winning in their own division, 13-10-1 last season, and with their good crop of youngsters bound to improve, they could make some noise in their conference.

Geoff Sanderson: 18 goals, including four on power-play unit

Steven Rice: 11 goals, including four on power-play unit

Winning the League's first Draft Drawing was a good start to the new season for the Los Angeles Kings — a team that needed some kind of break.

With only a 4.2% chance of winning, the Kings were in possession of the right: four-number combination and improved their position in the draft order from seventh to third.

"Maybe things are finally turning around for the Kings," observed general manager Sam McMaster.

With the coveted third pick, the Kings chose the last of a trio of fine defencemen available, Aki-Petteri Berg. The 6-foot-3 Finn is big enough and tough enough for the NHL and the Kings could use help everywhere, except first-line centre.

Wayne Gretzky led the team in scoring, playing in all 48 games, but little else went according to plan as Los Angeles missed the playoffs for the second straight year. There were several trades in an attempt to shake up the roster. 11 rookies were pressed into service and Barry Melrose was removed from behind the bench.

And the Kings would have liked to have converted some of their nine ties (second most in the League) into victories.

However, the Kings missed qualifying for the post-season by a point, in large part due to the League's second-worst home record (7-11-6).

McMaster was operating again in the off-season, obtaining Dimitri Khristich and back-up netminder Byron Dafoe from Washington for a couple of picks in the 1996 Entry Draft.

The Kings did get better than expected marks from Dan Quinn, who came over to Los Angeles to score 31 points and lead them in game-winning and game-tying goals. Rick Tocchet had 35 points in 36 games, and will likely do better if healthy for a full season. Quinn, however, returns to Ottawa this season.

The last two years have been tough on Gretzky, who turns 35 at mid-season, but the greatest scorer in League history insists he'll press on and not retire. He crossed the 2,500-point milestone on April 17, a Stanley Cup with the Kings now his lone goal in California.

The Kings got lucky again in late July when Larry Robinson signed on as new head coach. Robinson spent his last three years as a player with the Kings and he has been an assistant coach the last two seasons in New Jersey.

KINGS

Captain Wayne Gretzky led the Kings with his 48 points, including the 2,500th of his NHL career.

OFFENCE

Gretzky's 37 assists ranked ninth in the League, though no other King had 20. Jari Kurri had 29 points in 38 games, showing he still has life in his legs as well. Tocchet may not strike in the 40-goal range anymore, but 18 was more than he had the previous year. Tony Granato led the team with a plus nine and was second in shots to Gretzky. He and Tocchet had the club's only hat tricks last year. Khristich was Washington's top scoring left winger last year with 26 points, but his overall points have been dropping the last three years. John Druce bettered his 1993-94 total with the Kings by nailing 15 goals, second to Tocchet. Many of the youngsters will get more of a chance up front this season, such as Eric Lacroix, who led the club's rookies with 16 points, and centre Yanic Perreault, who appeared in 26 games.

DEFENCE

The Kings are still developing one of the best bluelines in the West, despite the departure of Alexei Zhitnik in the trade to Buffalo. Darryl Sydor led the defence in scoring with 19 assists and 23 points and was a minus two. Rob Blake missed half the season with a groin injury, but is on his way to a long and distinguished career. Marty McSorley, who can play forward or defence, adds to the leadership abilities of Gretzky and Tocchet. Michel Petit had a couple of disappointing years in Calgary, but was a workhorse here. He was a plus four and chipped in 17 points. Ex-Sabre Philippe Boucher can help the team over a full season and the Kings are very high on newcomers Chris Snell and Rob Cowie, who each had two goals and nine points in 32 games.

GOALTENDING

The Kings lost unrestricted free agent Grant Fuhr in the off-season, clearing the way for a battle between Kelly Hrudey and back-ups Jamie Storr and Dafoe. Hrudey, who has been over-worked the last few years, will be 35, but has won the Kings 164 regular-season and playoff games in more than six years. He managed a .910 save percentage and a 14-13-5 record. Despite the Kings' poor season, he allowed three or fewer goals in 24 of his 33 starts. Storr, chosen seventh overall in the 1994 Draft, won one of five starts. Dafoe has played 10 NHL games in three years with inconclusive results. The Kings also have Pauli Jaks in the system if needed in an emergency.

SPECIAL TEAMS

The Kings suffered a drop from plus 13 to minus 10 on the special teams index, as a result of the power play's struggles. The unit was 13th overall, but gave up eight shorthand goals. There was a spread of Kings scorers, however. 11 players with at least two goals, led by Tocchet's seven and Blake's four, despite the injury. Snell had two shorthand goals, as the Kings finished 17th in penalty killing. If the Kings retain McSorley, Troy Crowder and Matt Johnson (102 penalty minutes in 14 games), they will be busy on that unit again this season.

NEW FACES

Robinson is a new but familiar face. Khristich will step right into the lineup to add some scoring punch. A pair of 1992 draft choices could make the team as wingers: big Kevin Brown and Jeff Shevalier, who had a shot and a goal in his only Kings' appearance last year. Add defenceman Jan Vopat from the Czech Republic, acquired from Hartford in June. Left winger Keith Redmond had a slow start down on the farm, but he comes highly recommended and could grab a spot.

OUTLOOK

The rise of Anaheim and San Jose makes it necessary for the Kings to re-establish themselves in the competitive California market. They must make a move while Gretzky, Kurri, Tocchet, Hrudey and the like are still capable. But Robinson may be just the tonic the Kings require.

Rick Tocchet: 18 goals, including club-high seven on power play

Dan Quinn: returning to Ottawa after 14-goal, 31-point season

Most people seemed to agree that the Montreal Canadiens needed change, but missing the playoffs for the first time in a quarter century was not what they had in mind.

History says it won't become a habit. Montreal has not missed the playoffs two years in a row since the early 1920s. And with the new lineup taking shape, they won't need to lean on the record book to get back in. Due to move into the new Forum in March, they want to make as big a splash as possible when the playoffs start.

Their two biggest acquisitions last season, Mark Recchi from the Flyers and Pierre Turgeon from the Islanders, are already their leading scorers.

Recchi has scored at least 30 goals in five of his last six seasons and averaged a point a game in the abbreviated schedule. Turgeon will inherit the often-difficult mantle of Quebec-born star of the team, but so far it hasn't bothered him.

The Canadiens also picked up Vladimir Malakhov along with Turgeon, giving them one of the most promising defencemen in the League. Another plus came in the offseason deal for the big Marc Bureau in exchange for Brian Bellows. Certainly the Habs want to be tougher on the road, where they won just three games last season, fewest in the League.

Throw in some maturing rookies, such as centre Brian Savage and wingers Valeri Bure and Turner Stevenson, and the Canadiens appear to be playoff bound again.

They still have Patrick Roy, now 30, but still capable of greatness as long as the Habs get their act together in front of him. Jacques Demers returns as coach. He and general manager Serge Savard are convinced many of last year's problems in the dressing room have since been cleared up.

Much will depend on getting the high-profile players who remain back on track. The offence conked out with just 125 goals; only the Senators scored fewer in the Northeast Division. The arrival of centre Saku Koivu is expected to address some of the problem.

Falling numbers weren't really a problem for forwards Vincent Damphousse, Benoit Brunet and Mike Keane.

And Yves Racine, an offensive defenceman acquired from the Flyers in the previous off-season, will also benefit from a full 82-game slate.

After his late arrival, Pierre Turgeon had 11 goals and 20 points in his 15 games in Montreal.

Patrick Roy: solid .906 save percentage despite facing League-high 1,357 shots over 2,566 minutes

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Recchi exploded off the right wing after the trade, with 43 points in 39 games after getting five in 10 with the Flyers. His 32 assists overall led the team. Turgeon had their only hat trick, topping the club in goals with 24 and tying for the League's longest scoring streak, 21 points over 14 games during April. Damphousse, with 40 points, was encouraged by his plus 15, by far the best on the club. The Canadiens chose 10 prospects ahead of Savage in the 1991 Draft, but the centre had 12 goals and 19 points to finish tied for 10th among league rookies last season. They can expect more from other youngsters such as Bure and Stevenson. Bureau had 14 points in 48 games in a defensive role with the Lightning, but has yet to match his great minor-league numbers in the NHL. Checking centre Mark Lamb is also capable of 20-plus points.

DEFENCE

Montreal ranked 11th of the 14 Eastern teams in giving up 148 goals, and their defence must improve on both sides of centre. Malakhov led the Montreal rear-guards with 21 points last year and had 47 assists in his last full season. Lyle Odelein was the only defenceman to play all 48 games and was his usual boisterous self, but he's capable of more points and a better plus/minus: at minus 13, he was the lowest on the team. Veterans Patrice Brierebois, J.J. Daigneault and Bryan Fogarty all figured more prominently after the departure of Mathieu Schneider, but Fogarty may not return this season. Peter Popovic, a stay-at-home type, saw action in 33 games in his second season in Montreal.

GOALTENDING

No one in the League played more than Roy's 2,566 minutes, though 2.97 represented his third highest goals-against average in a decade. He had just one shutout compared to seven the year before and had his first losing season in the NHL. But after five All-Star Team selections, it's safe to say his play was a reflection of what went on in front of him. His workload obviously didn't leave much for back-up Ron Tugnutt, who was 1-3-1 in seven appearances. He may not return.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Montreal allowed just three shorthand goals, but major improvement is called for here. A 16.3% power play and 8.6% penalty-killing unit dropped them from plus eight to minus 11 on the special teams index, ahead of just four other teams. Recchi, Turgeon, Damphousse and Fogarty had 17 of the 28 power-play goals. Brunet had Montreal's only shorthand goal.

NEW FACES

Koivu prepared for the NHL by winning the Finnish League scoring title with 74 points, leading his team to that country's club championship and his country to the gold medal at the World Championship. Another European forward expected to make more of an impact is Bure. The Canadian prospects at camp include centre Darcy Tucker and defenceman David Wilkie.

OUTLOOK

The last season in the Forum should be a memorable one for the Habs, now the only NHL team in Quebec. They're going to be a better regular-season team, but hope to develop a new playoff identity.

Mark Recchi: 14 goals and 43 points in 39 games with Montreal

Vladimir Malakhov: 21 points in 40 games overall on blueline

To outsiders, they were the ugly ducklings of the NHL, but the New Jersey Devils looked pretty sharp posing with the Stanley Cup.

The Jersey jokes came to a crashing halt on June 24, when the Devils completed a stunning four-game sweep of the Detroit Red Wings.

Those who followed the team closely weren't that surprised they made the Final. After all, most of the cast had played the year before when the Devils lost that heart-breaking double-overtime seventh game to the Rangers in the Conference Final.

But to do it all over again, then sweep the Final in the face of numerous distractions was an amazing story. In the post-championship crush, almost every Devil remarked they'd done it all without an identifiable superstar, relying instead on hard work and deadly execution of their much-maligned trap.

"(Coach) Jacques Lemaire knew there were no stars when he came in here, so we had to play a good system or we'd have to forget winning," said winger Stephane Richer.

And the Devils' diversity was reflected in their goal totals in the playoffs - 20 players had at least one. Conn Smythe Trophy winner Claude Lemieux's 13 led all playoff scorers.

The fine-tuning of the roster by president/general manager Lou Lamoriello was astute. He took Neal Broten from lifelong service in Minnesota/Dallas and got four playoff game-winning goals from him. Broten finished second to Richer in regular-season and playoff scoring.

What the trap didn't stop or turn into a New Jersey scoring chance was handled by Martin Brodeur at the other end. He played all but eight minutes of the playoffs.

The Cup victory was most satisfying for the longest-serving Devils, defencemen Bruce Driver and Ken Daneyko and winger John MacLean, who have been with the club since it arrived from Colorado 13 years ago.

The year was also a triumph for defenceman Scott Stevens, who solidified his name among the league's top defencemen.

The Devils played all four series without home-ice advantage, but set a record by winning 10 road playoff games.

"We never had respect from anyone," commented Lemaire afterwards. "When you don't get any credit you go harder."

Captain Scott Stevens led a strong New Jersey defence corps with his 22 points over 48 games.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

It was tough to find a Devil on any leader board in any regular-season department, but of course that was rectified in the playoffs. Richer's 21 points were second to Sergei Fedorov and he added two game-winning goals to his five in the regular season. Richer and Lemieux are respected for making the big plays. Broten's turnaround was stunning after the trade, as he had 47 points in 50 regular-season and post-season games. MacLean had 29 regular-season points and paced the forwards with a plus 13 mark. Bill Guerin led a host of grinding Devils with his 25 points. Also figuring prominently was the Crash Line of Randy McKay, Mike Peluso and Bobby Holik, underrated elsewhere, but tremendous as a unit here. Bob Carpenter, one of 12 Americans on the team, was a forgotten player until he joined the Devils. Valeri Zelepukin will be back after missing 44 regular-season games last year.

DEFENCE

Stevens battled some of the toughest in the game in the playoffs, everyone from Eric Lindros to Dino Ciccarelli, and he did it effectively and without letting his emotions boil over. Danevko, former Tampa Bay Lightning Shawn Chambers and Driver were also effective. And the playoffs were a coming-out party for Scott Niedermayer, who scored a memorable Game 2 goal to deflate the Wings. Tommy Albelin has now played seven years on the blueline here with consistent results. Rookie Kevin Dean played 20 regular-season and playoff games.

GOALTENDING

Brodeur helped the Devils to fifth in the League with a team 2.48 goals-against average, before lowering his own mark well below 2.00 in the playoffs, among the top 10 performances in playoff history. His six shutouts overall last season included three against Boston in the opening round. Chris Terreri appeared in 15 regular-season games and though he played just a piece of a game in the playoffs, he remains an important member of the Devils' roster.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Jersey's regular-season power play looked nothing like championship timber, finishing last in the NHL on the road and 23rd overall. The penalty killing was middle of the pack, but both units improved greatly in the post-season, especially the power play which was 30.8% on the road and 25.0% overall. Guerin and Niedermayer had four power-play goals each in the regular season, while 11 different Devils struck in the playoffs. Richer had three of the club's four shorthand goals, overall.

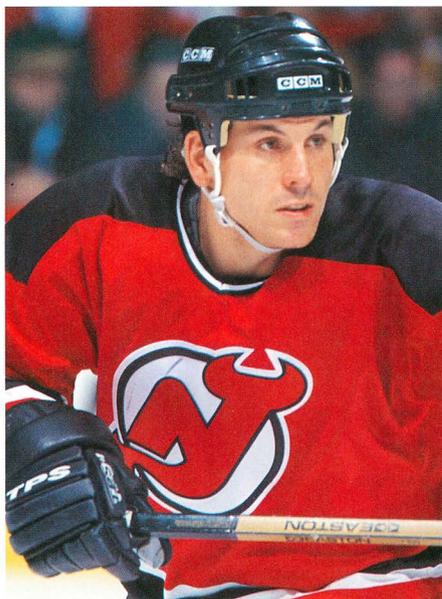

NEW FACES

New Jersey's farm team, the Albany River Rats, won the American Hockey League title, thus enhancing a few players' chances. Dean could stick for the season after a good debut last year. Centre Steve Sullivan, drafted 10th, 233rd overall in 1994, was a pleasant surprise in Albany and will get a long look at training camp. He led the River Rats and all AHL rookies in scoring with his 81 points. Goaltenders Corey Schwab and Mike Dunham will take another shot at cracking the lineup.

OUTLOOK

With the possible move to Nashville no longer a distraction, Lamorello can turn his attention to a number of contracts that will have to be sorted out. Driver is an unrestricted free agent and Brodeur is much sought after. Assistant Larry Robinson won't be back. He will be behind the bench in Los Angeles as the new head coach of the Kings. But the Devils have tremendous depth in their system and Lemaire has shown that he gets the best from all players on his roster.

Shawn Chambers: 21 points in 45 games overall on blueline

Bob Carpenter: two-way veteran with 16 points in 41 games

A change in uniform is quite appropriate for the New York Islanders, a team that has undergone quite a transition on and off the ice in the last year.

Fans will notice a hint of Boston behind the bench in new head coach Mike Milbury and, of course, some Montreal seasoning on the ice where Kirk Muller and Mathieu Schneider were brought in late last season.

The big trades were too late to salvage a year in which the Islanders finished last in the Atlantic Division and 25th overall. But a post-season berth off the coming full schedule is a legitimate aim.

The first thing required is time to assimilate the new faces. Seventeen different players made Islander debuts last season, eight of them NHL rookies.

Then Milbury must instill the old Islander Cup pride, borrowing heavily from his 12 years as a die-hard Bruin player and two years as coach.

Milbury's tenure as Boston's coach saw the Bruins finish first in their division twice and get as far as the 1990 Final.

Pierre Turgeon and Benoit Hogue, who'd come in the Pat LaFontaine blockbuster deal with Buffalo, were moved out. The Turgeon deal with the Habs brought Muller, respected as one of the game's great competitors, and Schneider, who returns to his birthplace.

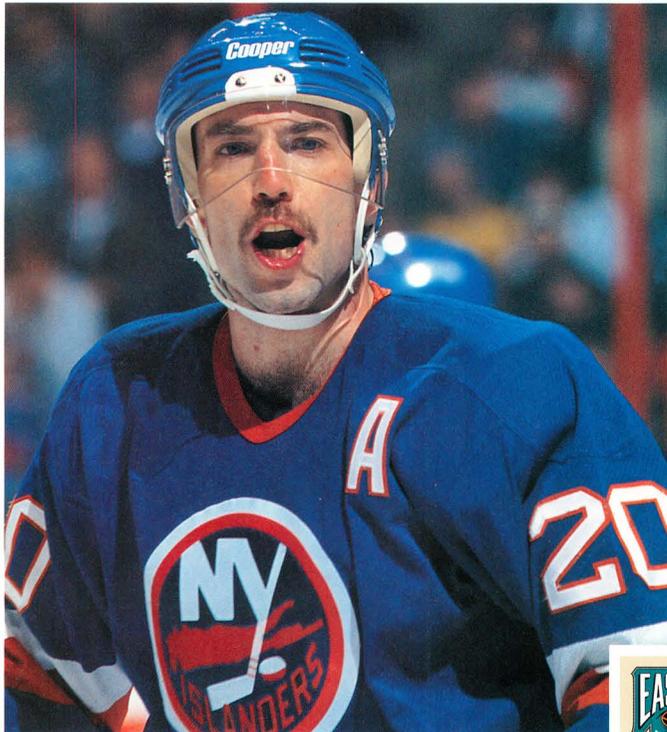

Hogue yielded Eric Fichaud, a Quebec Junior League goaltender who has been earmarked for stardom since Toronto took him in the first round in 1994.

Islanders general manager Don Maloney, already deep in young goaltenders with 26-year-old Tommy Soderstrom and 24-year-olds Tommy Salo and Jamie McLennan, may wind up dealing one of them for more immediate assistance elsewhere.

The Islanders weren't exactly poor before all these deals came down. Hard-working centre Ray Ferraro has given this franchise five strong seasons and led them in scoring last year with his 22 goals and 43 points. But as an unrestricted free agent, he was signed by the arch-rival Rangers during the off-season.

Another mainstay, Pat Flatley, recorded 20 assists and was plus nine, best among the forwards.

Contributing to the Islanders' woes last season was a rash of injuries to key members of the blueline staff and a drop in goal production from Steve Thomas. Normally a sharpshooter, he fell to 11 goals last year.

Ray Ferraro moves to the Rangers this season after leading the Islanders in scoring last year.

Tommy Soderstrom: 3.11 average, .902 save percentage in 26 games

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

The Isles want the Muller who had 94 points three years ago, not the one with a combined 84 since then. If Thomas returns to form, he can be a force on left wing and get the 31 goals he requires for 300 in the NHL. Ferraro owned the best shooting percentage on the team (23.4%), which was also fourth best in the League and highest in the Eastern Conference. But Derek King's assists have gone up as his goals have gone down the last couple of years, and he's another one who must shake off a sub-par season. The Islanders checkers must make a lot more happen. Marty McInnis, Travis Green, Mick Vukota and Brad Dalgarno combined for just 17 goals last year. The encouraging news among the rookies was Zigmund Palffy's 10 goals and 17 points. It was a difficult adjustment for first-round pick Brett Lindros (one goal in 33 games) but he'll get better.

DEFENCE

Schneider had nine points in 13 games following the trade, a trend the club hopes continues. The team hasn't had a dominant defenceman since Denis Potvin. Then it gets thin after Scott Lachance and the sometimes reckless, but effective, Darius Kasparaitis. Journeyman Chris Luongo and Dennis Vaske, and farmhand Dean Chynoweth wound up playing the most games because of injuries to Kasparaitis, Lachance, Bob Beers, Paul Stanton and Rich Pilon. Fourteen defencemen were in uniform last season, contributing to the Islanders finishing second last in the conference in team defence.

GOALTENDING

Tommy Soderstrom wrapped up his first complete NHL season with a .902 save percentage and much better numbers than in his final year with the Flyers. He has battled a heart problem in the past, but seems ready to fend off McLennan, Salo and, if necessary, Fichaud. Despite the overall problems in their own zone, the team's goals-against average of 3.26 was better than seven other clubs, including Pittsburgh and San Jose. Only three rookie goaltenders played more games than McLennan's 21. Salo won only one of six games, but had a fine .905 save percentage and 3.02 average.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Only Anaheim took a worse beating on the special teams index as a struggling power play put the Isles at minus 25. They had a League-low 10 power-play goals at home and they gave up a League-high 11 shorthand. Schneider on the point should help cure that. Schneider and Muller combined for seven power-play goals all of last year. King had seven among full-time Isles. Lachance and Thomas three. The Islanders scored only four shorthand goals, two by the departed Turgeon.

NEW FACES

impressed scouts with his tidiness in his own end. Bryan McCabe, a 6-foot-1, 200-pound defenceman from Brandon and Spokane, was on the verge of making the team at the 1994 camp. And the aggressive Todd Bertuzzi is under contract and could be ready. The 6-foot-3, 225-pound centre had 54 goals and 119 points with Guelph last season, sixth best in the OHL. If Lindros finds his niche the Isles will have one of the biggest squads in the League. Salo and Fichaud will battle at camp to unseat McLennan.

OUTLOOK

It may be too much to ask to have the three New York-area teams win the Cup in successive years, but the Islanders are at least back on the right track. Milbury had been unsure about what arm of the hockey business he wanted to concentrate on, but seems happy to be back behind the bench.

Steve Thomas: 11 goals, including three on power-play unit

That's life on Broadway, where one night you're on top of the world and then before you know it, the show has closed.

The New York Rangers had little time to enjoy their first Stanley Cup win in 54 years. The Mike Keenan controversy quickly ensued, then the lockout and a lacklustre regular season. Their finest hour came in a first-round upset of the Eastern Conference-leading Quebec Nordiques, but that took a lot out of them and they lost two overtime games in Philadelphia en route to being swept by the Flyers.

Jersey, take the Cup for its own.

President/general manager Neil Smith was quick to defend new coach Colin Campbell, who inherited the team under difficult circumstances. But he also vowed to make changes to a roster which had broken down in too many places, even when taking injuries into account.

Captain Mark Messier and defenceman Brian Leetch did all that was asked of them, leading the team in scoring in the regular season and playoffs, respectively, and picking up sagging teammates when they could. Sergei Zubov again helped Leetch with his points and power-play assistance.

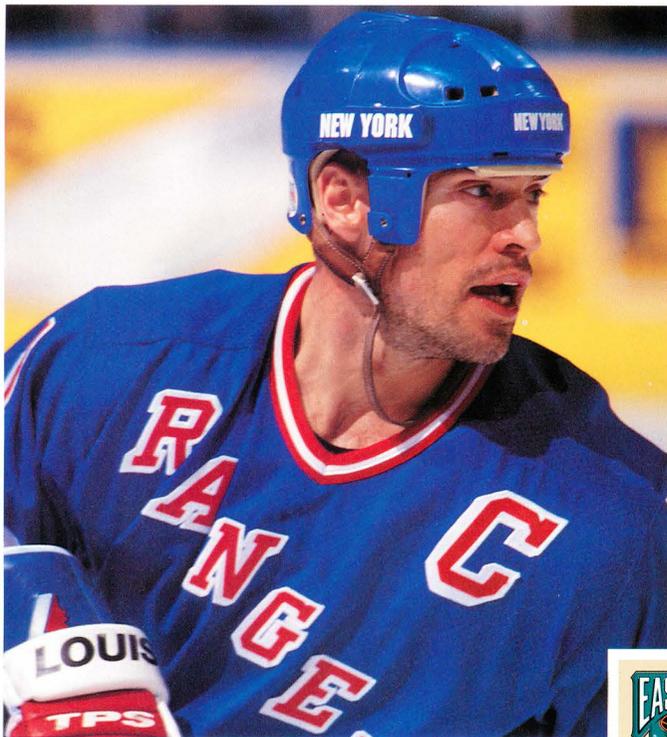

The late-season trade for Hartford's Pat Verbeek paid dividends and Steve Lamer was as combative as ever. Adam Graves led the team with a plus nine, before labouring through the two playoff rounds with back pain and a minus 13.

Goaltender Mike Richter had led the League with 42 and 16 wins in the regular season and playoffs respectively the year before, but he was off his game last year as well.

And some character and experience departed the scene in forwards Esa Tikkanen, Craig MacTavish, Greg Gilbert and Glenn Anderson. The Rangers never seemed able to replace that.

But Smith has made his first move to correct the problem. He signed hard-working, two-way centre Ray Ferraro during the off-season. An eleven-year NHL veteran, Ferraro had 116 goals and 238 points in his five years with the Islanders.

The Rangers have some great talent on hand and on the farm. They were the classic example of a team that was hurt by the shortened schedule because it limited their time to develop new team chemistry.

Mark Messier enjoyed another fine season, leading the Rangers with his 14 goals and 53 points.

OFFENCE

New York had eight players record 100 shots or more, led by Graves with his 185. He and Verbeek had 17 goals apiece in the regular season, with 10 of Verbeek's coming after the trade. Messier finished 10th in League scoring, sixth in assists and topped the Rangers for the third time in the last four seasons. He also tied for the season's longest assist streak of eight games. Larmer hit the 1,000 mark in points and games played. The Russian Rangers lagged a bit, Alexei Kovalev held to 28 points and Sergei Nemchinov to just 13, though Kovalev rebounded in the playoffs. The Rangers were second to the Flyers in Atlantic Division regular-season scoring, yet there were too many silent sticks in clutch games. Petr Nedved was held to 23 points. Stephane Matteau had only three goals in the playoffs and regular season combined.

DEFENCE

They were the only NHL team to have two defencemen among their top three scorers as Leetch continued his strong play from the 1994 playoffs. His 41 points put him fourth among League rearguards. Zubov, who led the team last year with 89 points, dropped to 36, but that was good enough for ninth. He had 11 in the playoffs. But pure defensive work suffered and could continue to do so if Kevin Lowe, an unrestricted free agent, leaves and too much of the work is thrust on the likes of Jeff Beukeboom, Alexander Karpovtsev and the 36-year-old veteran Jay Wells.

GOALTENDING

Richter's 292 regular-season goals-against average preceded a 3.59 mark in the playoffs. But with their Cup rings largely made possible by his heroics the previous spring and taking into account the entire team's role in the quick exit, no one was laying the blame at his door. Campbell didn't hesitate to call veteran Glenn Healy's number in the regular season or the playoffs. Healy had a 2-1 post-season record with a 3.39 goals-against average, after posting a 2.36 average, a .907 save percentage and an 8-6-1 record in the regular season.

SPECIAL TEAMS

They were a respectable eighth, though they dropped from plus 44 to plus eight on the special teams index last year. A 20% successful power play, including the League's second-best home operation, helped the cause, with Graves supplying nine goals overall. Messier had three of the club's five shorthand goals, as the penalty killers worked at 83.9%, 10th best in the League.

NEW FACES

Defenceman Mattias Norstrom played nine games last year, but his value is not as a scorer. Niklas Sundstrom, picked eighth overall at the 1993 Draft, has an outside chance of staying. Dan Cloutier, a first-round pick in 1995, is a goaltender with a good NHL future, but could be a couple of years away. Ferraro is a most important addition.

OUTLOOK

It's a year of challenge for the club. They're definitely going to get better, but so too are the Flyers and Devils. Messier will turn 35 this year and much will depend on keeping him in the lineup and working at 100%. Management will not spend recklessly to get the Cup back.

Brian Leetch: blueline leader with nine goals and 41 points

Adam Graves: 31 points, including a team-leading 17 goals

After drafting centres in the first rounds of previous Entry Drafts who were often compared to Gretzky and Lemieux, the Ottawa Senators now have a defenceman who's been tagged a future Leetch or Chelios.

Bryan Berard of the Detroit Jr. Red Wings is actually considered closer to the rough and tumble Chelios, combining those traits with a flashy offensive package that the Senators badly need.

"Bryan has components in his game you just can't teach," said Ottawa general manager Randy Sexton of the No. 1 overall pick in the 1995 Entry Draft.

Now, the Senators' problem is to convince the NHL to start the schedule with the April games first and October's at the end.

There's no telling what the Senators could do if they began on a roll instead of ending on one as they did last season. A 5-2 record over the last seven games represented 10 of their 23 points. The nine wins overall were just five short of their 1993-94 total - in 36 fewer games.

They might also think about switching from the Northeast Division. Eight of their wins and 19 of their points came against Atlantic Division clubs.

In addition, Sylvain Turgeon had the League's longest points streak at the conclusion of the regular season, eight games with eight goals and five assists. Alexei Yashin was second with consecutive assists, eight in his final five games.

Hopefully, Berard won't have the same baptism of fire that Yashin, Alexandre Daigle and Radek Bonk went through. But Ottawa chose this exact course, hoping the youngsters would profit from the playing time and knowing that their fans would be patient.

That's not to say the 165 losses in three years have been easy for the players, for the club, or for the fans.

There were also 20 rookies in and out of the lineup the last two seasons, trying to make names for themselves under difficult circumstances.

But there is enough veteran backbone on the Senators in the likes of netminder Don Beaupre, forwards Randy Cunneyworth, Phil Bourque and Troy Mallette and defenceman Kerry Huffman to keep the team together until fortunes change for the better.

And with the great group of youngsters the Senators have assembled, they shouldn't have long to wait.

Alexei Yashin had a fine sophomore season, leading the Senators with 21 goals and 44 points.

Don Beaupre: eight wins with 3.36 average and one shutout

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Yashin, who had 79 points the year before, led the club in goals, assists and points for the second straight year. Daigle was seven points behind, but no one else on the club reached 20. Turgeon had just six points before his dash at the wire. Ex-Pittsburgh sniper Martin Straka had 16 points before the trade and two in his six games here, which should improve this season. He had 64 in his only full NHL season the previous year. A pleasant surprise was rookie Steve Larouche, a forgotten Montreal draft pick of six years ago, who had 15 points in 18 games and helped out on the power play. Bonk had a disappointing season with only three goals and 11 points in 42 games, after getting 87 points with the Thunder of the International Hockey League, but he's not yet 20. Middle-range scorers such as Pat Flynnuk and Dave McLivain suffered drops in production.

DEFENCE

In 58 OHL games Berard had 74 points, of which the Senators would gladly take half this year. Last season was a small victory, as the club didn't finish last in goals against again or even second last as the year before. Although 3.58 goals against per game isn't great, three other teams were tied or behind them. Injuries forced the Senators to use three rookies including Stanislav Neckar who was the only rearguard on the club to play all 48 games. Ex-Duck Sean Hill, in his first year in Ottawa, had 15 points in 45 games to lead the group. Veteran Chris Dahlquist played 46 games, but Jim Pack and Dennis Vial were held to 29 and 27 respectively. The 10 defencemen combined for just six goals.

GOALTENDING

At age 34, Don Beaupre didn't want to be eased out to pasture so he refused the lure of free agency and a low-stress back-up role somewhere else to continue being Ottawa's No. 1. He has not been worn down by the deluge of work or frustrated by the inexperience in front of him. During last season he moved into 13th place on the League's list of games played by goaltenders by appearing in 623. His personal goals-against average was 3.36 last year and he needs 38 wins for 300. Darren Madeley and Craig Billington split the back-up duties most of last year, but Billington went to Boston at the trade deadline.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Another vast improvement was Ottawa's move from a League-worst minus 52 on the special teams index in 1993-94 to minus 13. Their 14.4% power play was better than five teams, including the Cup champion New Jersey. Yashin scored 11 power-play goals, tied for sixth best in the League. The rest of the squad had 20. Larouche was featured high in many rookie power-play statistics. Ottawa was 20th in penalty killing, Daigle picking up the lone shorthand goal.

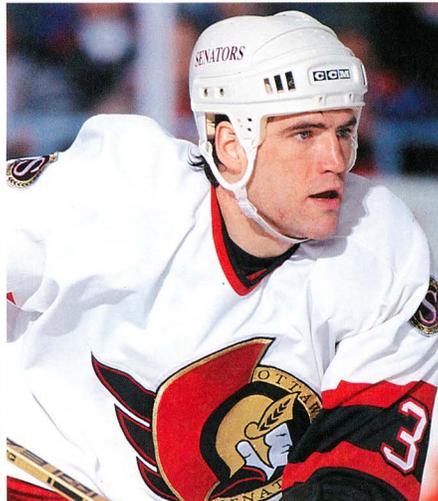

NEW FACES

Berard has every intention of making the team and staying the whole year. Right winger Pavol Demitra had seven points in 16 games and Radim Bicanek, a hard-shooting Czech trained in the OHL, was a plus three in his six games last year. Both could stick this year. In the off-season the Senators made a trade for New Jersey defenceman Jaroslav Modry and signed free-agent centre Dan Quinn, who returns to Ottawa after one year in Los Angeles where he had 14 goals and 31 points. Four of his goals were game winners.

OUTLOOK

The Senators can take a big step this year to shed their expansion clothes. Some world-class players are now fixtures on the roster and they'll soon have a big new building in which to cavort. Beaupre has been a big help, but the Senators must still close the gap that exists on defence. Coach Rick Bowness remains in the driver's seat, his optimism still not dented after three years on the job.

Sean Hill: 15 points in 45 games to lead blueline corps

Steve Larouche: eight goals, 15 points in 18 games as rookie

Almost 20 years separates the Hart Memorial Trophy won by Philadelphia Flyers Eric Lindros and his boss Bob Clarke, but both have taken big strides to bring the Stanley Cup back to Broad Street.

If their first year together is any indication, Lindros as the League's dominant player and Clarke as the crafty general manager, then it shouldn't be a long wait.

The Flyers broke a five-year playoff hex by winning the Atlantic Division, their first such title in eight years. Lindros bullied his way to the front of the parade, while Clarke made what many called the best trade of the year.

In early February, Clarke sent Mark Recchi and a third-round draft choice to Montreal for big left winger John LeClair, forward Gilbert Dionne and defenceman Eric Desjardins. The new Flyers turned the club into contenders.

LeClair teamed with Lindros and Mikael Renberg to form the Legion of Doom, which compiled a phenomenal 159 points in the 36 regular-season games they played. Lindros and LeClair were named as First Team All-Stars. Another 40 points followed in the playoffs as the Flyers came within two wins of beating the eventual champion New Jersey Devils in the Eastern Final.

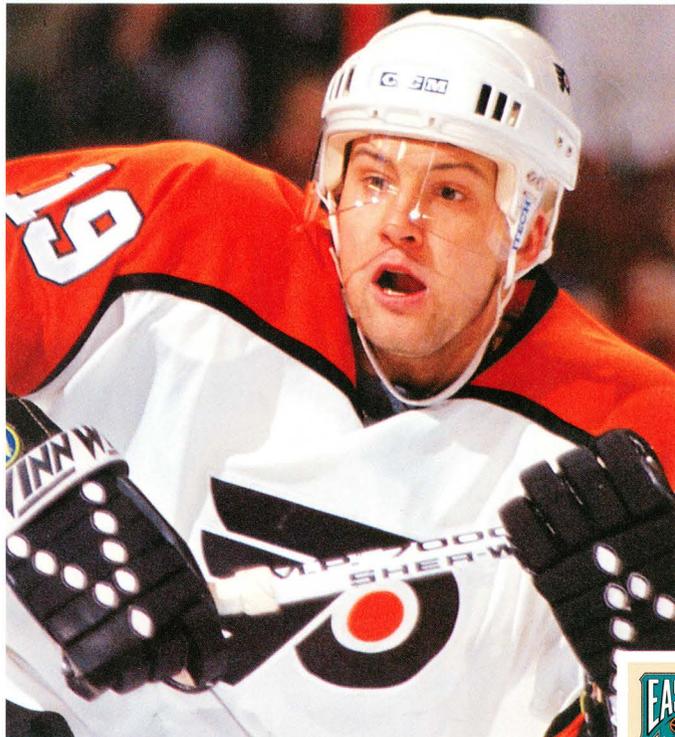

"We had no idea that LeClair would score this many goals (25), no idea at all," said Clarke in trying to play down the praise heaped his way.

Desjardins broke out for 23 points after the deal and helped the blueline to the sixth-best defensive record in the conference.

But it was Lindros's show from the drop of the puck in January. His first two seasons had been marred by injuries and his absence had a lot to do with the Flyers missing the playoffs by just a few points on both occasions. But with LeClair and Renberg on his wings, he rolled through the East, getting in on 70 of the club's division-leading 150 goals.

But much credit was also due coach Terry Murray, in his first year here after five seasons in Washington. He picked up a Jack Adams Award nomination, getting the Flyers to win for him with his light-handed touch. That rubbed off on players such as the ex-Canadiens, as well as Rod Brind'Amour (who led the club in playoff scoring) and Ron Hextall, who returned to the scene of his first NHL success.

OFFENCE

Lindros, who now has 257 regular-season and playoff points in his 184 games, tied with Pierre Turgeon of Montreal for the season's longest scoring streak of 14 games. Both had 21 points. Lindros's assist streak of eight games was also tied for the lead, and his plus 27 was fourth best. Renberg was eighth in League scoring with 57 points. LeClair hit a career high in points and had seven game-winning goals, despite the shortened season. Kevin Dineen, among the grittiest of the Flyers, took a drop in production, but he and Craig MacTavish, who turned 37 in the summer, bring character to the team. Flyers that are expected to do better this season are Dionne and Patrik Juhlin, who had seven points in 42 games as a rookie.

DEFENCE

Besides Desjardins' play, Chris Therien played 48 games and led League rookie defencemen in scoring to grab a spot on the All-Rookie Team. The club was 3-6-1 prior to the big trade and Desjardins was given a fair share of compliments after the club began pulling itself together. The Flyers had given up the second-most goals in the East the year before. Desjardins led the club's defence in the playoffs again with his plus 13, tied for second best overall. Three of the top eight scorers on the team were defencemen: Desjardins, Dimitri Yushkevich and Therien. But the budding Flyer blueline also includes the tough Kevin Haller, savvy vet Petr Svoboda and youngster Karl Dykhuis. Haller was the plus minus leader among the group at plus 16. The Flyers added experience and toughness in the off-season, signing Kjell Samuelsson as a free agent from Pittsburgh.

GOALTENDING

Hextall's last two years with the Flyers weren't very memorable, but in stops in Quebec and Long Island he compiled a record of 56-42-11 between 1992 and 1994. That set up his triumphant return, his best year since the Flyers went to the 1989 Cup Final. His 2.89 goals-against average was his lowest in nine NHL seasons and his record of 17-9-4 contained one shutout. His numbers were even better in the playoffs. The problem with his return was a curtailed workload for Dominic Roussel, who was 11-7-0 in 19 games with a sparkling save percentage of .914. The Flyers took a goaltender in the Draft's first round, Brian Boucher of Tri-City, 22nd overall, and acquired the rights to Garth Snow from Colorado in the off-season.

SPECIAL TEAMS

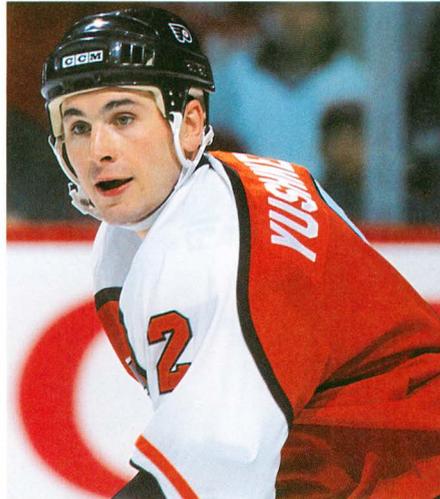

Despite their offensive boom, the Flyers made no significant move on the special teams index from a year before. The Legion of Doom had 20 power-play goals among them, and overall the Flyers were eighth with a 19.6% success rate. What hurt the Flyers was penalty killing, 18th overall, with just two short-hand goals, by Brind Amour and Yushkevich. In the playoffs, the Flyers gave up a whopping 15 power-play goals. That problem should be rectified this season. The Flyers added free agent Joel Otto during the summer. One of the League's best defensive centres, Otto was twice a Selke finalist while with Calgary.

NEW FACES

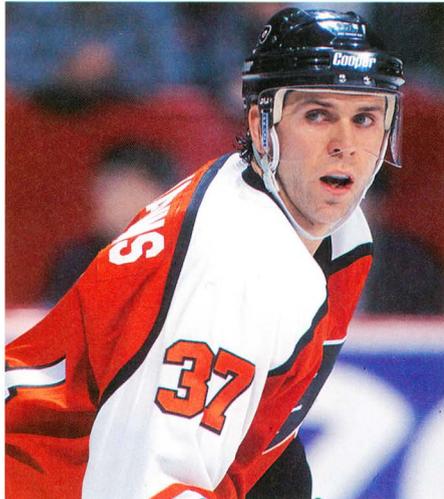

Otto and Samuelsson are major additions and Snow will battle for a spot at training camp. Two defencemen taken in the 1992 Draft, including the 15th overall selection Jason Bowen, are going to get a long look at camp. The rising star in the organization is Vladislav Boulin, a hard-hitting defenceman who spent last year in Hershey. But Bowen, who played four games last year, will likely get promoted first. A Finn, Janne Niinimä, could be running the power-play unit some day. The club is being very patient with young Ryan Sittler, a two-way forward, whose career has been slowed by injury.

OUTLOOK

The Flyers are suddenly targets in the Atlantic Division, but they have the talent and toughness to survive. The pressure now shifts to Lindros to get the Flyers deeper into the playoffs. Having beaten Buffalo and the Rangers last year, they know something of the extra stamina required to take the next step.

Dimitri Yushkevich: five goals and 14 points over 40 games

Eric Desjardins: 23 points and plus 10 in 34 games with Flyers

Mario Lemieux is back!

The news that No. 66 was returning cleared the gloom of a five-game second-round loss to New Jersey after the Pittsburgh Penguins had finished second in the Eastern Conference.

It was January of 1993 when Lemieux stunned the hockey world with the revelation that he was suffering from Hodgkin's Disease. Six weeks off for radiation treatments couldn't stop him from winning the Art Ross, Hart and Bill Masterton Trophies, but after playing just 22 games the following season, he announced he would rest in 1994-95, secretly thinking his career was over.

"My health is 100% better than this time last year," assured Lemieux.

Just to make sure, he'll likely be spared long road trips and some back-to-back games, at least until the playoffs. Many of the elements that surrounded him and led to two straight Stanley Cups are still in place.

Winger Jaromir Jagr assumed Lemieux's role as the club's premier forward, leading the club in scoring the past two seasons and winning last year's Art Ross Trophy to boot. The First Team All-Star right winger also gained a nomination for the Hart.

Dependable Ron Francis had a League-high 48 assists as well as being plus 30. He took home two awards, the Frank Selke as top defensive forward and the Lady Byng for good conduct.

Ageless winger Joe Mullen reached the 1,000-point mark, becoming the first American-born player to do so.

But there will be changes on defence. During the off-season, perennial star Larry Murphy was traded to Toronto and free agent Kjell Samuelsson signed with Philadelphia.

The effects of an early-season injury to Tom Barrasso were overcome when back-up Ken Wregget seized the No. 1 job and won a League-high 25 games.

Pittsburgh was one team that definitely didn't suffer from the layoff, bursting out of the starting gate with 12 wins and a tie. They received big seasons from Luc Robitaille and Tomas Sandstrom, players who were acquired to replace Lemieux's offence.

And general manager Craig Patrick managed to build a good part of the team by signing free agents such as John Cullen and stocking the roster with waiver orphans such as centre Mike Hudson and defencemen Chris Joseph and Francois Leroux.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

The last time Lemieux played even just 60 games, he had 100 points. While Jagr's last two full seasons have yielded 94 and 99 points, Jagr had 70 points in his 48 games last year, including 32 goals, seven of them game winners. Francis had 59 regular-season points and led the squad with 19 points in the playoffs. Robitaille, a five-time First Team All-Star, is looking to get back to a 100-point pace. He had 23 goals and 42 points last season. Mullen and Cullen had 37 points each. Kevin Stevens had just 15 goals and 27 points in 27 games of an injury-shortened season. But he has been in triple figures with 50-plus goals when playing alongside Lemieux. The speedy Shawn McEachern chipped in with 13 goals and 26 points. The Penguins' 181 goals were second only to the Quebec Nordiques' 185.

DEFENCE

Some of Murphy's numbers will be replaced by Dmitri Mironov, who was just starting to hit his stride with the Leafs in 1993-94. Teams around the League continue to be frustrated by the punishing Ulf Samuelsson. He was plus 11, second only to Murphy's 12 among Pittsburgh defencemen. The Penguins felt confident enough in their scoring to trade Martin Straka to Ottawa for defenceman Norm Maciver, who had nine assists in 13 games here. Joseph, a former No. 1 draft pick of the team in 1987, took the long way back through Edmonton and Tampa Bay. He contributed five goals and 15 points in 33 games. Veterans Greg Hawgood and Peter Taglianetti were hampered by injuries. The Penguins picked up former Toronto first rounder Drake Berehovsky at the trade deadline in April.

GOALTENDING

Wregget had never won 25 games in his three different stops around the League, but fortune smiled on him at age 31, as he filled in admirably for the former Vezina Trophy winner. He had a solid .903 save percentage and his 3.21 goals-against average was his best in nine full seasons in the NHL. He shut out Washington in Game 7 of Pittsburgh's opening round victory. But Barrasso wants his job back, and that points to a competitive training camp. Barrasso has still played twice as many playoff games. Philippe DeRouville, who played one game last year, is available for emergency situations.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Despite their increased firepower, the Penguins didn't make much noise on the special teams index, barely moving from their break-even point of two years ago. Penalty killing hurt them. In fact only three non-playoff teams, Anaheim, Edmonton and the Islanders, fared worse than Pittsburgh's 79.9%. But by the same token, their tenacity led to eight short-hand goals, three by Jagr and two each by McEachern and Mullen. Jagr added eight power-play goals and six of Stevens' goals were scored while on the power-play unit.

NEW FACES

Mironov should help the power play. DeRouville could likely be in the NHL now somewhere, but will have a tough time here where Barrasso and Wregget are battling it out. Berchowsky could get some steady work, but the Penguins already have Chris Tamer fighting for the same role. Centre Chris Wells of Seattle, checking in at 6-foot-6, could add to the Penguins' muscle. Defenceman Ian Moran was not a factor at last year's training camp as some had hoped, but he intends to show off his scoring touch. Pittsburgh is a hard team to crack with so much talent and experience already in place.

OUTLOOK

Lemieux arrives as the Penguins try to figure some way to get beyond the second round. He solves a lot of the problem. Coach Eddie Johnston gets along very well with Lemieux and all the Penguins should be playing a little taller now.

Larry Murphy: traded to Toronto after 13-goal, 38-point season

Ulf Samuelsson: 16 points and plus 11 in 44 games on blueline

Perhaps no NHL team lives up to its name more than the San Jose Sharks – silent and deadly killers who prefer to strike in the spring playoffs.

Just ask the Calgary Flames, who were last year's first-round upset victims or the 1994 Detroit Red Wings or even the Toronto Maple Leafs of that year, who barely escaped alive.

The Sharks seemed to have an unimposing roster again last season, only three "plus" players, no one with 100 shots on goal and a record that was six games below .500. But they certainly didn't lack grit or determination.

Calgary had them down 3-2 in the opening round, but the Sharks rallied and won the clincher on Ray Whitney's double overtime goal.

What has kept the Sharks in every game is the close attention given to head coach Kevin Constantine's rigid game plan and superb goaltending from Arturs Irbe. Those elements didn't work as well as in 1994, but well enough to beat the Flames and throw a scare into everyone else. Again.

It took the strong desire for revenge on the part of the Red Wings to ambush the Sharks in the second round, treating them as if it were the Cup Final.

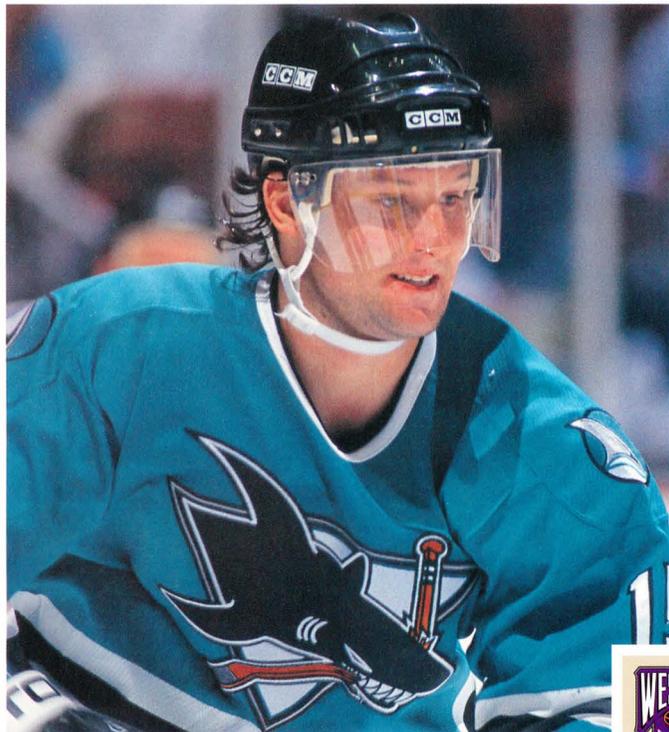

But changes designed to get the Sharks away from dependence on older players were instituted during the season and could be accelerated in 1995-96. Veterans such as Bob Errey, Johan Garpenlov, Todd Elik, Jeff Norton and Gaetan Duchesne were traded and some prospects were allowed to audition.

The Sharks will probably try to open up their game this season after 129 goals last season left them ahead of only Anaheim in Western Conference scoring. They picked up a bona fide scorer in Craig Janney from the Blues in early March. They have one of the most exciting youngsters in the NHL in winger Jeff Friesen and there is a horde of swift and talented Europeans on the horizon.

Dean Lombardi, the Sharks' director of hockey operations, said after the playoffs that the Detroit debacle, a four-game sweep in which the Sharks were outscored 24-6, may have been a blessing in disguise. He felt it pin-pointed the areas where the team needed improvement.

But as Detroit coach Scott Bowman said at the conclusion of the series, "The Sharks have a lot to look forward to."

Centre Craig Janney had 20 points in his 27 games with the Sharks after arriving from St. Louis.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

After some rough times in St. Louis, Janney appears to be happy on the West Coast, where he bagged 20 points in his 27 games after the trade. He has 217 points the last three years. Kevin Miller picked up after leaving the Blues as well, with 13 points in his 21 games. Ulf Dahlen showed he still fits in the club's plans by leading the Sharks in both regular-season and playoff scoring. He was in on 34 of the club's 129 regular-season goals. Friesen, named to the All-Rookie Team, gave the fans a show, finishing seventh among rookie scorers with a club-high 15 goals. Pat Falloon and Ray Whitney, the first two draft picks from the Sharks' inaugural season, continued to develop nicely. Whitney finished two goals behind Friesen, while equalling his 25 points. Sergei Makarov and Igor Larionov are both in their mid-30s, but are still productive. Right winger Andrei Nazarov impressed over 26 games with his toughness.

DEFENCE

ference, then averaging five against in the playoffs by the time the Detroit series ended. They may have missed Norton, but they are still bringing along Sandis Ozolinsh, who led the blueliners again in points, this time with 25. The youngsters they're counting on back there in the future include hulking Mike Rathje, Michal Sykora, Tom Pedersen and Vlastimil Kroupa. Veterans Slawn Cronin, Jayson More (a club-high plus seven) and Ilya Byakin can look after themselves, but they're not noted for their scoring.

GOALTENDING

Irbe's chunky white goalpads continued to be a source of frustration for NHL shooters, but the little Latvian had a bit of an off year. Despite four shutouts (tied for second in the League), his goals-against rose to 3.26 and although he made it into 38 of 48 games, the workaholic was often replaced by back-up Wade Flaherty, including the playoffs. Irbe did get into his 158th NHL game on April 28 which made him the all-time leader among European-born goaltenders. Flaherty, who had played only four NHL games up to last season, had some very big nights, enjoyed a .903 save percentage and won two playoff games. He got the chance when Jimmy Waite was traded to Chicago.

SPECIAL TEAMS

The Sharks remained mired near the bottom of the special teams index at minus 14, mostly due to an 11.8% power play, the second worst in the League. Friesen led the way with five power-play goals, Dahlen and Whitney had four each, but only four others scored at all. Rathje, scoreless on the unit during the regular season, surprised with five in the playoffs. Their six shorthand goals were scattered around the lineup as San Jose tied for a more respectable 14th in penalty killing.

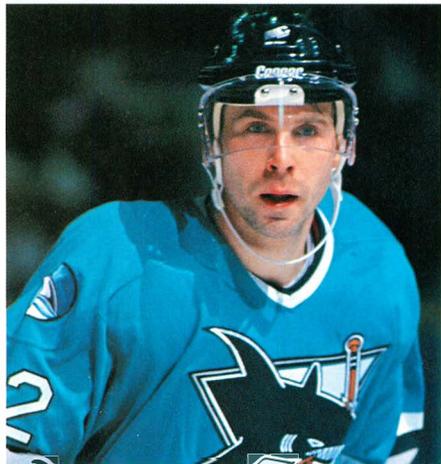

NEW FACES

Nazarov and Sykora should see more action this season, the former already raising some eyebrows on other teams. Centre Fredrick Nilsson challenged for a job at training camp last season before a shoulder injury intervened. Finnish left winger Ville Peltonen has been preparing himself in his country's league the last two years and the Sharks chose his countryman Teemu Riihijarvi, another left winger, 12th overall at the last Draft. Tenacious winger Shean Donovan auditioned over 14 games last season and could earn a permanent job this year.

OUTLOOK

An 82-game schedule should give management some time to work on its youth movement in preparation for a playoff run. But the Sharks cannot be complacent, considering how close the race in the West has been in the first two years of the seeding system. And the addition of Colorado to the conference lineup will make things more difficult this season. Some help will have to be found to augment or protect what little scoring the Sharks now possess.

Ulf Dahlen: club's leading scorer with 11 goals and 34 points

Ray Whitney: speedy centre with 13 goals, 25 points in 39 games

Contrary to public belief, the St. Louis Blues didn't take a step backward just because Mike Keenan didn't deliver a Stanley Cup in his first year behind the bench.

The Blues' tradition of offensive hockey continued and the veteran defence ranked in the top half of the League. The club won 28 games faster than any St. Louis team since 1980-81 and several players reached personal milestones, as well as Keenan who coached his 750th NHL game on March 20.

People may have expected more from Keenan after he won the Cup with New York in 1994, but there was no shame in losing a tough seven-game series to Vancouver, the team Keenan's Rangers needed to beat for that title.

The Blues intend to pick up where they left off in the regular season, a very healthy 13 games above .500 with an offence second only to the Red Wings in the Western Conference.

The bright lights on the Blues remain willing and able - led by Brett Hull, who has 415 goals in seven-plus seasons in St. Louis, and continues to evolve as an all-round player. He once again led the team in scoring, and in power-play and shorthand goals.

But it was the new blood that turned the Blues' engine in 1995. Al MacInnis and his booming shot joined from Calgary. Guy Carbonneau, former captain of the Montreal Canadiens, came west.

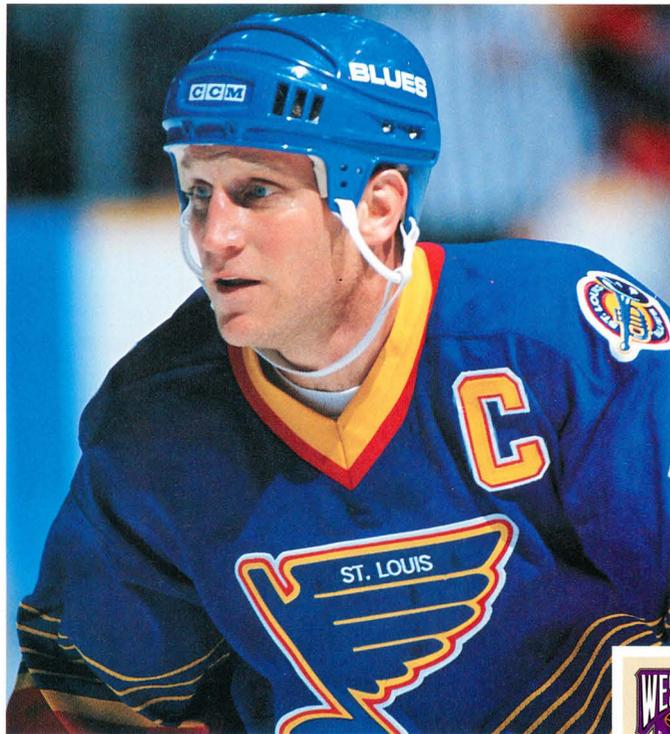

Esa Tikkanen and Glenn Anderson, both multi-Cup ring owners from Edmonton and the Rangers, were brought in with Greg Gilbert, a two-way winger who has followed Keenan to three of his four coaching jobs.

Todd Elik came from San Jose in the Kevin Miller trade and the Blues had an unexpected boost from rookies Ian Laperriere, Denis Chasse, Patrice Tardif and David Roberts.

A flurry of off-season activity saw Keenan add four free-agent veterans to the roster - forwards Dale Hawerchuk (from Buffalo), Geoff Courtnall (Vancouver) and Brian Noonan (NY Rangers) and goaltender Grant Fuhr (Los Angeles). Keenan also pulled the trigger on a blockbuster deal that sent rugged winger Brendan Shanahan to the Whalers in exchange for promising young defenceman Chris Pronger.

It's true that some of the older veterans were acquired with a fast dash to the top in mind, but no one is ready for the pasture.

Brett Hull's club-high 29 goals included nine on the power-play unit and six game winners.

OFFENCE

Hull was 14th in League scoring and tied for sixth in goals with 29. He had two hat tricks, including his first four-goal game. His 200 shots were second to Ray Bourque's of Boston, but the League's best shooting percentage belonged to another Blue. Laperriere scored 13 times on 53 shots for 24.5%, while Anderson tied for fifth at 22.2%. Hawerchuk is healthy again after being limited to 23 games last season, enough to get him over the 1,300-point barrier. Courtnall played part of one season here five years ago. Last season he had 16 goals and 34 points in Vancouver. After Hull's 29 goals and Shanahan's 20, six other Blues had double figures. Adam Creighton, one of the League's early-season scoring leaders, finished fifth on the Blues, but he was testing free agency. ● One of Tikkanen's 35 points was the 500th of his career. Hull and Shanahan's six game winners each tied for the most in the Western Conference.

DEFENCE

Injury limited MacInnis to 32 games, but he still had 20 assists. Steve Duchesne caught fire in his second year here, with 38 points and a team-high plus 29 that tied him for second in the League. Ex-Shark Jeff Norton and Duchesne ranked 1-2 in assists, 27-26. Keenan's system apparently bringing more life out of Norton, who has never made it through a full 80-plus game season. The Blues have one of the steadiest blueline corps in the League when you add in Bill Houlder, Rick Zombo, Donald Dufresne, Murray Baron and Doug Lidster. Pronger is entering his third NHL season and is a promising addition.

GOALTENDING

For the first time in his career. Curtis Joseph brought his regular season goals-against average below 3.00 to augment those 137 wins he's earned the Blues since 1989-90. Joseph had a 2.79 mark and a .902 save percentage to go along with his fourth 20-win season. Those 20 wins last year put him fourth in the League in that category. He saw only 904 shots, down from a League-high 2,382 the previous season. Jon Casey had to get used to life as a back-up after starting with the Stars and Bruins, appearing with a 7-5-4 record. Waiting in the wings for a chance is Geoff Sarjeant, with one win in four appearances. He might have to wait a little longer with the arrival of Fuhr.

SPECIAL TEAMS

The Blues' blueline fire-power had surprisingly little impact on the power play, which laboured at 16.2% and sent the Blues to minus five on the special teams index. That number represented a drop from plus 16. After Hull and Shanahan combined for 15 goals, there were sporadic contributions, but the Blues allowed a League-low two shorthand goals against, which tied with Washington. The Blues also had a rough time killing penalties. 21st at 80.3%. But that was partially offset by Hull's six shorthand points, tied for the League lead.

NEW FACES

Hawerchuk, Courtnall, Noonan, Pronger and Fuhr should all do well under Keenan. Roberts finished well in St. Louis, although he was shut out in the playoffs. The Blues don't have a lot of top prospects on hand because of lost first-round draft choices in previous moves, but they're high on defenceman Jamie Rivers and Alexander Vasilevskii, a right wing nugget they mined from the 11th round of the 1993 Draft.

OUTLOOK

Depending on their ability to keep some of the older players hungry another year, the Blues could succeed the Wings as the Central Division champs. Keenan knows the team well enough now to do some fine-tuning right up to the playoffs.

Al MacInnis: 28 points and plus 19 despite missing 16 games

Esa Tikkanen: 12 goals, 35 points and plus 13 in 43 games

On the surface, it may seem that the Tampa Bay Lightning trail in the race to become the first Florida team to get a playoff berth.

But there's lots of optimism in Tampa that Year Four can be a lot like Year One, when everyone in the League took the Lightning for granted and paid a heavy price, or Year Two, when they rattled off 71 points.

There are signs that Roman Hamrik, the club's first overall selection in 1992, is maturing. He scored 12 goals, three more than in his previous two seasons combined, and led the Lightning defence with 23 points. There had been worries a knee injury he suffered at the 1994 World Championship would hinder him.

Netminder Daren Puppa has just signed a new contract after registering his career-best goals-against average of 2.68.

But unless the club can find some way to start putting the puck in the net, it could be a very long winter. Only Florida and Ottawa scored fewer goals than Tampa's 120.

The Lightning can generate some offence when the mood suits them. Centre Brian Bradley has carved a nice little niche here, leading the team in scoring for a third straight year. They have other established League snipers such as Paul Ysebaert, Petr Klima and John Tucker.

Joining their company will be winger Brian Bellows, not over the hill by any means at 31, with a string of 30-plus goal seasons stretching back 12 years prior to last season.

In general, the Lightning are trying to introduce a group of younger players to the mix up front, plans that got a boost when they selected Daymond Langkow, a centre from the Western Hockey League, fifth overall at the 1995 Draft.

However, a quick promotion for the 1994 No. 1 pick Jason Wiemer resulted in just five points in 36 games.

The fans haven't abandoned the Lightning, packing the ThunderDome at every game for a 19,934 average, second in the League. But it's away from home where the team has to improve. Tampa Bay has won just 18 road games the last two seasons and completed the 1994-95 schedule with a record of 1-8-1 as the visiting team, last in the League.

They've also had trouble in their own neighbourhood, winning just seven games in the Atlantic Division last year.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

No one scored 20 goals, but the Lightning did receive contributions from several sources. Bradley, who tied Klima for the club lead in goals with 13, deserved added praise for his 27 assists. Sophomore centre Chris Gratton, the No. 1 pick in 1993, had 20 assists. Ysebaert produced 19 points in 29 games after the trade with Chicago. Tucker might have cleared 20 goals in a full season, which would have been the first time in eight NHL seasons. He and Ysebaert had 12 each. Alexander Selivanov, originally Flyers' property, got on a roll a couple of times, finishing with 10 goals, three of them game winners, and 16 points in total to lead all Lightning rookies. But Russian countryman Alexander Semak, once a 79-point man with New Jersey, was held to seven goals.

DEFENCE

Hamlrik, the only defenceman on the team to play in all 48 games, has to bring down his plus/minus which was minus 18 and only moderately better than the year before. The Lightning still specialize in bruisers back there, with the likes of Enrico Ciccone, the 1995 NHL penalty leader with 225 minutes sentenced. He's joined by Marc Bergevin and Cory Cross, first overall pick in the 1992 supplemental draft, who played in 43 games. Eric Charron, a big kid who was in the Canadiens system, stayed all season. Adrien Plavsic, a former Canuck, was plus five in 15 games after arriving in Tampa. It's not known if the Lightning will keep relying on their veteran war-horses such as Rudy Poeschek and Bob Halkidis, or give a younger star a chance on the blueline.

GOALTENDING

Puppa was in net for 36 games and helped the Lightning register a better team goals-against average (2.97) than four teams that made last year's playoffs. He also turned in a 90.5 save percentage. At 30 he's five years removed from his greatest season, but obviously is still capable of handling the starter chores. The back-up is J.C. Bergeron, a day oneer with Tampa Bay, who finished last year at 3-9-1 in his 17 games, posting his first NHL shutout.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Despite their problems elsewhere, the Lightning were solid in this area, actually improving on the special teams index to almost the break-even point. Leading the way were the penalty killers, who ranked seventh in the League last year, tied with Dallas at 84.4%. Left winger Rob Zamuner had three shorthand goals. But the power-play unit reflected the overall difficulties of the offence, down to 22nd at 14.1%. Tampa Bay suffered with the worst home power play in the League, below 12%. Hamlrik had seven power-play goals, Klima and Selivanov four each.

NEW FACES

Langkow captured the Western Hockey League's scoring championship with 67 goals and 140 points and is an artist with the stick. Bellows may have lost a step with only 16 points last year, but he had 71 as recently as 1993-94. In 13 seasons with Minnesota and Montreal he has amassed 423 goals and 897 points and will reach the 1,000-game mark with 47 this year. And the Lightning have been buoyed by the success of sleeper draft pick Aaron Gavey, a centre with Atlanta of the International Hockey League. Defenceman Drew Bannister is not far off, although he didn't have a great season on the farm. Long shots at camp could be centre Allan Egeland and goaltender Derek Wilkinson.

OUTLOOK

General manager Phil Esposito and coach Terry Crisp have been side-by-side for three years and their efforts may finally pay off this season, even though the East will once more be a tough playoff draw around eighth spot. The temptation will be to rush Langkow, but they will have to proceed carefully.

Brian Bradley: 13 goals and 40 points to lead team in scoring

Chris Gratton: seven goals and 27 points in sophomore season

BIG ENOUGH FOR A FAMILY OF GOALIES.

You don't have to stop pucks with your head to appreciate the new Taurus wagon. That's because it has a dynamic new design and a well-crafted interior that would appeal to just about anyone.

Its unique oval-shaped control panel puts radio and climate controls at your fingertips. Taurus also has tons of room in the back for goalie pads, hockey bags and luggage. After all, we can't forget road trips.

The new Ford Taurus also comes with an available Duratec V6 engine. And, as any goalie would appreciate, cross-beam construction. It makes the new Taurus more stable and improves safety and handling.

Add to that the choice of either wagon or sedan for the same price and you have an unstoppable combination.

So if you're looking for a wagon that holds a lot of equipment, without the look or the smell of a hockey bag, look into the all-new 1996 Ford Taurus.

The Toronto Maple Leafs could easily open a business on the side that specializes in summer house cleaning.

Club president Cliff Fletcher seems to get that itch around Draft day, combining significant trades with his picks for the second straight year. He's attempting to fine-tune a team that suddenly rose to Stanley Cup contender status three years ago, but on each occasion has lacked the one or two elements required to produce a champion.

This year it was the defence and the Leafs hope they have found the solution in the 34-year-old legs of Larry Murphy. The Second Team All-Star from the Penguins will be counted on to engineer the power play among other duties.

Fletcher then traded veteran centre Mike Ridley for abrasive Vancouver Canucks winger Sergio Momesso, a move that gives the Leafs more muscle and opens a spot for Mats Sundin to stay at centre rather than switch to right wing. The Leafs also picked up rugged defenceman Rob Zetterler from Philadelphia.

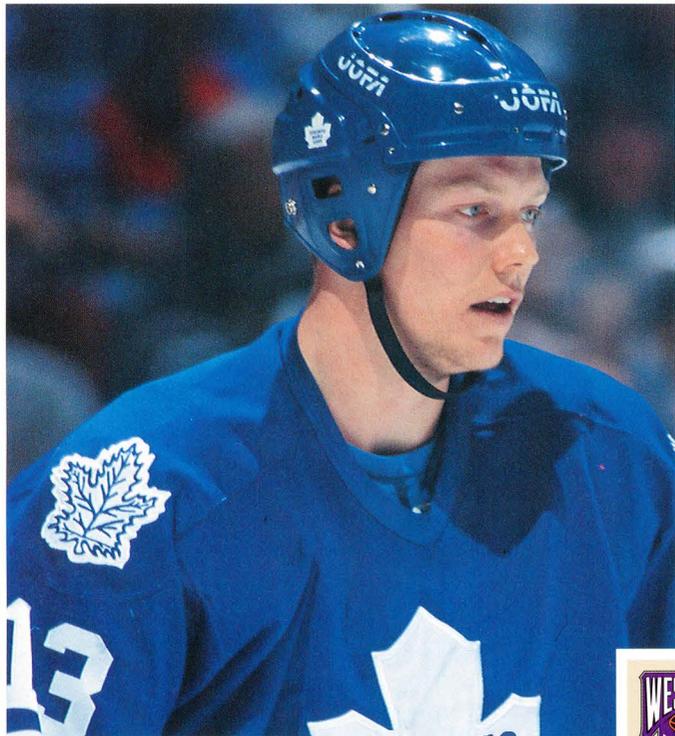

Not that there was anything drastically wrong with the roster as a whole, but as coach Pat Burns said, they just never got going last season. The work stoppage had a terrible effect on captain Doug Gilmour who fought injuries all season, including two herniated discs in his back. Among other strengths, Gilmour had racked up 63 playoff points the previous two years.

Right winger Mike Gartner was also injured, his chance to extend his NHL record to 16 seasons with at least 30 goals a long shot to start with. He finished the year with 12 goals.

Randy Wood, part of last year's reconstruction to instill some scoring, did get big goals, but other new arrivals Mike Craig, Benoit Hogue, Paul DiPietro and Tie Domi had disappointing starts in Toronto.

The best news for the Leafs was the performance of their new Swedish duo. Sundin erased many doubts of the wisdom of trading fan favourite and team captain Wendel Clark by leading the Leafs with 47 points and showing glimpses of greatness for the years to come.

Rookie defenceman Kenny Jonsson survived a rough NHL initiation, but gained confidence as the season progressed and earned a full-time job and a spot on the All-Rookie Team.

Centre Mats Sundin had a good start in Toronto, leading the club with 23 goals and 47 points.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Sundin was everything the Leafs thought he'd be, making big contributions here after a sub-par year before he left Quebec. He led the club in five offensive categories, including 23 goals. Gilmour has 320 regular-season points in 250 Toronto games and plans on a full recovery. Dave Andreychuk, the leading active goal scorer among NHL left wingers, had a team-high 21 points on the road. Wood and Andreychuk played all 48 games for the injury-plagued Leafs, Wood's plus nine at home leading the club. The Leafs want Hogue at centre, where they hope he can get on a scoring roll as he often does, and hope Craig tries to drive the net more. The Leafs' defensive style means lots of opportunities for two-way forwards to score and in that respect they must get more from DiPietro, Domi, Bill Berg and especially the rugged Kent Manderville. And with lots of enforcers up front, Burns must decide on either Warren Rychel or Ken Baumgartner.

DEFENCE

It was the Maple Leafs' poorest season in their own zone since the defensive-conscious Burns became coach. Murphy's 13 goals were second only to Paul Coffey's 14 in the League and he was Pittsburgh's top defenceman in the post-season with his 15 points to give him 116 in the playoffs. Todd Gill, the longest-serving Leaf, nearly became their first defenceman to lead the club in assists since Borje Salming, his 25 putting him second on the team behind Ridley. Dave Ellett and the departed Dmitri Mironov were both limited by injuries and a weakened Ellett was virtually shut out in the playoffs. Jamie Macoun is still effective with the right partner. Jonsson showed a lot of hustle for a youngster and some offensive dash. If veteran Garth Butcher doesn't stay in Toronto this season, Zettler will try to fill his stay-at-home role.

GOALTENDING

Having played so well in his first two full seasons in the League, Felix (the Cat) Potvin was under scrutiny despite some decent numbers. His 2.91 goals-against average was a career high, but he pulled a few wins out of the fire when the team broke down, and he helped to extend the Chicago series to seven games. Only 24, he has plenty of time remaining to chase awards. His off year was balanced by another remarkable understudy performance by Damian Rhodes. His .916 save percentage in 13 games was fourth in the League and he allowed more than three goals in just one of 12 starts.

SPECIAL TEAMS

While the power play sagged at times, strong penalty killing kept the Leafs seventh on the special teams index. They held enemy power plays to 15%, with Wood and the departed Ridley in on almost all of Toronto's five shorthand goals. Murphy had three shorthand points with Pittsburgh. The promised mighty Leafs power play never materialized last season, but Murphy should help the unit. Sundin and Andreychuk had 17 power-play goals between them and 11 other Leafs had at least one.

NEW FACES

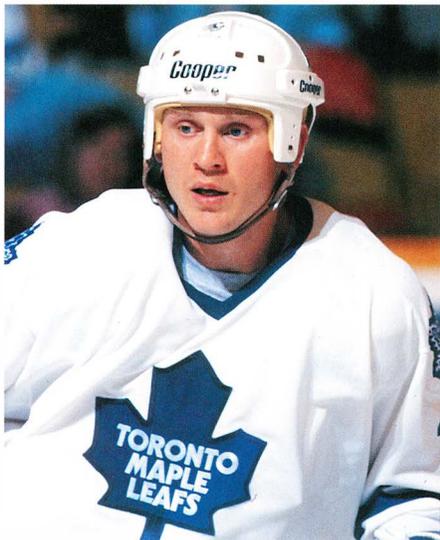

Besides Murphy, Momesso and Zettler, the Leafs have an eye on Brandon Convery, who had a strong finish on the farm in St. John's. He will look for a spot at centre, while two fleet forwards, centre Darby Hendrickson and right winger Zdenek Nedved, will be challenged at camp by Todd Warriner. Big Matt Martin will try to crack the defence again this season.

OUTLOOK

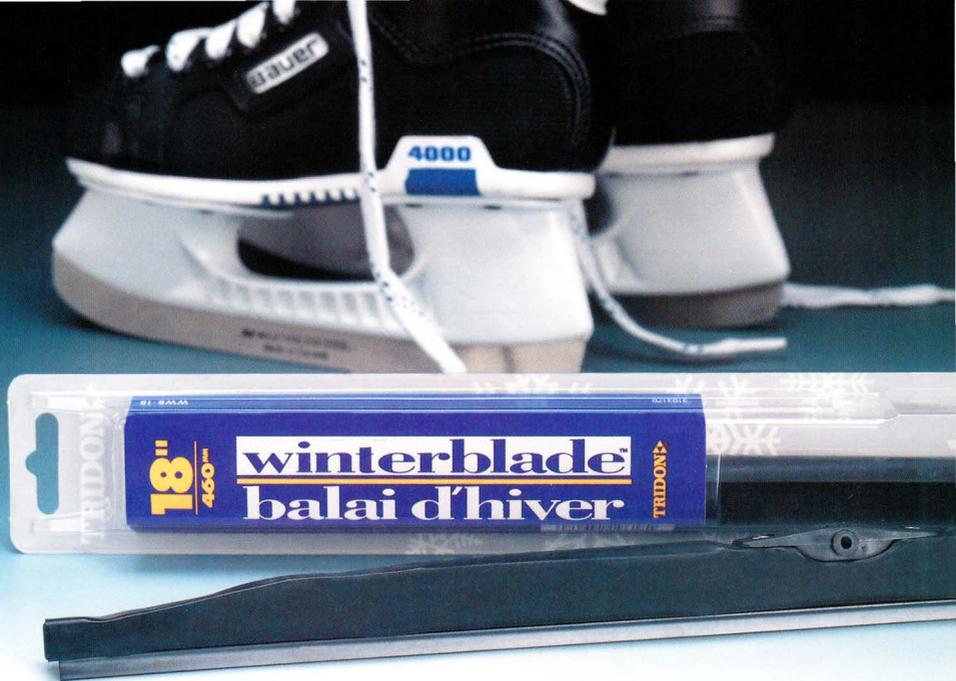

As was the case last year, the Leafs aren't guaranteeing any long winning streaks before Christmas, when they hope to have their personnel questions settled. But the Leafs are also an older team and time may be running short to win while the stars are still in their prime.

Doug Gilmour: dependable veteran with 10 goals and 33 points

Todd Gill: solid on blueline with seven goals and 32 points

CANADA'S other FAVOURITE WINTERBLADES.

Throughout the winter, Canadians enjoy snow and ice as a source of recreation. But, when it comes to driving, we'd rather do without it.

That's when you need Canada's other favourite WINTERBLADE™!

A WINTERBLADE is completely different from other wiper blades. Totally encased in a rubber boot that flexes with each sweep, a WINTERBLADE sheds freezing rain and snow to prevent ice build-up and provide greater visibility for safer driving.

So, when you're heading for the ice, be prepared with the right blades.

GREAT ON ICE.

Looking for a nickname for the Vancouver Canucks this season? Try 'The Russian Express'.

With two of that country's greatest players on one line, slow motion cameras might be the only way to track Pavel Bure and Alexander Mogilny on the ice this season.

They were united on Draft day when the Sabres traded the explosive, but very expensive, Mogilny after six years and 444 regular-season points. In the late 1980s, Bure and Mogilny were together on the last of the great Soviet junior squads, before Mogilny's well-publicized jump to North America.

Each winger led his team in scoring last year in the regular season and in the playoffs and they combined for 346 regular-season shots on goal. Bure won the 1992 Calder Trophy and was a First Team All-Star in 1994. Mogilny made the Second Team the year before when his 76 goals tied for the League lead. It may add up to a Stanley Cup for the Canucks, who were just a win away two years ago.

And the Canucks have made other significant changes after their 500 finish in the shortened 1994-95 campaign.

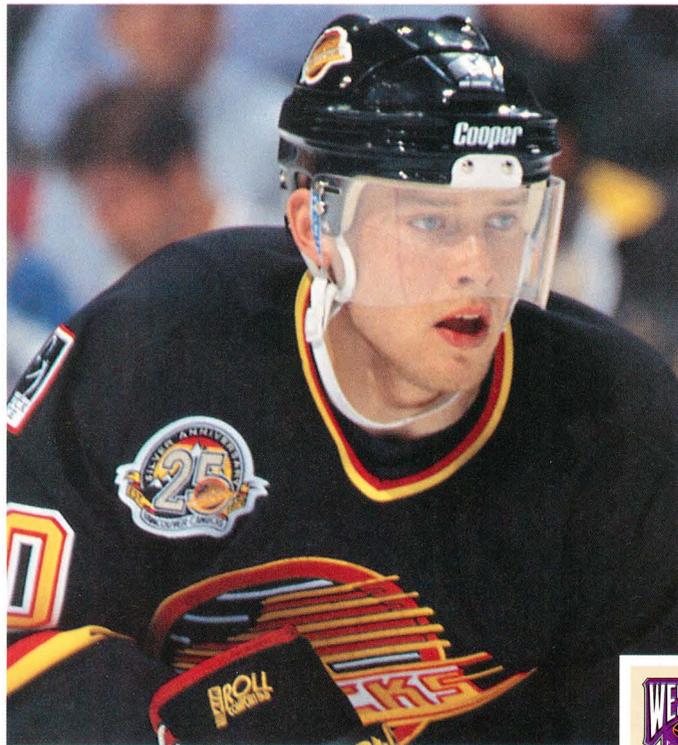

After a buzz of speculation that the Canucks would deal captain Trevor Linden to Detroit for Sergei Fedorov and thus complete the great Russian trio, Vancouver countered with a different plan. They acquired centre Mike Ridley from the Maple Leafs and though it's believed Linden will get first crack at the No. 1 job, he prefers playing on right wing. The 32-year-old Ridley, who still has good wheels and is capable of big numbers, could find himself in a dream situation in October.

Interestingly, a club that was feared for its size and spunk has now cut down in favour of more speed and offence. Shawn Antoski went to Philadelphia last year. Sergio Momesso was traded to Toronto and Mike Peca to Buffalo on Draft day. Free agent Geoff Courtnall elected to play in St. Louis this season.

But Vancouver has plenty of size remaining in Linden, Gino Odjick, Dana Murzyn and Tim Hunter, if the latter veteran decides to stay.

A four-game second-round loss to Chicago after Vancouver had gutted out their opening round upset win over the Blues perhaps helped convince club president Pat Quinn and coach Rick Ley to try to deal their way to the Cup by a different route.

Pavel Bure (20 goals, 43 points) led all Vancouver scorers for the third consecutive season.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Vancouver had the second-best attack in the Pacific Division. With a League-high 12 ties but no overtime wins last year, the Canucks could easily improve their record with the two Russian gamebreakers on the same line. But Bure, despite leading them in scoring for a third straight year with his 43 points, wasn't the hottest Canuck at the end of the regular season, that honour going to Russ Courtnall. He had the League's longest assist streak going, nine in seven games. And another Russian, Roman Oksiuta, whose 16 goals overall were just two shy of the rookie lead, was third in the league with a 23.9% shooting percentage. Martin Gelas had a club-high four game-winning goals. If Ridley and Linden don't centre the big line, there's Josef Beranek (fifth in team scoring with 31 points) or swift Cliff Ronning (25 points).

DEFENCE

Quarterback Jeff Brown was held to 33 games last year and five in the playoffs, but still totalled 35 points. No member of the Canucks' blueline corps appeared in all 48 games. Jyrki Lumme caught a bit of fire in the playoffs with eight points after getting 17 all season, while Murzyn's plus 14 in the regular schedule was highest on the club. Bret Hedican has some dash and has improved steadily entering his third full NHL season. The Canucks were pleased that Jassen Cullimore progressed so far last season. The second-round, stay-at-home pick from 1991 played in 34 games.

GOALTENDING

Kirk McLean usually comes to the forefront in the playoffs, which might help explain why Vancouver's team goals-against average has been lagging at 17th in the League for two straight years, yet McLean cleaned that up to a degree, going down to 2.75 from 2.99 the previous season. The real battle should be for the back-up position. Kay Whitmore will be challenged at camp by Corey Hirsch and Mike Fountain. Whitmore was winless in 11 appearances. Hirsch spent last season in Binghamton, Fountain in Syracuse.

SPECIAL TEAMS

The Canucks were 10th on the special teams index and would have fared much better had their power play not been so sloppy. By giving up 10 shorthand goals, second in the League to the Islanders, they came in at plus five. The departed players represent a loss of 15 goals from the 47 the power play did manage. Linden had nine. Bure and Oksiuta six each, although five of Oksiuta's were in Edmonton. Mogilny brings 12 with him from Buffalo. Bure was the Canucks penalty-killing specialist, tied for the League lead with six shorthand points. Bure and Russ Courtnall split the club's four shorthand goals. Ridley had four shorthand points in Toronto and will be a nice addition.

NEW FACES

Mogilny and Ridley speak for themselves. Add yet another Russian to the mix, defenceman Yevgeny Namestnikov, who played 16 games last season and was well received. Defenceman Mattias Ohlund could also be on the way, a 6-foot-3 prospect from last year's first round who played in the Swedish Elite League. Syracuse forward Lonny Bohonos will get a long look at camp this year.

OUTLOOK

Quinn and Ley know this team and the overall depth chart well enough to risk the changes they've made. In a conference where five points separated six playoff and non-playoff teams, the Canucks don't want to risk hanging at 500 again.

Geoff Courtnall: leaving for St. Louis after 34-point season

Russ Courtnall: 18 points, plus 10 after arriving in Vancouver

These are times of political change in Washington and the Capitals are changing as well.

Gone are the old stars and stripes sweaters that served 1,766 games in their 21 years, replaced by a blue and bronze scheme highlighted by a swooping bald eagle. And after building solid teams without a marquee player, the Capitals are now developing a few to feature the sharp new jerseys.

Start with Jim Carey, the first Capital named to the League's All-Rookie Team since Scott Stevens 12 years ago. The 'Net Detective' was a major force in turning the club around after a terrible start, earning nominations for the Vezina and Calder Trophies in the process.

No Capital had ever led the League in goal scoring, but when the dust settled, no one had matched Peter Bondra's 34 in 47 games. That was three shy of his personal best for a full season, which bodes well for 1995-96.

Not to be forgotten is Joe Juneau, whose 38 assists tied him for seventh in the League. The team also came to terms with 1993's No. 1 pick, defenseman Brendan Witt, just before he was eligible to re-enter the 1995 Entry Draft.

But Washington's next step will be to get some of these stars to demonstrate their talents a little longer in the spring. Though they've made 13 consecutive trips to the playoffs, they've won just one series in the last four years. In losing in seven games to Pittsburgh last spring, they scored just once in the final two games.

Carey's and Bondra's contributions aside, the Capitals still need more depth in most areas. Almost every other playoff team scored more than Washington's 136 goals and not one Capital other than Bondra had 20. The trade of left winger Dimitri Khristich to the Kings leaves an even bigger hole up front, though the Capitals were one of the teams rumored to be pursuing Winnipeg star Teemu Selanne during the summer.

Washington is trying to make use of the first-round picks sent its way when St. Louis lured Stevens away, and they took a pair of promising forwards in the 1995 Draft: Brad Church from the WHL and Miikka Elomo from Finland.

The Capitals were rude hosts at the end of last season, winning five straight at USAir Arena to finish the year with a 15-6-3 record at home.

CAPITALS

Michal Pivonka's 10 goals last season included four on the power-play unit and two shorthanded.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

Bondra's output included one hat trick and 10 goals in seven games in March, a scoring streak equalled only by Ray Sheppard of Detroit. Juneau's seven-game assist streak with 14 helpers in all is also worth noting. Right winger Keith Jones has pumped out about 15 goals in each of the last three seasons, but he had just six assists, while Bondra had nine. Steve Konowalchuk's 25 points were just one shy of his previous year's total in 62 games. The real concern was Rob Pearson's drought. The right winger had cost the Capitals Mike Ridley in a pre-season trade, but the one-time Leaf sniper was blanked in 32 games. Kelly Miller had only 23 points in the shortened season. Former first rounder Pat Peake was blanked in 18 games. But there was a bit of history during the season as Dale Humer earned his 600th NHL point. The team will miss Dave Poulin who retired at the end of the season.

DEFENCE

Thanks to Carey and Co., the Capitals allowed the fourth fewest goals in the league, 120. Joe Reekie had the club's best plus minus rank at plus 10. It was expected to be a rougher transition when the Capitals gave up Kevin Hatcher in a pre-season swap with Dallas, but Mark Tinordi showed the leadership the club was seeking. He and another former Star, Jim Johnson, were vigilant for crease traffic. Calle Johansson had 26 assists and 31 points to lead the defence in scoring. Sylvain Cote begins his fifth year here. Joe Reekie played 48 games, but he, Sergei Gonchar, Igor Ulanov and Ken Klee, although steady, are not noted for their offensive totals.

GOALTEERING

Carey was a godsend to the Capitals who couldn't find anyone to handle Don Beaupre's workload properly after trading him to Ottawa. After Carey was called up March 1, the Capitals went 11-2-2 for the month. As a result, Carey became the first player to win both player and rookie of the month in the same month. He won 18 games in all, with a 2.13 goals-against average. .913 save percentage and four shutouts. Rick Tabaracci eventually ended up in Calgary, leaving Carey's fellow rookies Olaf Kolzig and Byron Dafoe as back-ups. Kolzig won only two of 14 starts, but had a solid 2.49 goals-against average. Dafoe was traded to Los Angeles during the summer.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Coach Jim Schoenfeld's team tied Detroit for first place on the special teams index at plus 22. Their accomplishments included the League's sixth-best power play at 19.9%, the League's best home penalty killing of 87.8% and a share of the lead in short-hand goals for, with 13, and against, with two. Twelve of Bondra's markers were on the power play and six came short-handed. Michal Pivonka and Johansson had four power-play goals each, but Khristich takes eight to Los Angeles.

NEW FACES

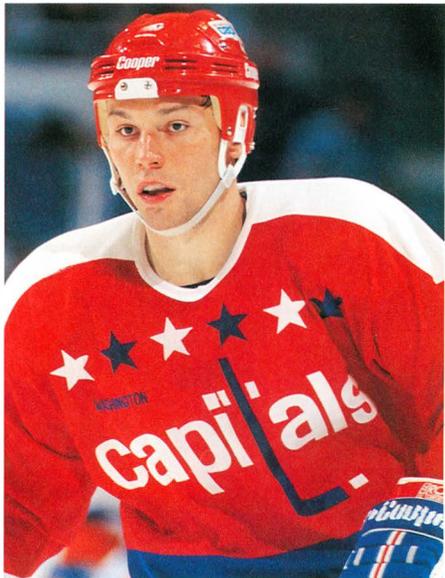

The competition will be fierce for a spot on defence where Witt battles Nolan Baumgartner, last year's No. 1 pick, as well as Gonchar and Ulanov. And Kolzig will likely get some kind of battle for the back-up job. Sleeper pick Stefan Ustorf will make a bid at centre.

OUTLOOK

Carey will have to work his magic over a full season and will have to get used to the Western Conference teams as well, so the Capitals can't get overly dependent on him. In order to get full value for his changes they will have to work toward becoming a more wide open team offensively without sacrificing the defensive aspects of their game.

Mark Tinordi: 12 points on blueline in first year with Capitals

Dimitri Khristich: traded to Kings after five years with Capitals

Perhaps the biggest victory the Winnipeg Jets will get this season happened a few months before the team even started training camp.

The valiant efforts of local fans and business people managed – at least for this season – to delay a plan to sell the small-market franchise and move it to an American city. Some details about the new arena must still be finalized, but if the Jets play with the same enthusiasm the community showed, it will help all concerned.

The Jets missed the playoffs for a second straight year for the first time since joining the League. The first order of business must be to shore up a team defence that was second worst in the League. The Jets gave up 177 goals, including a League-high 100 on the road where they won just six games.

Misdemeanors were a problem many times during the year as the Jets finished tied for third highest penalty minutes per game at 23.8. Captain Keith Tkachuk was the most penalized of the NHL's top 24 scorers, but toughness is his game.

Still there's lots to build with here. Alexei Zhamnov battled down to the wire for the Art Ross Trophy, eventually finishing in third place, five points behind Eric Lindros and Jaromir Jagr. Zhamnov became the first Russian-born player to earn a Lady Byng nomination and both he and Tkachuk were named as Second Team All-Stars. And the Olympic line of Zhamnov, Tkachuk and Teemu Selanne rang up 74 of the Jets' 157 goals.

Late-season arrivals Mike Eastwood and Ed Olczyk had strong finishes, but when you get past Nelson Emerson's 37 points, the Jets had little scoring to support their embattled net-minders Tim Cheveldae and Nikolai Khabibulin.

Jets' new head coach Terry Simpson is no stranger here, having served as an assistant for a few years. He wants to prove a few things after short-lived coaching stints in Philadelphia and Long Island. General manager John Paddock named him his own replacement behind the bench late last season.

With the seventh pick overall at the 1995 Draft, the Jets grabbed Kamloops right winger Shane Doan, who was the MVP in last year's Memorial Cup tournament. He had 37 goals and 94 points for the Blazers in the regular season.

JETS

Alexei Zhamnov, in his third NHL season, was third in League scoring with 30 goals and 65 points.

FORECAST 1995-96

OFFENCE

With their European flavour, the Jets are capable of entertaining, wide-open hockey. They were one of just four teams to have six players with 100 shots or more. Zhamnov split his activities nicely, tied for third in goals with 30 and 10th in assists with 35 and bagged two hat tricks, including the League's only five-goal game last season. He has yet to play a full NHL season in three years here. Tkachuk and Selanne each fired 22 goals and each had at least one power-play, shorthand, game-winning and game-tying goal. Emerson has 111 points in two years here and a healthy Darrin Shannon will be welcome. Ex-Blue Igor Korolev looked much better here than in St. Louis, getting 30 points last year. Dallas Drake's numbers aren't where they were in Detroit yet, but he's looking forward to a full season. Olczyk had 10 points and Eastwood had nine in their 13 games with the Jets.

DEFENCE

The Jets don't have the raft of high-flying blueliners of five years ago, and they have moved Stephane Quintal, who led them in scoring the past two years, getting 23 points last year; he was traded to Montreal for a draft choice Teppo Numminen, who was two points behind Quintal, had a club-high plus-12 rating and has not had the benefit of a full season in three years. Dave Manson is the most bullish of the defencemen, but has to improve on a minus 20, as does Neil Wilkinson with a minus 26. It felt like a complete season to Darryl Shannon, who has fought for more playing time through seven years in the League. He had 14 points in 40 games. Oleg Mikulchik and Brent Thompson saw some action, but neither is noted for his scoring. Mikulchik was a solid plus 10 in his 25 games in Winnipeg, but elected to take off for Anaheim during the off-season.

GOALTENDING

It was almost an even split last season between Cheveldae and Khabibulin, 30 appearances to 26, both winning eight games. The veteran Cheveldae is still getting used to life without the powerful Detroit lineup in front of him and the Jets probably wanted their Russian rookie to have a better NHL introduction. But Khabibulin was just a win below 500 and getting his feet wet in this manner may help in the long run. The long term project is Scott Langkow, a WHL second-round draft choice from the 1993 Entry Draft.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Despite missing the playoffs, the Jets jumped 16 points on the special teams index to finish at plus three and 11th overall. They can thank a strong power play that was fourth on the road in the League, and the Olympic Line which contributed 24 goals overall. Emerson had four.

Quintal and Darrin Shannon three each before the latter's injury. Five players chipped in shorthand goals, Tkachuk and Selanne two each. The penalty killers ranked 13th overall.

NEW FACES

The Jets have plans for Czech Michal Grosek, a left winger who showed lots of hustle in 24 games here last season. Like Grosek, right winger Ravil Gusmanov was effective on the farm in Springfield and his quick grasp of North American hockey could pay off in a spot at training camp this season.

OUTLOOK

With the offence the Jets have assembled, they should be in most games, but some of it might have to be sacrificed to shore up the defence. It's hard to say what effect the relocation debate will have, but the Jets have stocked up with some character players who should nullify any distractions.

Teemu Selanne: 22 goals, including eight on power-play unit

Keith Tkachuk: 22 goals, including seven on power-play unit

 - TSN Free Agent Acquisition (limit 3)No Charge
 - Fax Service (per page per week)$1
- Player transactions must be made by Thursday 11 PM Central Time in order to be effective the following Friday.

SCORING

- Each team will be ranked within its league, division and overall by six offensive and three goaltending statistical categories:

Goals	Offensive Plus/Minus Rating	Winning
Assists	Shooting Percentage	Goals Against Average
Total Points	Penalty Minutes	Saves

- Rankings will be determined by the Rotisserie® style ranking system. Each team is ranked by league, division and overall.
- Teams are ranked by comparing their team totals to the other teams in their league. The team with the best total in each category will receive 25 points and the team with the worst will receive 1 point. For penalty minutes a larger number is ranked higher than a smaller one.
- Stats are accumulated weekly for all 20 starting players. The stat week begins with games played on Friday and ends with games played on Thursday.
- All statistics accumulated by the players on the starting team, regardless of what position they play during the season, contribute to a team's statistics totals. Goalies' offensive statistics do not count.
- Taxi squad players' stats don't contribute to team's stat totals.
- Previous stats by a player before he was on your roster do not count.
- A player's statistics are added to your team's statistics totals only during the weeks that he is in your starting team.
- Pre-season, all-star and play-off statistics do not contribute to your team's statistics totals.
- Division points are calculated by ranking your team's statistics totals versus every other team's stats in your division's 10 leagues.
- Overall points are calculated by ranking your team's statistics totals versus all other entries in The Sporting News™ Fantasy Hockey Challenge.

The number after each player indicates total voting points. The numbers in parentheses indicate first, second and third-place votes. A first is worth five points, a second three and a third one.

NOTE: Because of conference-only play during the 1994-95 season, the voting for each of the five awards and the All-Star Teams voted upon by the PHWA was conducted in two stages. In stage one, Eastern and Western Conference writers voted only for players in their respective conferences. This stage of the voting produced six finalists for each award and for each All-Star Team position (except defence - 12) with three from the Eastern and three from the Western Conference. In stage two, a committee of 15 members of the PHWA voted on the results from stage one voting to select the award winners and All-Star Team members.

Presenting Gillette SensorExcel

With soft, flexible microfins for the closest shave ever.

Gillette brings you SensorExcel,[™] the next revolution in shaving closeness.

We started with Sensor's spring-mounted twin blades that adjust to your face.

Then we developed a remarkable innovation called microfins and placed them ahead of the blades. These soft flexible fins gently stretch your skin, causing your beard to spring upward so the blades can shave you closer, with more comfort.

SensorExcel's responsive Flexgrip[™] handle and unique pivoting action give you superior maneuverability and control.

The result is the closest, most comfortable shave you've ever experienced. Get Gillette SensorExcel. And get closer than ever before.
