Counsellor Troi to the rescue

So where does a Star Trek officer go for comforting? Deep Space Nine's Terry Farrell found out after her brush with a real-life upset. Just days after the bomb blast at the

TERRY FARRELL

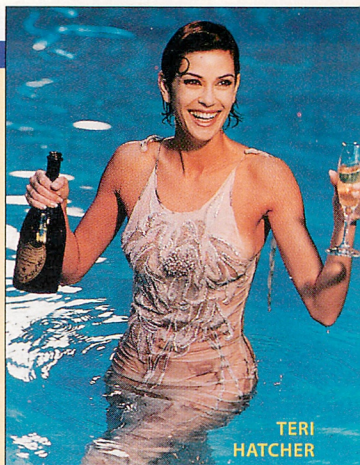

Olympics in Atlanta, a hotel near Farrell's apartment received a bomb threat, forcing the actress to leave her building.

Although police later said it turned out to be a prank, Farrell, who plays Jadzia Dax, was left shaken. "Sometimes I'm one of those people who would rather not be in the know," she says. To calm herself, Farrell talked to none other than Marina Sirtis, who played Deanna Troi, The Next Generation's empathetic counsellor. "She had such a relaxed attitude toward the whole thing that I felt much better," says Farrell. "She's from London and has to deal with the threat of IRA bombings. But she told me just to chill out and not worry about it." (See page 15 for more on Star Trek.) —Chris Lomon

The skinny on Teri

OK, so you think Teri Hatcher is thin. In fact, rumors of anorexia have dogged the Lois & Clark star for the past year or so. But when we asked

Hatcher if she'd been losing weight, she told us it just looks that way. Why? "We never used to have wardrobe fittings on Lois & Clark because we didn't have time with 15-hour days," she says. Besides, the earlier focus was more on Dean Cain than Hatcher. "Our costume designer, Judith Brewer Curtis, was out of her mind, because clothes off the rack just don't fit my body, so my clothes were always too big." But as the stories shifted toward Lois, she had custom fittings. "So now, the clothes actually fit me and for the first time, people are seeing what I've always looked like." The 5-foot-6 star says the most she's weighed is 115 pounds; the least 102, "when I had bronchitis." Currently, she's 107, and says she feels fit. —Mark Schwed

Pay-back time

When Alan Rosenberg's real-life wife became George Clooney's squeeze on ER, Rosenberg didn't get mad, he got even. Rosenberg, who plays Ira on Cybill, retaliated when his character began sleeping with Maryanne (Christine Baranski). "It's rare that I get to do hanky-panky on set," jokes the affable actor, "but now I get to play the neurotic guy dating the neurotic girl." As for wife Marg Helgenberger, sleeping around onscreen is nothing new. "I've gotten used to it," he says, laughing. "I like to say that on ER she gets to be with 'that man,' but at home she gets to be with 'superman!'" —Erin McLaughlin

Back in the U.S.A.

After living in Paris for four years, Molly Ringwald is back. The '80s Brat Pack sensation ("Sixteen Candles," "Pretty in Pink") stars in ABC's Townies this fall, about three girlfriends in a small town. "There were a lot of things I missed about America," she says, and – despite steady work in French films (not to mention a French lover and a great apartment) – the parts for a foreigner were limited. As for the Brat Pack, she says: "I made one movie with Judd Nelson and Emilio Estevez ["The Breakfast Club"]. They were about five or six years older – I was a teenager. We couldn't go out together." In Paris, "I needed to figure out who I was. And I did."

Vote of confidence

How much does NBC believe in Michael T. Weiss's new show? So much so that it's giving The Pretender the coveted ER slot Sept. 19, before moving it to Saturdays. "I get to play everything from an airline captain to a cop to a lawyer," says Weiss (Days of Our Lives) of his role as a man trying to escape an evil think-tank that kidnapped him as a child. "The character's Achilles heel is that the way he grew up, he doesn't really know who he is. He can pose as all kinds of people," says Weiss, "but he's really in search of himself." —Glenn Esterly

HIDDEN GEM I Am Cuba

Bravo! brings some rarely seen historical propaganda to TV with the North American debut of "I Am Cuba." Despite its biases, the black and white film has rich cinematography that seems impossible for a film released in 1964. "I Am Cuba" has only recently resurfaced after being locked up by the Soviet and Cuban governments who commissioned the film, but weren't happy with director Mikhail Kalatozov's final cut. ## NEW GAME SHOW Big Deal!

Wisecracking and brash, Mark DeCarlo (Studs) is the host for Fox's new nighttime game show. Based loosely on the campy classic Let's Make A Deal, the hour-long Big Deal! has audience members vying for prizes by participating in outrageous games and stunts, only to risk their winnings by trading them in for something else – maybe better, maybe worse. The show promises colorful and high-energy contestants along with an assortment of celebrities and musical guests. Sunday, Fox

ROMANCE

DANIELLE STEEL'S REMEMBRANCE

When Eva LaRue (All My Children) signed on to play an impoverished Italian aristocrat who feuds with her rich mother-in-law (Angie Dickinson) in "Remembrance," having the perfect accent was her only concern. "I was signed to the movie two weeks before production started so I barely had any time," recalls LaRue. "I was terrified I would sound like the 'pizza man' stereotype so I taped Valeria Golino's voice ['Rain Man'] and practised over and over." Rehearsing with her boyfriend also had its benefits: "Italian accents are pretty sexy," she adds. Saturday, CHCH; Monday, NBC

A&E Biography

Get the dirt (or at least some of it) on TV comedians like Roseanne and Tim Allen on Biography. ### The Beatles Anthology

Fans can revel in the lives of John, Paul, George and Ringo all over again in this repeat of the six-hour series that gave CTV some of its best ratings when it aired in November, drawing an average of 2.5 million viewers. Highlights include the first new Beatles songs recorded since 1970, rare footage and poignant reminiscences. Saturday, Thursday and Saturday, Sept. 7, CTV

SPECIAL Class Reunion

For most people, no night is more terrifying or nerve-racking than their high school reunion. In "Class Reunion," a real-life gathering is the setting as 15 men and women who were students together see each other 10 years later.

The scenarios, from amusing to touching, will be familiar to anyone who's attended a reunion: Marne is the ugly duckling who returns as a European model, Anneen is the party girl who has never gone to college and Dawn and Scott are the now-estranged couple who were unmarried parents.

NEW EPISODE

Cracker: True Romance

Robbie Coltrane says he's actually nothing like the philandering, hard-drinking, cigar-puffing, gambling-addicted detective he plays on A&E's Cracker series.

"I'm quite a cautious fellow," Coltrane says. "Fitz ... is far more fatalistic, I think. And he's far more of a bruised romantic - true cynics are all bruised romantics." In "True Romance" (the last of this season's new episodes), Fitz gets love letters from a killer who then tries to seduce him. Tuesday, A&E

The calcium you need daily is better absorbed with vitamin D. Only milk has both.

That's why the National Institute of Nutrition suggests as an adult you enjoy 1 to 2 glasses of milk a day as part of your daily requirement.* When it comes to calcium, nothing delivers like cold, refreshing milk.

Isn't it time you came

FEELING DEHYDRATED AND CONFUSED?

Somewhere along the hectic way we live today, a need for 8 glasses of liquid intake a day is being interpreted as 8 glasses of water. A kind of dietary tap dance. Relax. A glass of cold milk, packed with taste and 15 essential nutrients including 315 mg of calcium, is actually 87% water. So it rehydrates you, is good for your bones and helps keep hunger out of your day.

Just 2 glasses of 2% milk give 630 mg of the 700 mg of calcium recommended per day for women.**

That's calcium. That's convenience.

Why not give yourself a milk break?

*Canada's Food Guide to Healthy Eating recommends 2-4 servings of milk products per day.

Dick Van Dyke explains why respect for his classic show keeps growing

BY STEF McDONALD
AND STEPHANIE WILLIAMS

You can't think of classic television without thinking of Dick Van Dyke. His early TV series, The Dick Van Dyke Show (1961-66), made an indelible mark on viewers. We caught up with the actor, who now stars in the Thursday night CBS drama Diagnosis Murder, and talked about the secrets of his sitcom's success.

TV Guide: Why do you think your show has endured?

Dick Van Dyke: We never tried to be caricatures of human beings. Everything – our reactions and all of our foibles – was real. And [creator/producer and frequent writer and director] Carl Reiner was very careful about never using any catch phrases or references to current events. He said, "Don't do it, you'll look dated." Looking back, the shows take on a certain patina, and it's amazing, the respect we've gained as time has passed.

TVG: In the early days, TV certainly didn't get much respect.

DVD: I remember when I left "Bye Bye Birdie" on Broadway to do the series. So many of my friends said, "Don't be crazy! Why do you want to go to a vast wasteland when you can be on stage?" But

DVD: My favorites were not necessarily the ones that were the best on the air, but the ones I had the most fun doing. One was "Where Did I Come From?" We go into a story

I had three kids and another on the way, and I was thinking in terms of security.

TVG: Well, it paid off. You eventually won five Emmys.

DVD: We were so proud of what we were doing. At the time, the Emmys had no comedy [performance] category. Just best actor in a series. I was nominated [for the 1962-63 season] and lost to E.G. Marshall on The Defenders. And then the next year, Mary [Tyler Moore] and I both won.

TVG: Did the two of you hit it off right away?

DVD: The chemistry worked between us from the very start. Within a few months, we could just get up and ad lib. We almost read each other's minds.

TVG: Any favorite episodes?

about how our son, Ritchie, was born and flash back to that period where we were both nervous wrecks. I had a great time. It was broad, very slapstick, a lot of physical comedy, and that's what I love to do.

TVG: How has the world of television changed since you made The Dick Van Dyke Show?

DVD: Values have changed and I think people have a nostalgia for those earlier times. They seemed, at least in retrospect, simpler, sweeter, more caring times. Sure, Laura and Rob slept in separate beds, and we couldn't say the word "pregnant" on the air. Now, we've got over prudishness, but we've gone too far. Why can't we have shows that are about the way life could be? People just want a little more hopeful entertainment. (END)

The fabulous Baker boy

Instead of our usual Labor Day report card grading the summer soap kids, we'll focus on what's right with the soap world, namely General Hospital. After a devastating year, GH has become, once again, ABC's top-rated daytime drama and the best serial on the air – amazing because it's due to the very thing that is crippling other soaps – youth storylines. Some serials can't come up with one riveting kid plot, but GH has them to spare: there's the romance between the HIV-infected Robin and the mentally challenged Jason, the manipulations of horny student nurse Carly Roberts and the arrival of Nikolas Cassadine, the son Laura Spencer bore with madman Stavros Cassadine in the early '80s but never mentioned to her husband, Luke. Played by a startlingly good, fresh-off-the-bus newcomer named Tyler Baker, Nikolas came out of hiding to donate bone marrow to the Spencers' dying infant daughter but now he won't go away – much to the fury of their teenage son, Lucky. This electric storytelling should result in Emmy nominations all around. Baker's brooding sensuality appeals to the soap's teeny-bop crowd.

Tyler Baker's brooding sensuality and well-crafted character has generated an electric storyline on General Hospital

Well-crafted characters like his can jump-start an entire show, causing plot ripples that will be felt for years. So if General Hospital can have it all, what's stopping other soaps? –Michael Logan

SCORPIO RISING

Two-time Emmy-winner Kimberly McCullough – who grew up before our eyes as General Hospital's Robin Scorpio – is leaving the soap to study film directing at university. Her HIV-positive character (who lost her lover, Stone, to AIDS last fall) will also head off to school. "A lot of fans are scared Robin will also die, but that was never the plan," says McCullough, who will return to GH during school vacations. "They want to keep her around until a cure for AIDS can be found." The 18-year-old budding director spent her summer putting together a 40-minute film starring GH's Vanessa Marcil (a hot commodity after her performance in "The Rock"). Was it awkward directing a co-star? "Oh, no," says McCullough. "I'm very comfortable telling people what to do." –M.L.

Olympic gold for CBC

I am writing to congratulate CBC TV for their excellent coverage of the Olympic Games. They deserve a gold medal, and NBC deserves the silver. CBC had important events live while NBC was sometimes an hour or more behind. Terry, Ron, Brian and all the others did an excellent job hosting and doing commentary. They proved that a Canadian network can be as good or better than the Big American Network with all those $$$$$. I would also like to congratulate all of our athletes, whether they won medals or not. All Canadians should be very proud.

Don't give up on Babylon 5

S. Wiper (Mail Bag, Aug. 10), who stopped watching Babylon 5 after the first two seasons, gave up far too soon.

B5's third season was a testament to consistent writing and tense plotting. Almost all of the episodes propelled the main story arc forward, and a half-dozen "power" episodes have become instant science fiction classics. I will concede that B5's plots are more complex than the pre-packaged, sanitized Next Generation plots recycled in Star Trek: Voyager. However, this has only heightened my interest in the show. Only now are plot points introduced two years ago coming to fruition.

The third season of B5 is probably the best space-opera science fiction ever produced for television. The fourth season will be even better.

CLASS REUNION

3 4 10 9 PM

Real World producers Mary-Ellis Bunim and Jonathan Murray chronicle a 10-year reunion in this made-for-TV documentary. They chose Parkrose High School in Portland, Ore., because it has "the best mix of people, with the best potential for story." Featured: an ugly duckling turned model; a pair of ex-sweethearts who split after infidelities; and a woman reeling from promiscuity rumors. They're among the 15 grads who spent four days experiencing memories, fights and reconciliations. "[When] people go to their reunion, they see all their insecurities, the good feelings and the bad," says Bunim. (2 hr.)

"I try to be professional," claims analyst and former Winston Cup champ Ned Jarrett, commenting on his son's races. What if Dale's leading on the last lap today? ## DRY, RED, ITCHY SKIN?

Get relief....with GOLD BOND Medicated Powder.

Betty Douglas
Scotsburn, Nova Scotia:

"Well, it was just a heat rash and it was just annoying. What I did, I sprinkled on the Gold Bond and it seemed to help it right away. It feels cool on your skin. It seems to stop the itch."

Bill Telesco
Brampton, Ontario:

"You sweat and you get chafed... and you get itchy. You'd like to have something there. Gold Bond. It was nice and cool... and soothing. For a medicated powder, it's really good."

Phyllis Long
Comox, British Columbia:

"It was just rough and red, rashy skin. I would say Gold Bond has relieved the symptoms. It just cools it off and it just takes away the pain immediately."

GOLD BOND MEANS RELIEF! If you have itchy skin problems, you need to discover what so many Canadians have found for fast relief: Gold Bond Medicated Body Powder.

3 POWDERS IN ONE! Gold Bond's triple action is like three powders in one. It has the absorbing action of powder, the medicating action of a proven itch fighter and the drying action of zinc oxide.

GOLD BOND CAN HELP YOU! Try Gold Bond Medicated Body Powder for yourself. It could work wonders for your dry, itchy skin! Look for triple action Gold Bond Medicated Body Powder at drug stores and supermarkets everywhere. Use only as directed.

CLOSE UP ADVENTURES FROM THE BOOK OF VIRTUES

16 8 PM

Debut: Former Education Secretary William J. Bennett's 1993 best-selling anthology of stories, myths and wisdom for young people is the basis for this animated educational series. Aiming to entertain and enlighten, the show focuses on youngsters Zach and Annie, who learn lessons in ethics and morality through stories from a worldly buffalo named Plato and a cast of anthropomorphic characters living atop Plato's Peak. In the first episode, after a storm damages the Peak, the cleanup effort yields tales about the virtue of work. Stories include Kipling's "How the Camel Got His Hump" and Mark Twain's Tom Sawyer.

CLOSE UP

BIOGRAPHY

(A&E) 8 PM; 12 Mid.

Tim Allen, Jack Benny, Roseanne, Danny Thomas and Mary Tyler Moore are profiled as the award-winning documentary series presents "Sitcom Superstars Week." Of the week's leadoff subject, Tim Allen of Home Improvement, A&E VP Michael Cascio thinks "people underestimate his impact. He's paid his dues . . . and that's what makes his story interesting. This guy really hit rock bottom (when he was imprisoned for selling cocaine), and then to have the No. 1 movie, TV show and book, all at the same time . . . it's the quintessential biography." ### TEENS IN TROUBLE

Director Larry Clark's quasi-documentary about life in the teenage fast lane splatters the small screen as effectively as it did the big screen in 1995. Called "provocative" and "disturbing," it follows a day in the life of inner-city kids (a group of non-actors) as they drift from one dangerous pleasure-provider to the next. (1 hr. 35 min.)

The "Great Voice Search"

THE TV and Radio Great Voice Search celebrates The National Institute of Broadcasting's 35th Year with $1,000 for Best New Voice.

"And," says director Mary Adams, "You can enter on the phone."

"Men and women calling now can be broadcasting this fall. If you have a good voice, we offer special fast-track training to start you on the air in weeks, even if you carry on other work or studies and do it in spare time."

At N-I-B, notes Adams, you don't sit in class or write exams—you learn by doing. "If you've got what it takes, you don't need three years to get ready to broadcast. You can do it in a short time."

Now operating 11 TV and Radio studios, the Institute also works with TV and Radio outlets to promote new talent for News, Sports, Talk and Entertainment Shows, DJ, Programs and Commercials, Documentaries and General Announcing.

Great Voice Search tryouts are computer answered and always open. To enter your voice, dial

Most people think there's only one way to help the developing world.
We have 26.

You'd be surprised at what 26 letters can do for people in developing countries. They can mean food security, good health and job opportunities because they provide knowledge and skills through education.

30 Years of Star Trek

How an obscure sci-fi drama became a TV phenomenon

by Michael Logan

It's a scenario stranger than any found in science fiction: a former L.A. cop tries to change the face of '60s television by creating a politically-correct, outer-space version of Wagon Train.

The new show is set on a starship 300 years in the future and features a red-blooded, skirt-chasing captain from Iowa and an extraterrestrial first officer with elfin ears, wacky eyebrows and a Moe Howard hairdo. NBC buys it reluctantly.

It premieres on Sept. 8, 1966 in a bad time-slot with next to no publicity. Its run is pock-marked with network disinterest, time changes, pre-emptions and threats of cancellation. A mammoth letter-writing campaign – reportedly as many as one million pieces of fan mail – earns the show a second chance, but the reprieve is brief. In 1969, after three seasons and 79 episodes, the show is finally laid to rest.

Well...not quite. Thirty years after its dubious debut – and four spin-offs, eight movies and two billion dollars worth of merchandise later – the program that is known as Star Trek is the cornerstone of one of the most popular and beloved franchises in the entertainment world.

What makes Trek so successful? Pundits point to its rose-colored, up-with-people vision of the future, which came at a time when the U.S. – embroiled in the Cold War and mired in Vietnam – needed it most. Trek's creator Gene Roddenberry wanted us to believe in a day when bloodshed and prejudice would be banished from the Earth and tolerance and acceptance would permeate the cosmos. Significantly, Roddenberry's vision was peopled with a multicultural cast of supporting characters: Trek boasted an Asian, a Scotsman, a friendly Russian, and an African-American woman with an important job. American viewers had never seen anything like it.

In many ways the show remains an anomaly. On the big screen and small we've been bombarded with bleak, apocalyptic visions of the coming millennia. So it's all the more reassuring and encouraging to know, at least in the gospel according to Roddenberry, that our future's still bright.

Having said that, we strongly suspect the real appeal of Trek is not its covert positivism or its social commentary wrapped in the guise of sci-fi (or for that matter, the techno-gadgetry, the weirdo aliens or the space babes). It's much simpler than that. The fearless crew of the U.S.S. Enterprise fit us like old, well-worn Hush Puppies. The Classic Trek – as the original series is called – is the TV equivalent of comfort food.

So, to a great extent, are the show's many spawns: Star Trek: The Next Generation (the most successful weekly show in the history of TV syndication), Star Trek: Deep Space Nine and, the baby of the bunch, Star Trek: Voyager. Then there's Star Trek, the 1973 animated series, and 17 years worth of big-screen, money-making epics, not to mention novels, videos, comics, encyclopedias, omnipedia, technical manuals, record albums, computer software, theme-park attractions and buttons, beanies and board games.

But for all its bank-busting success – or maybe because of it – Trek gets little respect. The original series is often dismissed as hokey. The spinoffs have had little cachet as well. Michael Piller, co-creator and executive producer of DS9 and Voyager, once remarked: "The media writes about other shows on their arts pages – we always wind up in the business section."

But it's the business of dreams. We wouldn't be at all surprised if Kirk's five-year mission – "to explore strange new worlds, to seek out new life and new civilizations, to boldly go where no man has gone before" – will seem as fresh another 30 years from now as it was the day Roddenberry first set pen to paper. What other TV show, past or present, possesses that potential?

10 stellar

The City on the Edge of Forever

Hands down the best of the best: Kirk, Bones and Spock time travel to 1930s New York where Kirk falls deeply in love with a social worker, played by Joan Collins. After learning that Collins' character has two possible futures, Kirk must choose between letting her die in a traffic accident, or saving her life, with catastrophic results for the history of Earth. Kirk can prevent her death, but in a shattering denouement, doesn't.

The Doomsday Machine

The Enterprise encounters a planet-munching weapon created by a long-dead alien race. When an insane Commodore Decker leads a suicide mission into its mouth, Kirk rigs Decker's ship to self-destruct, and sends it hurtling into the monster. But Kirk himself gets stuck on board due to a transporter malfunction. This one's a real nail-biter.

The Visitor

Sisko seemingly dies in an accident, a tragedy that sets his grieving son Jake on a collision course through life. After materializing to Jake over the years, Sisko makes one last visit to his aged son. The acting by the leads is glorious. One of Trek's most haunting.

Journey to Babel

Spock's mom and dad are played with deliciousness by Mark Lenard and Jane Wyatt. This episode is part whodunit (there's a murder en route to a conference) and part General Hospital (Dad has a bad heart and only Spock can save him). Plus there's a wild alien cocktail party.

Mirror, Mirror

Kirk, Bones, Scotty and Uhura wind up in a parallel-universe Enterprise (a popular Trek theme), where the mirror images of Spock, Chekov and Sulu act like neo-Nazis.

Best of Both Worlds (Part I)

Picard is kidnapped by the Borg and transformed into the machine-like being, Locutus. When an away team is sent to rescue him, Riker is given no other choice but to destroy his beloved Captain. Riker issues the command "Mr. Worf, fire!" and the TV screen goes black. This episode was the ultimate season-ending cliffhanger and one good enough to have been put on the big screen.

Tapestry

Lying near death on an operating table, Picard is paid a visit by the omnipotent showoff Q. He gives Picard the chance to relive his cadet days differently, including not being stabbed in the heart in a bar fight. Picard jumps at the chance, but sadly discovers that alternate life means life without the Enterprise and so begs for his old wicked ways back.

Trek episodes

Yesterday's Enterprise

A space rift puts the Enterprise D into an alternate time line and face-to-face with the ghost ship Enterprise C, destroyed with all hands after paving the way for the Federation/Klingon détente. In this alternate universe, the détente never happened and the two factions are now waging war. Picard has to send the C and its crew (including Tasha Yar) back through the rift – and to certain death – so that there will be peace in the quadrant again.

The Inner Light

A touching change-of-pace episode in which Picard lives the simple life of an iron weaver on a drought-stricken planet. An award-winning episode that allows Stewart to stretch out from his usual persona as the Enterprise's captain.

Amok Time

Spock wreaks havoc on board the Enterprise as he enters the Vulcan mating cycle and must return home to mate or he'll die. Not only is this second-season opener a guide to Vulcan sexology, it's also the first time we see Spock's home, and the first time we hear "Live long and prosper."

PATRICK STEWART

Capt. Jean-Luc Picard, Star Trek: The Next Generation

Patrick Stewart baldly went where no man had gone before and turned Picard – a finicky, cerebral, middle-aged Frenchman with an artificial heart and a penchant for detective novels and Earl Grey tea – into one of TV's most unconventional sex symbols. Though he will star this November in the first all-TNG big-screen feature "Star Trek: First Contact," the actor has long been rumored to be sick of Trek. Here, Stewart – who often refers to himself in the third person – talks about his future.

TV Guide: You had quite the bad-boy reputation in the final days of TNG.

Patrick Stewart: True. There were reports that Patrick was becoming too much of a diva, a prima donna, having hysterics on the set, throwing people off the set – and, then, when we went on to "Star Trek: Generations" it was reported that there were problems between him and Bill Shatner – none of which was true.

TVG: None?

PS: At least not the problems with Shatner. As far as the last [TNG] episode was concerned, I was just exhausted and between the intensity of my role in the two-hour finale, the 14-hour days and a multitude of press on the set every single day, well, it just became overwhelming for me. I did my fair quota of yelling, that's true.

TVG: But the rumors didn't stop there.

PS: There were reports that Patrick was pulling out of Star Trek altogether. "He doesn't need it any more. He's got a life elsewhere. You'll never see him again." This is such nonsense. I can understand, because I have been so busy with other film and theatre projects, that people might think I no longer need this – but I do need this, actually. "First Contact" is very satisfying. I have a deep commitment to seeing this work continue. I want to see us go into the next millennium – but I also want to see us getting better and better with every movie we make. I want the Next Generation cast to become the dominant force in Star Trek.

PATRICK STEWART AS
UNCONVENTIONAL STAR TREK
SEX SYMBOL; ON THE BRIDGE IN THE UPCOMING
"FIRST CONTACT"

TVG: Then how did the rumors get started?

PS: I was openly anxious and had been for several years that TNG – great gift as it was to me – might end up as something of a blight. Actors who have too intense an identification with certain roles and a certain look, manner, and style, can have difficulty shedding that. But I also worried that the terrific security and the comfortable environment of a series would cause me to lose my nerve. The outside world can suddenly look like quite a hostile place when you're a free-lancer. So, you're tempted to play it safe.

TVG: What must you prove to yourself as an actor?

PS: I want...(long pause)...it's so easy at this point to sound pompous and pretentious...I want to do important work. "Dead Man" with Johnny Depp – that is a very important movie. So is "Dead Man Walking."

TVG: Those are intimate, arty films. Are you disappointed to be making yet another big-budget popcorn picture?

PS: Oh, no, because I also believe in entertainment! I have never gotten over the thrill of being in Hollywood and making movies. I was once a nine-year-old sitting enraptured in the cinema in my small industrial town in the north of England – and now here I am where it was all created. Remarkable! The happiest moments of my childhood were in cinemas. Nothing came close – not scoring a goal for my team, not bringing home a good exam paper. I was unbearably happy, even in the most tragic movies.

TVG: Do you fear there are roles you cannot play?

PS: Yes, but you can't let it stop you. For instance, I am advertised to sing the role of Arthur in "Camelot" at the Hollywood Bowl this month. When it was offered, I could not live with the reality of having said, "No." But I know that the night before, I will be in a cold sweat and go to bed cursing that I ever agreed to do it.

TVG: You've had tremendous post-TNG success – movies, prime-time, theatre. Is the industry your oyster?

PS: Not quite. I recently lost a theatre role I passionately wanted and I've not gotten over the hurt of not being the person selected. I even went to Brent Spiner [TNG's Data], who knew how much I wanted it, to help put it in some sort of perspective.

TVG: Still, you are on quite a roll for a mid-life actor – it usually doesn't happen that way in Hollywood.

PS: True. I'm 55 and very lucky. But at the same time, I wish I'd found the confidence I now have many years earlier. I once tended to distrust everything about myself and that can be so crippling. But there's little else I would change if I had the chance. Though, if I have my druthers, next time I'm coming back as Johnny Depp.

WILLIAM SHATNER

Capt. James T. Kirk,
Star Trek

Star trek has been extraordinarily good to William Shatner – and vice versa. Although his character, intergalactic cowboy and playboy James Tiberius Kirk, was bumped off in the 1994 movie "Star Trek: Generations," the 65-year-old Shatner remains the leading cheerleader of the franchise and one of its most creative – and richest – entrepreneurs, pushing everything from novels and memoirs to CD-ROMs and phone cards. "I don't have to be fearful of Trek because I'm comfortable with my career," says Shatner. "If I had not proven that to myself, I suppose I could be pretty resentful."

He admits the 30th anniversary is a bit bittersweet – what with Kirk pushin' up daisies after "Star Trek: Generations" – but, he notes philosophically, "Kirk was a heroic figure and there were those who felt it was time he died a heroic death. I'm not sure that was the right decision but you can't get too reverent about these things."

Or too irreverent: Shatner's most memorable Trek moment happened, not on the original series or one of its movie spinoffs, but on Saturday Night Live when he appeared in a sketch about a Trekker convention and exhorted his nerdy followers to "Get a life." He recalls at the time "thinking twice about alienating the fans – but with that crowd, I guess the more they feel alien the better."

As to the endless debate over who is the best captain – Kirk or Picard – Shatner lets out a weary sigh and says: "It's ridiculous. It's apples and oranges. The fans like a race, they like a winner – but the contest is in their minds, certainly not in mine."

OK, fine, but who is the best captain? "I am," says Shatner.

KATE MULGREW

Capt. Kathryn Janeway,
Star Trek: Voyager

Kate Mulgrew's kids like The X-Files better than they do Voyager – but she's not going to panic just yet. "My boys are reflecting their societal values," says Mulgrew of Ian, 13, and Alec, 12. "Everything they and their friends want to see is very dark, negative, paranoid – which is what most science fiction is these days. But I must believe it is a trend. Darkness may define this era but it does not define this century – our past or our future." Star Trek, she concedes, "may be regarded as Pollyanna-ish in its approach but the key to its success has always been hope and bonding. Some say Star Trek has peaked but if it has, it's because Voyager has not piqued the imagination of our audience like TNG did. Their writers were on a real trajectory. It's also time Voyager kicked some ass. Janeway needs a more Kirk-like approach."

And a better grasp of techno-speak: Mulgrew, 41, says her headiest – and most humiliating – Trek memory was meeting 20 teenage girl who were devoting their lives to science. "I came away saying 'OK no more faking.' So I'm now reading Einstein, Newton and Galileo." And how does Mulgrew feel about Star Trek's 30th birthday? "Like the baby in the family – still trying to stake its own claim in the world yet looking back in awe at its revered grandfathers." Don't tell that to Shatner.

AVERY BROOKS

Cmdr. Benjamin Sisko,
Star Trek: Deep Space Nine

Avery Brooks – who is known for being moody, brooding and stubborn – was close to passing on the chance to be the first black actor to take the helm of a Star Trek series. "When I got the call to audition, I said, 'Me? On Star Trek? Without any prosthetic makeup on?'" The actor, a part-time university professor, says he ultimately accepted the role to give black children "who are planning their own funerals the chance to think the long thought, to believe that our people will be alive 300 years hence."

Brooks won't gush about Trek's 30th anniversary. As he explains, his grandfather, who was the only black graduate of a Mississippi college in 1901, became a lawyer, bank treasurer and newspaper editor who spoke fluent German. "He died much too young because the reality of the world broke him. And I go to work at a Hollywood studio and get paid a lot of money to stand in front of a blue screen and pretend I'm climbing into holes and fighting monsters. I am struck by the absurdity of it all."

A map of the Star Trek universe in the 24th century

Ever wonder just how close the Borg really are to Earth? Or just where Voyager ended up? This map, showing the important places in the Star Trek universe, is excerpted from TV GUIDE's "Star Trek 30 Years: Official Collector's Edition."

The Star Trek universe in the 24th century is constantly evolving, as new planets are discovered and borders shift with the tides of politics and war. This map shows the current approximate position of some of the key locations of the four series.

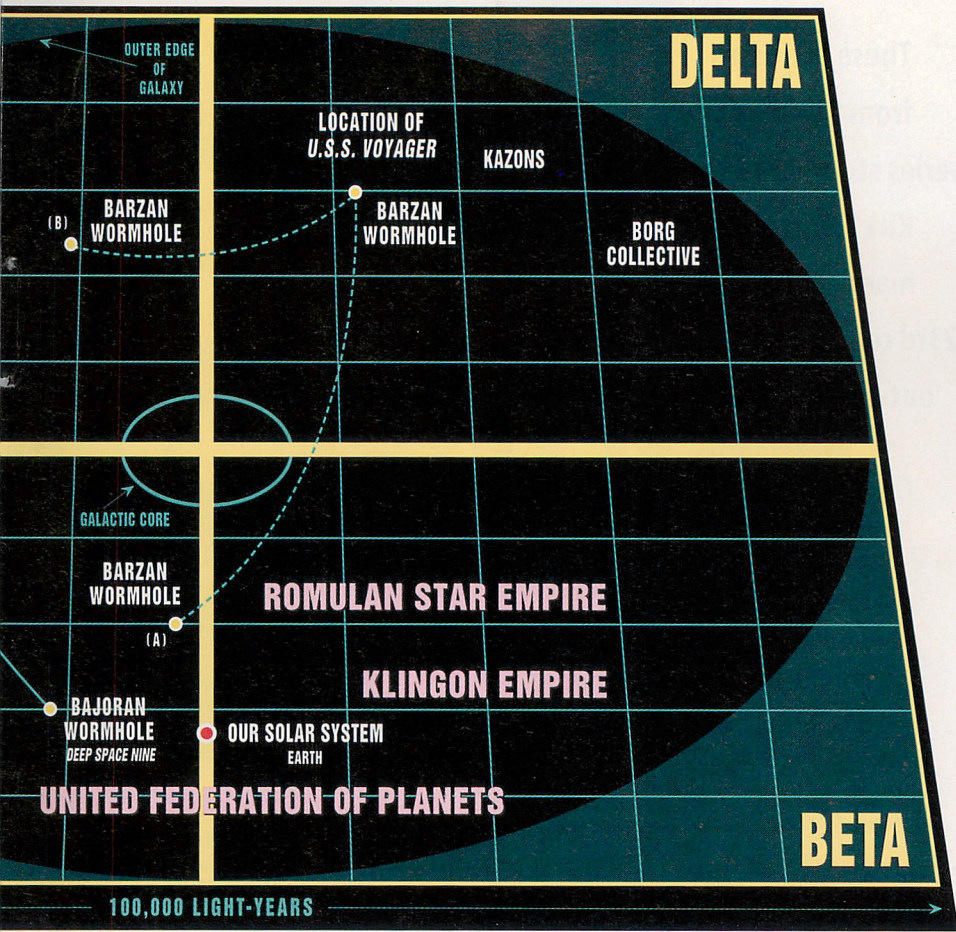

The area shown is the Milky Way galaxy, which is 100,000 light years in diameter and divided into four quadrants – Alpha, Beta, Gamma and Delta.

All the original and most of The Next Generation episodes took place in the Alpha quadrant. The Klingon and Romulan empires are found in the Beta. The Gamma quadrant, home of the Dominion, is accessible through the Bajoran wormhole, near Deep Space Nine. All of Voyager's adventures have taken place in the Delta quadrant, also believed to be the home of the Borg. The squares on the map are 500 sectors wide, a sector being a volume of space approximately 20 light-years (117,600,000,000 miles) across.

TV GUIDE's "Star Trek 30 Years: Official Collector's Edition" is available at newsstands and book stores. END

A word about wormholes

A wormhole is a “tunnel” through subspace (a different layer of space) connecting two points of normal time and space. By entering either end of the tunnel, a ship can travel a great distance in a short period of time. Most wormholes only appear and open up when a vessel is in close proximity. They are naturally occurring phenomena, with end points that fluctuate wildly. The Barzan wormhole, for example, was thought to be stable (ST:TNG’s “The Price”), but actually shifted from point A to point B (dotted line). The only stable wormhole is the artificially constructed Bajoran wormhole, connecting the planet Bajor with the Idran star system (solid line).

TV GUIDE: Wasn't Kirk's "girl in every port" behavior sexist?

Louise Sorel: That was television in the '60s. You had to bring in a woman every week who was sort of titillating – pardon the pun – so it never occurred to me to be offended.

Nichelle Nichols: I loved the romantic stuff, but let's get one thing straight: I was not the skirt of the week. Kirk and Uhura were forced by aliens with kinetic powers to kiss in this sexual charade; it was not a romance.

TVG: Anyone offended by the micro-skirts or the blouses as tight as sausage casings?

Grace Lee Whitney: Oh no! Everyone thinks we got rooked into it, but that's what we wanted to wear. That gave us the power. I was instrumental in getting us those mini-skirts – which by the way were

Love among the stars

There was (clockwise from lower left) Nichelle Nichols' Uhura, with whom Kirk shared a famous kiss; Rayna, the android played by Days of Our Live star Louise Sorel; Grace Lee Whitney's Yeoman Rand; Miri, the little orphan girl with big intentions, played by Kim Darby; and Marlena, the Captain's Woman on the parallel-universe Enterprise, played by Barbara Luna. These ladies were such an important part of Trek history we just had to get them dishing about Shatner and those '60s fashions.

"skorts." We all had shorts on underneath.

TVG: Miri's thing with Kirk was quite bold, considering you were playing a very young teen.

Kim Darby: She had a crush on him in a big way and they really took it pretty far. It was shot in such a way, with all these shadows and thoughtful pauses, that there were tremendous intimations.

TVG: Some of the outfits you all wore seemed a little makeshift.

Barbara Luna: One of my outfits didn't work at the last minute, so they grabbed a bunch of material and made one up.

Sorel: I simply stood still in the dressing room and they ran around me with this huge piece of silver lamé and wrapped me like it was a bandage.

TVG: And those hairdos!

Sorel: They gave me an Annette Funicello beehive bouffant – and a ponytail borrowed from Ben Cartwright's horse.

Nichols: People don't realize that Gene had a lot to do with the styles. He had to approve everything – in fact he created Uhura's pointed bangs, which became a big craze.

Luna: My hair was a scream. It kept getting bigger as the episode went on. By my last scene it's piled up to the ceiling. If I leaned forward, I would fall.

Whitney: Mine was so heavy I kept listing to the left.

TVG: The Kirk/Uhura kiss was very controversial. Did you discuss beforehand?

Nichols: Nobody discussed anything with me – ever. I didn't even realize we'd have TV's first interracial kiss until the director told me.

TVG: OK, how was Shatner as a make-out artist, really?

Darby: He was a very nice kisser. I looked forward to it very much.

Nichols: He was great, lived up to all expectations. We did about 30 takes.

Luna: I had strep throat and a 103-degree fever, so we had to postpone the kissing scenes for three weeks. But he was a good kisser. Nice soft lips.

WHEN THEY WERE
KIRK'S WOMEN:
(CLOCKWISE FROM TOP)
WHITNEY AS RAND;
DARBY AS MIRI;
NICHOLS AS UHURA;
LUNA AS MARLENA;
AND SOREL AS RAYNA

Sorel: Ours was sort of a virginal kiss. After all, I was an android and it was my first time with a man.

TVG: OK, let's settle this once and for all: Who's sexier – Kirk or Picard?

Darby: Picard – but I wouldn't have said that 30 years ago.

Sorel: Who's Picard?

Nichols: No doubt in my mind – Kirk!

Whitney: Kirk!

Luna: Kirk! But, then, I have to say that. I am the Captain's Woman. END

Howie Long's taste-tackling chicken jambalaya

Former NFL star Howie Long used to tackle everything he could get his hands on, but now the Fox NFL Sunday analyst and movie star ("Broken Arrow") is satisfied with tackling one of his wife's healthy recipes.

Long, who retired in 1993 from the Oakland/L.A. Raiders, admits that time away from his family during his career made him miserable. "I missed a lot of time with my wife and two sons and I sincerely regret that," says Long. "That's why we make sure that dinner time is where we can all be together."

Healthy eating is also on the menu in the Long household and is something that everyone adheres to. "We stay away from foods loaded with fat. We also drink a lot of water with our meals," says Long. What makes this recipe so special? Long says it's "easy to prepare and loaded with taste."

The combination of chicken, vegetables and rice is great."

THE EDITOR'S VIEW

"AND NOW FOR something completely different." Those words are etched in my memory. They are associated with the days of flowery shirts with big collars, sideburns, mustaches, the Beatles and the Grateful Dead. With others of my generation who grew up in the U.K., I know that just when you don't expect it, three scarlet-clad members of the Spanish Inquisition will appear round a corner on the upper level of an old-fashioned British bus. I am talking, of course, about Monty Python's Flying Circus, which has been given a new life on Bravo! on weeknights.

I know, too, that it is extremely self-indulgent to write about a British comedy series that is almost 25 years old. Watching it in reruns, I am surprised that it is in color. In my memory it is in black and white, but that is probably because I saw it on a black-and-white television set. Many of you might have never seen it, never switched on your sets to Bravo! to catch it, and despite this column, probably never will.

But I wonder what you will think if you do. I have thirtysomething colleagues who know Monty Python even better than I do. It seems to be a cult hit among young people. Why, I don't know. The humor is resolutely English and, unlike John Cleese's other truly funny and very accessible comedy, Fawlty Towers, Python seems to me to rely too heavily on a sense of Englishness to be easily understood.

Python works because it mocks all aspects of the British way of life. It takes ordinary situations and makes them absurd. It's not really satire, it's more that manic schoolboys have been let loose in place of all the grownups.

Python is so funny because so much of British society is so stuffy. There's a certain kind of television program in the U.K. that is almost exactly like the Python sketch of a culture show called "It's the Arts." Even the title is right, spoken with the best enunciation and plummy tones of the well-educated Brit. Python mocks British belligerence, bungling bureaucracy and pompousness. What I don't understand is why that is funny to people who have grown up here.

Some of Python is just zany, but that doesn't explain its success. Will some of you just check it out and tell me what the attraction is?
